TURNER, PANGBORN LOSE MORE TIME BY GETTING LOST

Flying Mollisons Drop Behind Despite Early Lead as Difficulties Beset Them; Dutchmen Hold Second Place.

PARMENTIER RACES TOWARD CALCUTTA

Two Others Drop Out of Distance Classic, and Remainder Cling on to Slight Hopes.

MILDENHALL AIRDROME, Oct. 22—(Monday)—(AP)—C. W. A. Scott and Campbell Black, speedy Englishmen, were roaring over the East Indies today, well in the lead in the London-to-Melbourne air derby as they soared away from Singapore at 11:42 p. m.

At that time their nearest competitors, the Dutch team of K. D. Parmentier and J. J. Moll, at Rangoon, were at least 1,300 miles to the rear. The Dutchmen left Rangoon at 10:47 p. m.

Scott and Black hoped to make the hazardous journey over Sumatra, Java, and the treacherous Timor sea to Darwin, Australia, in one hop.

Two plucky Americans, Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn, were roaring along in third place, flying eastward from Allahabad, India. Turner and Pangborn lost considerable time trying to find Allahabad in the darkness. As they groped about they felt much anxiety over their gasoline supply, but finally on reach-

Americus Judge Signs Order Barring Lindsay

Judge W. M. Harper, of the southwestern circuit, Americus, Saturday signed a temporary order restraining DeKalb Ordinary Vess S. Morgan from putting the name of Paul L. Lindsay on the DeKalb ballot as candidate to succeed himself in the November general elections, it was learned Sunday. Hearing on a permanent injunction was set for October 27, in Americus.

The order specifies that Lindsay's name shall not appear on the ballot in any way that shall construe him as a democratic nominee, those who framed the order said.

The restraining order was signed Saturday by Judge Harper after Judge James C. Davis, of the Stone Mountain circuit, had disqualified himself because he attended the state democratic convention at Macon, October 4, at which Reuben Garland was declared the democratic nominee over Lindsay following a hearing by a special committee.

The restraining order signed by Judge Harper was drawn up by Judge A. J. Hartley in the interests of Dr. J. A. Broach, Atlanta dentist, who lives in DeKalb county.

Engine Trouble Checks Kingsford-Smith's Hop

SUVA, Fiji Islands, Oct. 21.—(UP)—Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith and Captain P. G. Taylor tonight delayed resumption of their hazardous Pacific flight from Australia to California until Tuesday night, to permit overhauling of their big monoplane.

Taylor said they had had a bad flight on the first 1,700-mile leg of the cruise over the South Seas to Suva, a tiny spot on the Pacific, and the machine needed a thorough inspection before the start on the 2,736-mile hope to Honolulu.

CHEST WORKERS TO RALLY TONIGHT ON EVE OF APPEAL

2,500 Volunteers Called To Meet; Individual Gifts Campaign To Open Tuesday Morning.

The final rally of Community Chest workers before the opening of the individual gifts campaign Tuesday morning, has been called by the campaign chairman, the Rev. Herman L. Turner, for 6:15 o'clock tonight, at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Robert F. Maddox, president of the Community Chest, will make the principal address which will be broadcast at 7:30 o'clock over a hook-up of Atlanta's three radio stations.

Chairman Turner has issued an appeal to each of the 2,500 volunteer workers to attend the rally. Dinner will precede the radio program which will feature leaders from many walks of life. Several novel "surprise" features have been arranged for the broadcast. The rally is heralded as a meeting that will be "bright with music, cheer and optimism."

Arrangements have been made for the reception of President Roosevelt's address at 9:30 o'clock for those who will remain at the Athletic Club, although the meeting will be adjourned in ample time for those who care to do so to get home in time to tune in.

Mr. Maddox, who recently attended the conference at the White House on mobilization for human needs, and heard President Roosevelt stress the responsibility of communities for the care of their agencies, urged everyone to hear the president's address tonight.

U. S. Work an Emergency.

"It is important," said Mr. Maddox, "that all of us know the attitude of the president toward relief work. We should all know that, although the federal government has spent millions of dollars in relief of unemployment, its work is still an emergency measure and in no way relieves us of responsibility for our own local agencies.

"We are called on this week to contribute to the support of agencies, half of which have been here for 20 years or more and some of which were organized as long as 40 years ago. There was need for them then and there is need for them today. Their work of building character and ministering to human needs is our responsibility; they cannot expect support from the government."

Chairman Turner spoke optimistically of the approaching campaign, declaring that every worker seemed "imbued with the enthusiasm that it takes to win."

"The result of the advance gifts campaign," said Dr. Turner, "is an indication of the fact that people

ROOSEVELT TO ASK BANK COOPERATION IN A. B. A. ADDRESS

Wednesday's Speech Expected To Be Reassuring to Business Men Fearing Money Moves.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—President Roosevelt will urge cooperation with his recovery program upon the American Bankers' Association this week in an address to which the business world is looking for hints of future monetary and financial policy.

While the contents of the speech is the subject of much speculation, it is generally expected that it will be reassuring in tone, in keeping with the president's present effort to discourage industrial leaders from expecting disturbingly left-ward developments.

One after another, men high in the business world have called at the White House in the last fortnight for a half-hour's chat with the chief executive in which, to judge from what they told the press afterward, he has repeatedly emphasized this theme.

Worried on Money.

Their chief worry now is monetary policy. Agitation has been increasing again for more inflationary action, either through another devaluation of the gold dollar or by other means, such as paying off maturing government securities with currency.

A little more than a week ago, Mr. Roosevelt laughed at reports of impending devaluation, but did not foreclose himself against such a step at some later date. On the same day, the treasury announced plans for the refunding of a huge block of Liberty bonds by the old-fashioned orthodox method of exchanging new securities for them.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt will discuss monetary policy in detail remains to be seen, although in any event he is expected to make no definite commitments. The speech will be delivered Wednesday night. It will not be broadcast.

Washington is wondering, too, if Mr. Roosevelt will go into the subject of idle bank reserves, a question which officers of the association expect to receive much attention throughout the convention. Excess reserves now total more than $1,700,000,000. For a year the administration has been urging the bankers to turn these into loans.

In addition to the president, other high government officials will address the bankers. Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, will speak of the present and future of that agency, which originally was opposed by many of the bankers.

Jones to Speak.

Another speaker will be Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation, whose activities are intimately related with those of the banks. J. H. Ardrey, deputy administrator of the housing administration, will talk about his work.

Election of the association's officers for next year probably will find Rudolf S. Hecht, of New Orleans, first vice president, succeeding to the presidency, now held by Francis M. Law, of Houston, Texas. Robert V. Flem-

MRS. HUGH COMER DIES IN SAVANNAH

Prominent Georgia Woman Succumbs Unexpectedly to Sudden Illness.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Hugh Moss Comer died here suddenly this afternoon at 12:15 o'clock after a sudden attack of illness. Her death came without warning for on Saturday she had been well enough to go out motoring.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mills B. Lane and Mrs. John K. Train, both of Savannah. She is the widow of the late Hugh Morse Comer, who was receiver and president of the Central of Georgia railway 30 years ago.

Mrs. Comer's death occurred on the fifty-fourth anniversary of her coming to Savannah. She was married on October 19, 1880, and came to Savannah two days later.

During 1887, Mrs. Comer entertained President Jefferson Davis, of the Confederacy, in her home here.

Mrs. Comer was before her marriage Miss Lilla Coe Hall, daughter of Hezekiah Hall and Harriet L. Hall, of Wallingford, Conn. She was born March 5, 1853. She is also survived by a brother, Linus Hall, of Wallingford.

Funeral services are pending the arrival of relatives, but will probably be held Tuesday morning. Burial will be in Bonaventure cemetery.

Memorial Rites Prelude To Gay Legion Meeting

Report of National Commander To Be Highlight of First Day's Session With Attack on Roosevelt Thought Likely.

LEGIONNAIRES LEAVE FOR MIAMI MEETING

Thousands of Legionnaires representing every section of the country who Friday and Saturday swarmed the streets of Atlanta Sunday night were well on their ways to Miami, where the national convention of the American Legion will open today.

Georgia's delegation, which assembled in Atlanta Saturday night, left early Sunday morning on the Governor's Special, though Governor Eugene Talmadge did not go.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Memorial, patriotic and religious services tonight swung the sixteenth annual conventon of the American Legion off to an informal start in this tropical winter resort by the sea.

Gathering in palm-dotted Bayfront park, members of the Legion and the women's auxiliary sat down by moonlit waters to solemn ceremonies for their respective organizations.

The services followed business sessions of various committees of the two associations that provided a forerunner to the formal opening of the convention at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Twelve hundred official and accredited delegates are here for the four-day colorful session, accompanied by some 70,000 veterans, members of the auxiliary and other visitors.

Memories of 1917-18 were revived and re-lived as the men who marched battlefields clasped hands again in peacetime. Broad smiles were upon faces and happy shouts of "Where's Elmer" brought the Legionnaires together. "Where's Elmer" became the rallying call.

Short speeches and a fast-moving program constituted arrangements for the actual convention sessions after Governor Dave Sholtz, of Florida, extends the state's official welcome tomorrow.

The report of National Commander Edward A. Hayes, of Decatur, Ill., is to be a highlight of the first day. A continued vigorous campaign by the Legion against radical pacifist and communist groups engaged in disseminating "poisonous propaganda" will be recommended by Hayes as he discusses the "Americanism" drive.

Controversial issues, such as immediate cash payment of the bonus and universal draft in war, appeared likely to come before the convention. Sixteen state departments of the

MISS ALICE WILSON PASSES SUDDENLY

Secretary to Clark Howell Sr. Was Beloved By Newspaper Staff.

Miss Alice Wilson, secretary to Clark Howell Sr., editor and president of The Constitution, died suddenly early Sunday morning at her home, 785 Piedmont avenue, N. E., following a heart attack.

Miss Wilson was born and reared in West Point, Ga., and was the only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson, prominent residents of that city. The late W. W. Wilson, of Atlanta, was her only brother.

When she had completed her schooling in West Point, Miss Wilson came to Atlanta as secretary to former Governor Hoke Smith, and later became associated with The Constitution as secretary to Mr. Howell, a position she held for 27 years and until the time of her death.

In addition to her secretarial duties, Miss Wilson edited a Sunday column in The Constitution under the title, "Book Reviews in Tabloid," a widely popular printed discussion of new books. As a valued and faithful member of The Constitution staff, she was greatly beloved by those who served with her.

To the reporters she was known as "Miss Alice" and they frequently sought information from her regarding prominent Atlantans and Georgians. "Miss Alice" knew, either personally or by newspaper contact, practically every person of prominence in the state, and in addition, knew or knew about members of their families. A reporter who, through lack of better knowledge, coupled the wrong initials to a name of a prominent Atlantan was subjected to a "dressing down" by "Miss Alice."

Miss Wilson was a co-worker of Frank Stanton and Joel Chandler Harris and frequently Frank Stan-

HAUPTMANN PACES CELL IN SILENCE

Prisoner Denied Right To Converse With Jersey Jail Guards.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Bruno Hauptmann, denied permission to converse with his trio of guards, paced his compact cell in silence tonight, slowly adjusting himself to his new surroundings in the Hunterdon county jail.

Meanwhile, the possibility that Hauptmann may be taken from jail to the scene in the Sourland mountains of the Lindbergh kidnaping was raised.

Joseph Lanigan, assistant attorney-general aiding in Hauptmann's prosecution on a charge of murdering the Lindbergh baby, said in reply to a question that a re-enactment of the crime, with the defendant present, could be effected only after he was brought to trial.

Should such a move be sought by either the prosecution or the defense, Lanigan said, an application would have to be made to the presiding judge, Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, who would issue the necessary court order.

New Jersey legal authorities, who will try the Bronx carpenter next month on a charge of slaying baby Charles A. Lindbergh, ordered he should not receive reading matter or talk with the two state troopers and the deputy sheriff constantly on watch.

Hauptmann continued to eat sparingly, but smoked occasional cigarets. His breakfast consisted of coffee and an orange.

The warden's wife, Mrs. Harry O. McCrea, followed prison custom in preparing a special Sunday dinner of roast chicken.

Registration To Open Today For Great '4 Capitals' 'Cade

Registration for the "Four Capitals" motorcade, to run on November 1 from Atlanta to Savannah over the recently completed "Four Capitals" highway, will open at the Atlanta Motor Club on West Peachtree street and on the sixth floor of The Constitution building at 9 o'clock this morning.

This motorcade, most significant event of its kind since the first one-day drive by automobile from Savannah to Atlanta 25 years ago, is sponsored jointly by The Constitution and the Savannah Morning News. Mayor Thomas Gamble, of Savannah, first suggested the 'cade and more than two dozen mayors of other cities along the route have since given it their heartiest indorsement and have promised to lead delegations of their citizens to take part.

Two hundred cars have been allotted Atlanta as its share of the great motorized caravan that will traverse the historic heart of the state. The first acceptable 200 cars to register will be assigned places in line, so it is advisable for all intending to go to register without delay.

Jack Strouss, secretary of the Atlanta Motor Club, is handling registration at the club offices and is cooperating in every possible way to assure tremendous success for the event.

Through Four Capitals.

The highway and the motorcade get the name "Four Capitals" from the fact that, starting from Atlanta, the present state capital, stops will be made at Milledgeville, war-time capital of the state, at Louisville, an earlier state capital, and will end at Savannah, first capital of Georgia and the site of General James Oglethorpe's first colony when he brought the forefathers of the present state of Georgia here from England.

Special programs of entertainment will be furnished the motorcaders both at Milledgeville and at Louisville, while an elaborate program of entertainment, including the formal dinners, dance, night club entertainment, shore dinner, etc., have been arranged at Savannah. The Savannah program extends from late afternoon on Thursday, November 1, when the motorcade will arrive, to the closing official breakfast on Saturday, November 3. And then many of the 'caders will

12 PERSONS DEAD IN FURIOUS STORM ON PACIFIC COAST

Passenger Vessel Is Wrecked, Fishing Boat Sunk and Freighter Distressed for Hours.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 21.—(AP)—A raging October gale battered through the Pacific northwest today, leaving 12 dead in its wake and widespread damage to shipping and property.

The purse seiner Agnes, of Seattle, carried five men to their deaths off Point Wilson as the coast guard cutter Haida neared the scene.

The other deaths consisted of two more drownings, two persons crushed by wreckage from buildings, two persons electrocuted when a high tension line was blown across a radio aerial and a motorist crushed by a falling tree.

The dead: Bernard Thomason, S. Peterson, Howard Anderson, Leonard Torget and Leonard Berg, all fishermen of the Agnes.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Christenson, both about 45, of Tacoma, killed when the wind blew a high tension wire across a radio aerial they were repairing.

Chris Patow, 25, of Astoria, Ore., drowned while duck hunting when his boat capsized.

Nick Schwartz, 30, of Seattle, drowned in Silver lake 60 miles east of Bellingham, Wash., when canoeing.

R. M. Johnson, of Portland, a guest at a Bellingham hotel, crushed beneath bricks and wreckage when an edge of a roof on which he was working gave way.

An unidentified Chinese, killed when the side of a rooming house caved in at Seattle.

Elmer Lee, 30, Bremerton navy yard worker, crushed by a tree which wrecked his car near Dewatto, Wash.

The passenger boat Virginia V., plying between Seattle and Tacoma, was caught in the gale's fury and dashed against a dock, but her 25 passengers were rescued.

The freighter Floridan, carrying a crew of 32 men, sent out a frantic SOS when the raging gale drove it near the shore at the mouth of the Columbia river. Later, however, the ship was able to anchor and the captain said he would proceed to Portland for repairs.

The liner President Madison was ripped from her moorings at Seattle and blown the length of the pier, sweeping three ships along with her.

The coast guard cutter Atlanta rushed to the aid of two men reported lashed to piling at Boundary bay, near the Canadian line, after the cannery workhouse in which they stayed, was swept away by the wind.

Throughout the Pacific northwest came reports of communication lines ripped away, lighting systems put out and highways littered by the gale, which reached 80 miles an hour offshore.

Two other persons, John Dybdal and his wife, who operated a fish trap at the mouth of the Skagit river, were believed lost when their trap was wrecked and their house fell into the water.

Ernest Nelson, a fish buyer, reported he had tried to get out to them but was unable to do so.

The storm struck the area with full fury during the morning with full gale warnings ordered hoisted by the weather bureau, and had subsided only

WARREN H. FOGG DIES AT AGE OF 76

Retired Railroad Official Was Widely Known Here for 38 Years.

Warren H. Fogg, 76, widely known retired railroad official, died Sunday at an Atlanta hospital following a lingering illness.

Mr. Fogg had been in declining health since last January but had not been confined to his bed until two months ago. Until several years ago, when he retired, he was divisional passenger agent for the Central of Georgia railroad with headquarters in Atlanta.

He came to Atlanta 38 years ago to enter the employ of the Central of Georgia and had served the company continuously for 35 years, until he retired. He was one of the most widely known railroad men in the United States, having served with the Illinois Central and a number of railroads in and near Kansas City, Mo. He came to Atlanta from that city.

He was born in Camden, N. J., on March 28, 1858, and began his railroad career at an early age. After his retirement three years ago from active duty he made his home with a daughter, Mrs. Ernest G. Weems, at 794 Yorkshire road.

Mr. Fogg was known to thousands of Atlantans. During the war he served as head of the ticket office of the consolidated railroad office in

First Rain of 7 Months Raises Hazard at Darwin

DARWIN, Australia, Oct. 21.—(UP)—The first rain in seven months fell heavily over this initial port of call for the England-Australia air racers tonight. The first plane was expected before dawn.

The showers threatened to develop into a tropical storm which would turn the airport into a quagmire.

Tremendous crowds continued to flow into and around the field to welcome the fliers from Mildenhall, England, thousands sleeping under temporary shelters, out of doors.

KIDNAPERS' DEATH ASKED BY FAMILY OF ALICE STOLL

Earlier Indications That Clemency Would Be Sought for Mrs. Robinson Are Refuted.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Death was demanded for the kidnapers of Alice Speed Stoll tonight by William Stoll, brother-in-law of the erstwhile kidnap victim, and president of the Louisville Board of Trade.

"Certainly the law must take its course if we are to have law and order in this country," he said. "The government should have its way."

He spoke as the hunt for Thomas Henry Robinson Jr., named as the kidnaper, was being concentrated north of the Ohio river. Melvin H. Purvis, who tracked John Dillinger to his death, was in charge of a band of federal agents operating out of Cincinnati.

Robinson, his father and his wife, have been indicted in terms that make the death penalty a possibility in the event of their conviction.

United States Attorney Thomas J. Sparks told reporters that arraignment of Mrs. Robinson on the indictment probably would take place tomorrow.

The woman is now held in Jefferson county jail in default of $50,000 bond demanded when she was arrested on a warrant.

Sparks said he planned to get in touch with Mrs. Robinson's counsel to see whether they wished arraignment or preferred to allow their client to remain in confinement until the trial, now tentatively set for October 29.

"I doubt whether they will execute bond," Sparks said with reference to the defense counsel. He indicated that he would resist efforts to have it reduced.

Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Althauser, of Nashville, parents of Mrs. Robinson, are in the city but did not call on her today, due to a Sunday no visitors rule at the jail.

A capias has been sent to Nashville to bring Robinson senior to Louisville. Authorities in Nashville said that they had not yet received it.

William Stoll's demand that the full measure of punishment be exacted approaches a contradiction of the statement attributed to the captive that

OKLAHOMA BANDIT TRAILED BY POSSE IN WOODS OF OHIO

Battle With Two Men Wanted as Perpetrators of Kansas City Massacre Bared as U. S. Agents Identify Fugitive.

SUB-MACHINE GUN IS FOUND IN GULLY

Richetti Denies Companion Was Floyd, Admits He Helped to Kidnap Missouri Sheriff.

WELLSVILLE, Ohio, Oct. 21.—(AP)—While posses tonight trailed a fugitive federal agents said was "Pretty Boy" Floyd, wounded, his companion, Adam Richetti, was held in the village jail.

Richetti is accused of responsibility, along with Floyd, in the Kansas City Union station massacre of June, 1933.

Richetti was captured and two men were put to flight in a cross-country gun battle late Saturday, it was reported today.

Federal agents from Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati joined the hunt tonight.

Richetti told police he was wanted for having jumped $15,000 bail on a robbery charge in Milcreek, Okla. He denied he had been implicated in the slaying of a federal prisoner and four others in the Kansas City massacre.

Although Richetti said he had not seen Floyd for nearly one year, Police Chief J. H. Fultz, of Wellsville, who was shot in the ankle by the two companions of Richetti yesterday, identified Floyd from photographs as one of the men.

Floyd Believed Wounded.

Fultz said he believed Floyd was wounded in the battle. Bloodstains were found on cushions in two automobiles believed to have been used by the fugitive in his flight.

A submachine gun was found tonight in a gully where the gun battle took place and where Chief Fultz and two citizens were fired upon as they approached to question the three men.

Posses late tonight were hunting through woods near Lisbon, north of here, where Floyd was last seen.

Fultz and County Prosecutor George Lafferty said Richetti made a "frank" confession, admitting he knew Floyd, but became separated from the outlaw at Texarkana, Ark., almost a year ago, and last heard from Floyd from El Paso, Texas.

Richetti, Fultz and Lafferty said, asserted he had been with Floyd when the sheriff of Bolivar, Mo., was kidnaped a year ago. Richetti said his mother lives in Lehigh, Okla. Fultz and Lafferty quoted him as saying he had once served a two-year term in the Indiana state reformatory at Hammond, Ind.

Richetti Names Companion.

Richetti said he was in Wellsville with a James Warren, whom he had known seven years ago in Oklahoma and whom he met recently in Toledo, Ohio.

Police said they found $98 on Richetti and quoted the prisoner as saying he won the money several days ago in a card game at Medina, Ohio, near Cleveland.

Fultz and Lafferty said Richetti had been identified "tentatively" as one of three men who held up the People's bank in Tiltonville, Ohio, last Friday, obtaining $500.

As police and deputy sheriffs from near-by cities and counties came here in response to a call for help, squads were posted around the jail where Richetti is being held and plans were made for the mounting of machine guns.

Fultz said he feared an attempt would be made to free Richetti. He

MEDICAL RESERVISTS GIVEN ASSIGNMENTS

21 Georgians Affected in Orders Involving 73 Surgeons, Physicians, Dentists

Seventy-three surgeons, physicians, dentists and veterinarians, including 21 Georgians, have been given new assignments in the United States army reserves, the Atlanta headquarters announced Sunday.

Atlanta medical reservists included in the assignment orders are First Lieutenant Robert L. Gilliam, 272 Courtland street, who was placed in 19th evacuation hospital, while Captain Stacy C. Howell, 1207 Medical Arts building, First Lieutenants Eustace A. Allen, 1121 Candler building; George Hess, 786 Ponce de Leon avenue, John D. Martin, Jr., 618 Doctors building, Samuel Kahn, 929 Highland avenue, N. E., and Walter P. Rhyne, 688 Linwood avenue, N. E., were assigned to 222nd general hospital.

Assignments to 43rd general hospital include Captain John L. Myers, 607 Candler building, and Second Lieutenant Harry C. Lyon, 745 Marietta street, while Lieutenant Colonel James M. Tribble, Senoia; Major Fred L. Webb, Macon; First Lieutenant Leon D. Porch, Macon, and First Lieutenant James T. Stovall Jr., were placed in 90th general hospital.

The 214th general hospital is the organization to which Major William W. Jarrell, Thomasville; First Lieutenant Joseph I. Palmer, Thomasville; Captain Glen A. Shelton, Fort Benning, and Second Lieutenant Evaristo Reyes, Fort Benning, were assigned. Second Lieutenant Ernest W. Rackley, was relieved from assignment to 77th field artillery and was re-assigned to 82nd division. He is commissioned in the veterinary corps.

First Lieutenant Farish C. Holden, medical corps, Dahlonega, was relieved from assignment to Lawson general hospital and re-assigned to Fort Oglethorpe corps area service command; First Lieutenant Minor C. Brown Jr., Gainesville, to 19th evacuation hospital, and First Lieutenant Leo G. Temples, Augusta, to 36th evacuation hospital.

Vets' Leader Sees Faint Peace Hopes

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 21.—(AP)—A gloomy outlook for peace in Europe was brought to the annual breakfast meeting here today of Fidac, international veterans' society, by its incoming American vice president, Father Robert J. White.

Father White, who is also national chaplain of the American Legion, said that during his recent European trip "hundreds of statesmen to whom I talked held out no hope for peace.

"The feelings and bitterness that are apparent among the countries of Europe came out at the conference (of Fidac), with the withdrawal of Italy because of criticism emanating from Yugoslavia.

"This is no time for an inspirational address. It is a time for plain speaking. The American mind can't grasp the way the countries of Europe are marching and talking and planning military armament."

Father White asked the American Legion auxiliary, members of which attended the breakfast, to throw their support behind the fight of Fidac to keep the peace of the world.

TALMADGE TO ATTEND FAIR AT HAWKINSVILLE

Governor Eugene Talmadge has a busy schedule ahead of him for several weeks, in addition to the duties of his office.

He plans to attend the Hawkinsville, Ga., fair on October 30. In Hawkinsville, the governor will drive his favorite trotting horse in a sulky.

On November 1, the chief executive is to make two speeches in New York city, one before the national foreign trade council, and another before an advertising club. Returning to Georgia, he will speak November 2, at the Anderson, S. C., fair, and be the guest there of state officials of South Carolina.

CHARLES SHELDON SR. TO BE BURIED TODAY

Last rites for Charles A. Sheldon Sr., 77, of 101 Druid circle, N. E., will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill, with Dr. J. Sprole Lyons and Dr. David Marx officiating. Interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Sheldon, a pioneer Atlantan, died at a private hospital Saturday after a four-month illness. He is the father of Dr. Charles A. Sheldon Jr., city organist. He also is survived by his wife and two other sons, Wilson and Julian E. Sheldon, of Atlanta.

RIVER DEVELOPMENT CONFERENCE CALLED

Association To Be Formed at Meeting To Be Held in Columbus November 8.

A valley-wide association to promote the improvement of the Chattahoochee-Appalachicola river system will be formed Thursday, November 8, at a meeting of prominent businessmen in Columbus at the Ralston hotel, John M. Cooper, of Atlanta, announced Sunday.

More than 200 mayors, county officials, Chamber of Commerce representatives and others interested from all towns in the valleys of the river system will be invited to attend the organization luncheon meeting, at which J. Ralston Cargill, of Columbus, will preside.

Governor Eugene Talmadge, Senators Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell Jr. and Georgia congressmen also will be asked to take part.

Cooper, who is chairman of the Atlanta committee to promote development of the rivers; E. L. Hart, secretary of the committee and manager of the Atlanta Freight Bureau, and Walter Dupree, director of the freight bureau, will attend the meeting.

The association which is to be formed plans to widen and deepen the Chattahoochee and the Apalachicola rivers so that traffic may be moved over them as a cheaper and more satisfactory transportation method.

Another Warm Day Forecast for Today

Atlanta will probably experience another warm day today as it did Sunday, when the mercury rose to highest temperature it has reached this month, according to the United States weather bureau here.

The highest temperature Sunday was 81 degrees, recorded between 2 and 3 o'clock, and represents the highest temperature for October. This is somewhat unusual for October, said the weatherman. Today's lowest will be about 64 or 66 degrees and the highest should be 80 or higher, he said. There will be no rain today, despite partly cloudy skies, he said.

AGNES SCOTT GIRLS APPEAR NOV. 16-17 IN G. B. SHAW PLAY

Blackfriars, the dramatic club of Agnes Scott College, will present George Bernard Shaw's comedy, "You Never Can Tell," as the first play of the year, Friday and Saturday nights, November 16 and 17. Leading male roles will again this year be played by prominent Atlanta and Decatur men.

"You Never Can Tell" is characterized as a pleasant play. Although it is one of Shaw's earlier works, written in 1905, it has lost none of the significance of its delightful satire on the relation of parents to children in the twentieth century. It was presented and received with great enthusiasm during the past summer at Malvern, England.

The play will be under the direction of Miss Frances Gooch, head of the spoken English department of Agnes Scott. Members of the cast will include: Miss Hester Anne Withers, Waynesville, N. C.; Miss Betty Lou Houck, Bradenton, Fla.; Miss Ida Lois McDaniel, Atlanta; Miss Margaret Stokey, Atlanta; Jimmy Jepson, Decatur; Matt Jergenson, Atlanta; Richard Clark, Atlanta, and Cyril Smith, Atlanta.

SALVATION ARMY OFFICERS TO WED AT RITES TONIGHT

The wedding of Lieutenant Evelyn Young, daughter of Brigadier Robert Young, financial secretary for the Salvation Army in the south, and Captain Gordon Swyers, of the purchasing and supplies department at the territorial headquarters in Atlanta, will be performed at the Atlanta temple, 54 Ellis street, at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Brigadier Young, the father of the bride, will perform the ceremony, and Commissioner Alexander M. Damon, the southern territorial commander, will preside.

MAN SLAYS EX-WIFE IN MATE'S PRESENCE

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 21.—(AP)—A man forced his way into the home of his former wife here early today and after knocking down her husband of a month, shot and killed the woman.

Police took into custody H. V. Nielsen, former coast guardsman, six hours after the shooting in the home of Mrs. Mary Etta Krebs, in which Mrs. P. Joseph Doyle, wife of a real estate man, was killed.

Nielson was booked on a charge of murder, and told Solicitor Bart B. Chamberlain, who questioned him, that he "knew nothing" of what had occurred.

MRS. DAVID T. ANSTED DIES AT FORT BENNING

Mrs. David T. Ansted, 34, wife of Lieutenant Ansted, stationed at a CCC camp at Bloxham, Fla., died Sunday morning at the Fort Benning hospital at Columbus. She was formerly Miss Louise Gay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Gay, of 1303 Iverson, N. E.

In addition to her husband and parents, she is survived by two children and three sisters, Mrs. G. L. Duncan, of Jacksonville; Mrs. A. J. Davis, of Chicago, and Miss Margaret Gay, of Atlanta. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by H. M. Patterson & Son.

International Plot Seen in N. Y. Killing

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Joseph Lee, formerly in the liquor business, was shot and killed early today and apparently robbed of $1,100 in a murder that police insisted might have "international complications."

A few hours earlier, according to a police check of his movements, Lee had visited two Cuban shipboard acquaintances at a midtown hotel, whom Lee had met before returning several days ago from a nine-week holiday in Cuba.

The two men, registered as Alberto Casanova and Dr. William Tapia, said they came to this country under assumed names by way of Halifax to conceal their identities and their whereabouts.

NEW LABOR TILTS LOOM ON HORIZON

Auto and Steel Industries Challenge A. F. L. Right To Speak for Workers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—New threats to the truce in industrial disputes which President Roosevelt so earnestly desires have arisen in the automobile and steel industries.

They were in the form of challenges of the right of the American Federation of Labor to speak for workers. Consequently, high officials were said tonight to be given much time and attention to the problem of how to stave off major labor disturbances in Detroit factories and Pittsburgh mills.

President Roosevelt recently proposed a truce from strikes and troubles in industries. Hardly had he made his plea, however, before labor leaders began to perk up their ears at word of a letter written by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., to General Motors employes.

"In the event that an issue is raised by a particular group or their duly accredited representatives, the settlement of which involves the interests of non-represented groups," he said in part, "the management should satisfy itself that any decision arrived at provides fair treatment with respect to such non-represented groups.

"The management should be reasonable in its willingness to listen to anyone desiring to discuss matters purporting to affect General Motors employes."

Sloan thus set forth that the company would not recognize the American Federation of Labor auto unions as speaking for all the company's employes so long as all the employes did not belong to the union.

At the federation, the statement was regarded as a warning that "inside" unions would be protected—something the federation most strenuously dislikes.

Steel's latest move to thwart outside unionization—the second major truce threat—was in a statement of the American Iron and Steel Institute that 86 per cent of the country's steel workers were standing behind employe representation (inside union) plans.

The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, the A. F. of L. unit in the industry, contends it represents a majority of the steel employes.

One high administration official today expressed privately an opinion that only an increase in steel production was needed to turn an undercurrent of steel labor unrest into a major disturbance.

SCOTT AND BLACK LEAD IN AIR RACE

ing Allahabad they found their fuel gauge was defective.

Pangborn and Turner ate hastily, serviced their ship and in an hour and a half were off to catch the fast-stepping leaders. They asserted they are still in the race.

The plucky Mollisons, James and Amy, who encountered numerous difficulties after leading everyone with a brilliant flight from Mildenhall to Baghdad, apparently were holding to fourth place. They left Karachi, India, after two starts and two returns. Difficulty with the undercarriage of their plane and fogs caused them a loss of about 16 hours. Their position was unreported after they made their third start from Karachi. They were expected at Rangoon at about 5:30 a. m.

The leaders, Scott and Black, had an adventuresome flight across the Bay of Bengal and they narrowly escaped a crackup on landing at Singapore. They struck the earth hard, but apparently without damage to their undercarriage.

Other racers, most of them in the handicap event, were scattered over two continents behind the leaders.

When Scott's brilliant red Comet roared into Singapore heavy smoke was issuing from the exhaust. Scott made an extremely fast landing and a fire engine raced across the field thinking he was in trouble.

Enormous crowds that had gathered at the airport gasped as the machine stopped, but when the engine was cut off and the smoke disappeared they broke into thunderous cheers.

The fire engine returned to the race control tower, bringing the airmen, while adjustments, taking only six minutes, were made to the engine.

Scott had been "giving the gun" to his big cruiser, making a 2,200-mile non-stop flight to Singapore in 12 hours and 8 minutes.

Parmentier and J. J. Moll were holding to second place with grim tenacity. G. H. Geysendorfer and D. L. Asjes, the only other Dutch team in the 11,300-mile air classic, cracked up in landing at Allahabad and were out of the race with a broken propeller and a smashed undercarriage.

Parmentier reached Calcutta at 5:40 p. m. Sunday, G. M. T., and streaked for Rangoon 42 minutes later. A rough calculation at this point showed Scott more than 1,300 miles ahead. Parmentier was carrying passengers and taking a longer route than Scott, landing at every airdrome on the route while the latter was piling through without stops and apparently without sleep.

Nevertheless, the Dutchman said at Allahabad he was confident he could beat the leaders. Scott's plane, he said, was "flying all out, while we are nursing our engines along."

The Mollisons departed from Karachi, India, at 9:05 p. m. Sunday, G. M. T., for Allahabad. Twice they had been forced to return to the Karachi field because of a jammed landing gear and heavy fog.

Dutch Out of Race.

Geysendorfer was bitterly disappointed at cracking up. He said he was not officially scratching until tomorrow, but "you may consider me out of the race." His retractable landing wheels failed to work, causing the propellers to slash into the turf on alighting.

Of the other 14 planes, two had dropped out, one bacuse of an accident; two had reached Baghdad with a possible chance for the prize, and the rest were strung along between France and Syria, most of them still trying for one of the handicap prizes.

John H. Wright and John Polando, the only other American team in the race, reached Athens at 1 p. m. Sunday, G. M. T., still hoping for a handicap prize.

Turner and Pangborn.

Pangborn and Turner, at that time in third place, were roaring across rugged eastern India during the early afternoon, headed for Allahabad. They left Karachi at 1:25 p. m. They had reported no trouble with their big (Boeing) transport plane, and conceivably had hopes of winning the prize, although are behind the leading team.

Nobody had yet been reported seriously injured despite two bad crackups and several near-accidents.

The Mollisons ran into bad luck after holding a slim lead all the way from England to Karachi, where their big British (De Haviland Comet) machine developed engine trouble. They made rapid repairs and took off shortly after noon, returning at 2 p. m.

Mollison said the map they had obtained at Karachi apparently was unsuitable for night flying. He said the machine was behaving all right, and they planned to hop off after Scott and Parmentier about 9:30 p. m.

Leads by Hours.

Scott apparently held the lead by a wide margin. The air ministry in London received a wireless message that he had left Allahabad for Singapore at 9:55 a. m. He was driving a big, fast British plane like the Mollisons' and apparently neglecting sleep altogether, making only brief stops and those far between.

Parmentier streaked after him in an American (Douglas) machine, leaving Calcutta for Singapore at 6:22 p. m.

J. Woods and D. C. Bennett, Australians, had a smashup at Aleppo, Syria, on trying to land their American (Lockheed Vega) plane. Woods wirelessed the Royal Aero Club at London a brief message:

"Undercarriage collapsed. Out of race. Crew unhurt."

Cathcart Jones and Ken W. Waller, flying a plane like the Mollisons' and Scott's, were fifth in the race. They developed motor trouble at Baghdad but took off at noon, reaching Karachi at 8:10 p. m.

Wright and Polando.

Wright and Polando had difficulties before reaching Athens, being forced down at Agrinion by motor trouble. On reaching Athens Wright said:

"We had some pretty hot moments during a forced landing. We will stay here overnight in order to make repairs to the fuel pipe, but hope to regain some of our lost time later."

The British team, Captain T. Neville Stack and S. L. Turner, were the second pair to drop officially from the race today. Harassed by motor trouble they landed at Marseille about 2 p. m. Stack said he would not compete in the race further, but would continue to Melbourne as a non-competitor. Stack and Turner will deliver films of the start of the Derby Saturday.

The New Zealanders, Squadron Leader Malcolm MacGregor and Henyr Waller, reached Baghdad at 2 p. m. in their British (Miles Hawk) plane.

slightly at nightfall. The navy yard at Bremerton reported a 55-mile-an-hour wind velocity shortly after noon.

The gales struck the Pacific northwest, while Luzon, principal island of the Philippines, was weathering the second destructive typhoon to strike within a week. Five persons were killed there and damage of $250,000 done. The city of Manila had only squalls.

Wild excitement prevailed at the Mason Methodist church in Tacoma when a large chimney was blown down and crashed into the roof of a Sunday school classroom. Twenty-five small boys and girls were in the room with their teacher. Three of the children were injured seriously.

The full force of the gale struck the Virginia V. as it attempted to leave the dock and the ship was pounded against the timbers and piling.

Holes were smashed in the hull and the superstructure was torn loose. One by one, the passengers were helped onto the dock and all escaped injury.

One of the ships swept along by the Madison, the Puget Sound freighter Harvester, was crushed in the wreckage and sank, her crew of 20 members scrambling to safety across gravel barges.

Several hours later the Madison was still held against the docks, where she had entrapped the steel freighter North Haven and the Aleutian Native. The North Haven was racked from stem to stern by the careening Madison and jammed on piling in shallow water. It was feared her bottom might be punctured as the tide ebbed beneath her late today.

Small Craft Menaced.

Elsewhere along the Seattle waterfront and in Lake Washington and Lake Union barges, small craft and houseboats were menaced by the heavy winds, which reached a velocity of 55 miles an hour at noon. In some instances houseboats and other small floating craft were torn adrift. Numerous log booms were torn loose from their moorages. Property damage in Seattle and vicinity would be large, observers said.

The ocean-going tug Roosevelt was another of the victims of the Madison, being crushed slightly against the end of a slip.

In uptown Seattle, many plate-glass windows were blown in, signs were torn down and in the residence district trees were uprooted and considerable other damage to property reported. A service station in the university district was blown down, flooding the streets with gasoline.

Telephone communication was uncertain with most points outside Seattle, with the Seattle exchange accepting calls subject to delay.

The old Odd Fellow hall at Everett, 30 miles north of Seattle, was lifted from its foundation by the wind, which reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour. The building, a three-story frame structure, was split in two.

About 100 telephone lines were blown dow in Everett, while rural service was practically suspended. Electric power was out in the city and the telephone company said they could operate only a few hours longer on their auxiliary service.

The Pacific highway was blocked by fallen trees a short distance north of the city.

Plate-glass windows were broken in the business section of Everett, while in the residence section trees were uprooted, chimneys were toppled over and some houses were unroofed.

D. A. HOBART RESIGNS VETS' APPEALS BOARD

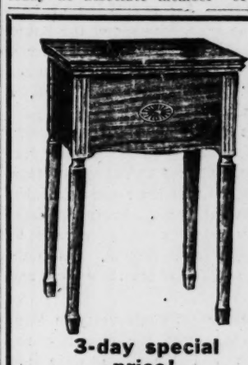

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Condemning "hysterical congressional action" on veterans' legislation, Donald A. Hobart announced his resignation today as associate member of the board of veterans' appeals of the veterans' administration and acceptance of the post of vice commander in charge of the American Veterans' Association.

Hobart was appointed by President Roosevelt to the board of veterans' appeals about a year ago. He resigned from an insurance firm to serve. His announcement today was made public by Charles M. Kinsolving, national commander of the veterans' association.

LOWNDES FARMERS SELL EXCESS TOBACCO SCRIP

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 21.—Lowndes county tobacco growers are scheduled to receive in the aggregate about $20,000 more on their 1934 crop through the sale of surplus scrip.

The scrip is being sold to Carolina growers who have more tobacco than they have scrip and the price is 5 cents per pound. R. E. Miller, county agent, has already received checks to the amount of $5,000 of this extra money which is being distributed among the growers contributing to the pool.

ATLANTA, GA., OCT. 22, 1934.

AN INSPIRING ADDRESS

The ceremonies staged at ancient William and Mary College, in Virginia, incident to the bestowal upon President Roosevelt of a degree of doctor of laws, served a far more valuable purpose than to refresh the minds of Americans on the heroic struggles and glorious conquests of the leaders of thought and government in the hundred-year period before and after the war for independence.

In his masterly address, President John Stewart Bryan applies to the present the principles and ideals of the days when the nation was in the making, earnestly expressing his belief that "the blood and background that transfused this nation in 1776 are still present and potent here, and need only the liberating touch of leadership to be set free once more for the nation's welfare. The president himself has shown how revivifying that spirit is when informed imagination grapples courageously with the problems of life, whether those problems be despotism in 1776, or depression in 1933."

In the inspiring atmosphere of Williamsburg's re-created Duke of Gloucester street, termed by President Roosevelt in his address the most historic avenue in America, Mr. Bryan, who becomes president of William and Mary after a long and distinguished career as one of the south's outstanding editors, pointed the moral for the present generation in the leadership of the long list of notable names on the rolls of the Institution — included among them being Presidents Jefferson, Monroe and Tyler and scores of others who aided in building the foundations of the great nation into which the United States has grown.

The recitation of these names is not for self-laudation, President Bryan says, but—

Because they represent an early parallel of exactly the same difficulties and problems which confront our nation today.

But those creators had something more than learning, and their faces were turned to the past only for examples.

It was in the present they acted, and it was for the future they built.

The distinguished leader of southern thought emphasizes that—

To the mind of that period, the way to destroy evil was by resistance, not by acquiescence.

The patriots who burned Jamestown under Nathaniel Bacon, and who bombarded their own homes in Yorktown to frustrate George III, knew nothing and cared nothing for the philosophy of surrender.

They broke the bands of philosophic doubt, and came to grips with reality; they cast off the nightmare of dreadful impotence, and, struggling against all throttling fears, they awoke to find themselves masters of a new world.

They made for mankind not a theory, but a discovery, and that discovery is still true and operative.

This is the message of confidence and optimism that William and Mary, out of the richness of its glorious history of more than 250 fruitful years, sends to the nation as it bestows a high honorary degree upon a president who measures up in full extent to the great nation-builders of the past who gained their education within its walls.

Mr. Bryan is finely qualified by ability, experience and background to follow in the footsteps of the great educators who have headed William and Mary during its nearly three centuries of existence. Erudite and profound in his thinking, his newspaper career has kept him in touch with, and abreast of, the times. He has for many years exhibited an intense interest in educational matters. He succeeded his father as editor and publisher of the Richmond Times-Dispatch and is now president and publisher of the Richmond News-Leader. He was a member of the war council of the Y. M. C. A. in 1917 and 1918.

For several years he served as rector of the board of visitors of the University of Virginia and vice rector of William and Mary. He is an active member of the Virginia Society of the Cincinnati, of Delta Psi and Phi Beta Kappa, by all of which organizations he has been honored at various times.

No institution in America has a nobler record than William and Mary, and the profound and inspiring address of President Bryan assures that under his leadership it will go on to still greater service not only to the youth of the south but to the nation itself.

MEXICO AND THE CHURCH

It is not probable that Mexico will follow the suggestion of Luis Enrique Erro, member of the house of deputies, that the nation become atheistic, and the people be taught that "God is a myth, a word, a grotesque thing."

The tendency to such extremes of utterances is an unfortunate feature of religious controversies such as the one that has raged in Mexico for several years. Every opportunity is seized to voice appeals to prejudice and passion, and only harm results to both the church and the government.

The present controversy in Mexico arose from the fact that the church and the state were too closely allied. When either attempts to interfere with the actions, or infringe on the prerogatives, of the other, only trouble can result.

The United States has learned this lesson through painful experience several times during its existence, the latest instance being the unfortunate meddling of some church leaders in politics incident to their blind support of the eighteenth amendment. Both the church and the nation suffered as the result.

The people of Mexico, as the result of the long drawn out contest between the church and the state, are undoubtedly in a jittery condition over the question of religion. Such a situation is always dangerous, with the constant possibility of violence resulting from inflamed passions.

It is not probable, however, that the Mexicans will go to the extremes suggested by the chamber of deputies. The people of the country, as a whole, are far too religious in nature to desert the teachings of the Scriptures and, as is urged, "open their minds to see the world in the light of science, barring the church that makes them believe in God."

The Latins are intense and fervid in their revolts, but they have had religion ingrained into them for too many centuries to permit them to turn their backs on Christianity at the urgency of selfish political leaders. Other Latin peoples have gone through the stress and trial of divorcing church and state, with eventual benefit to both. Undoubtedly that is the course the present unfortunate situation in Mexico will take.

CHINA'S TAX ON SILVER

In placing a tax on silver exports China is seeking to protect its currency from the effects of the new American policy toward the metal that is the basis of Chinese currency.

This policy is of no great importance in relation to the dollar, having been adopted chiefly to satisfy the silver producers of western states. The value of the dollar is not directly affected by the value of silver.

The real purpose of the policy promulgated some months ago is not to affect the currency, but to raise the price of silver, thus benefiting those who produce and deal in it.

The situation is very different as regards China. There silver has the same relation to the currency as gold does in the United States. With the high price offered by the American government for the white metal—a price considerably above that to be found anywhere else in the world—silver stores began to be shipped out of China and a deflationary effect upon the currency of the country immediately followed.

Hence the new export tax placed on silver by the Nanking government, making it impossible for those who own it in China to ship it out for profitable sale. Under the tax these holders can sell it in China and get a greater return.

Just how effective the tax will be in preventing the exports of silver from China remains to be seen. In no country in the world is smuggling carried on to so large an extent, and it will not be difficult for the owners of silver to slip it out if they care to do so.

The American administration probably approves of the new tax because the purpose of our new policy was to increase the value of silver, and not to disturb Chinese currency values.

It is not probable that the step taken by the Chinese government will have much effect either here or in that country.

When some orators get through with the meat in their subject, they start on baloney.

There's one thing about women's millinery. Their hats are not yet big enough to talk through.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Blood Feud.

The Times learns the following from Constantinople. A ferocious battle recently took place between 300 storks on the one side and some 60 eagles on the other in the neighborhood of Brussa. A few days before the battle half a dozen eagles attacked a stork's nest, killed the old ones and carried off the young storks as prisoners. The next day the eagles attacked a second stork's nest, but this time they did not get the young, as these had been carried to safety by the old ones immediately after the dramatic raid on the other nest the day before. In the meanwhile all the storks of the neighborhood gathered in Brussa.

Thousands of people were in the streets to see the extraordinary sight. The storks apparently worked according to a perfect plan of campaign. From all sides the young birds had been brought to the general reunion and they were placed in a near-by forest under the guard of the bravest storks and the best battlers of the lot. When this had been done, about 300 storks, flying in battle formation, went in search of the eagles. They found them and a bloody fight ensued. The storks were victorious in the end, although they had heavy losses to book. They lost 12 in killed and 20 wounded. But the eagles had 21 of their number massacred and about 12 more severely damaged.

The eagles haven't been seen in the district since. This might mean that the eagles have gone for reinforcements. This the dispatch doesn't say.

Japan's Denial.

The spokesman for the Japanese foreign office denies the reports that his country has a secret alliance with Germany, which is good news, if true. If true, I say, because the German press makes no denial at all, but to the contrary is now right in the midst of a campaign to vaunt the virtues, merits, power and wisdom of the Japanese people and their rulers. Japan is being held up as a model for Germany. For Japan, so says the Cologne Illustrated Journal, has shown us not to be afraid to take the right course when war is the only argument to settle a dispute.

In the meantime, and this is undeniable, there is a slight improvement in the far east. Japan isn't ready for war, say the French and Russian papers. Russia isn't ready, say the Japanese papers. Well, here's hoping neither of them ever will be.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

JUST ANOTHER NOTION ABOUT SOME OLD WHEEZES.

Whenever I turn over an idea or suggestion with the thought of handing it out I ask myself two questions, to wit, first, is it likely to do anybody any good? Second, will it do any harm? Or I should say I take the matter to Father Hippokrates and get his advice about it.

Today's crazy notion, then, simple folk, is just this: From considerable browsing in current medical literature and indefatigable picking of medical colleagues, I have conceived the idea that a daily ration of rather more than the essential amount of vitamin A is advisable for any one who suffers from bronchial asthma, emphysema, bronchiectasis or chronic bronchitis. Remember, this is just my surmise, and nothing more. Take it or leave it. All I know is that you can't get enough vitamin A to do you harm.

Not only cod liver oil but other fish liver oils and liver itself, whether from fish, fowl, ox, calf, pig, is a good source of vitamin A. Butter milk, cream, cheese, and eggs, especially egg yolks, are excellent sources of this vitamin. Kidney is a good source of vitamin A. Carrots, raw or cooked, escarole, spinach raw or cooked, peas, tomato, prunes, cantaloupe, orange, banana, squash, pumpkin, salmon, herring, halibut, beef fat, raw cabbage, lettuce, romaine, kale, green peppers, sweet potato, yellow corn, turnip, watercress, pineapple, dandelion greens, beet greens, wheat, wheat bran, string beans, Brussels sprouts, celery leaves, are all good sources of vitamin A.

From way back it has been recognized that cod liver oil is often helpful in the treatment of the various wheezes mentioned, but we didn't know why it was helpful. According to my notion, it is because cod liver oil is so rich in vitamin A.

Nutrition investigators now believe that the yellow coloring matter in carrots and in butter and milk and many other items above mentioned is the precursor or forerunner of vitamin A. This yellow coloring matter is called carotene. In plants it is green coloring matter. If the food material is naturally yellow or green, it is quite likely a carrier of vitamin A.

The results of deficiency of vitamin A are difficult to diagnose, that is, where there is only a partial shortage of this vitamin in the patient's diet. A large deficiency or complete lack of vitamin A is now known to be the cause of xerophthalmia, a peculiar dryness of the eyes, lack of tears, and consequent ulceration of the cornea. Night blindness is another condition due to insufficient vitamin A—the patient finds it difficult to see well in the dark or on a dull day or after dusk. Children who do not receive enough vitamin A fail to develop immunity against the cri. There is some ground for the belief that adenoids and enlarged tonsils in children may be due to insufficient vitamin A.

Cooking and canning do not destroy vitamin A. Vitamin A is stored in the body for longer periods than other vitamins can be stored. It is stored in the liver. Predatory animals instinctively eat the liver of prey first.

ton, after writing a particularly appealing verse, would state that "Miss Alice" had told him to "write it that way."

She not only enjoyed the admiration, esteem and devotion of the editorial workers and other employes of The Constitution, but had a host of friends in all sections of the state.

Miss Wilson was a devout member of the First Methodist church and was a prominent figure in the business women's class of that church, taking an active interest in its activities.

She is survived by a niece, Miss Elizabeth Wilson, of Hollywood, Cal., formerly of Atlanta and New York, and her cousins, Dr. and Mrs. Guy King, Miss Louise King and Guy King Jr., of Chattanooga, Tenn., formerly of Atlanta.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON.

HELP WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Another thing President Roosevelt has in mind for business is the idea of financing relief expenses on a practical basis.

Don't raise your eyebrows if he soon announces a plan of selling from door-to-door a bond issue which will fully cover the relief outlay. That is, you will buy a bond, like a Victory or Liberty bond, the proceeds of which will pay the excess budgetary requirement—in other words, the care of the needy. In such circumstances, few people who have money could refrain from buying. It would be a patriotic duty.

Under such circumstances the ordinary government budget could be balanced. The New Deal could be put on a bankable basis. Confidence in government securities would be re-establishd firmly. The limit of feared excesses would be defined.

SOLUTION It seems to be Mr. Roosevelt's own idea, growing out of the conferences he has been holding with businessmen. Few have found any objection to it, but the White House apparently wants to analyze it before speaking publicly.

The unnoticed campaign of the home loan crowd is an obvious and not a very good experiment in that direction. They have decided to ring door bells to solicit financial support (at 3 per cent interest) for the home expansion theory. It is supposed to be a test for the grander idea of selling New Deal bonds to the public.

The experiment probably will fail. Few people care whether building is expanded, but the imagination of the country could easily be swayed by a program of buying relief bonds.

That might get things started.

REPORT On the private desk of Donald Richberg lies an unopened confidential report. It was placed there a week ago. Mr. Richberg has not had time to read it. Only three or four persons in the highest inner circles have had a peep at it.

The report was drafted by one of the keenest analysts in the New Deal family. When Mr. Richberg peruses it he will find it packed with figures and facts. Some of the report will not be pleasant reading for one who has played so large a role in NRA as Mr. Richberg.

The subject of the report is that inner administration bugaboo—the consumer. Its tightly-written pages contain the first full-length study of the consumer under the New Deal.

PROGRAM This report contains more than a mere analysis of the burning consumer problem. One conclusion is that the income groups between $2,000 and $10,000 a year form the greater part of the consuming public. This group is said to comprise between a third and a half of all gainfully employed workers. Their purchases account for two-thirds of all retail buying. The report asserts the consumer has been neglected; that his interests have too often been subordinated to those of business and labor.

It is not sparing in its criticism of some prominent New Dealers. The charge is made that consumer boards of AAA and NRA have been thrown for a loss on vital policy issues.

BRASS Telegraph wires vibrated last week with this message to democratic national headquarters from a western state:

"Campaign going splendidly. Senator safe. Congressmen safe. However, understand you have some money there. We want our share."

It was filed in the committee's newest brass waste-basket.

APLOMB Bland Attorney-General Cummings never loses his savoir faire at his lengthy press conferences. His poise was never better illustrated than when two persistent newsmen tackled him the other day.

One wanted publication of the names of all politicians who have interceded with the justice department asking clemency for gangsters. It is known the department has an interesting file of such appeals.

The other asked Cummings to state his views on payment of ransom to kidnapers by families or friends of the victims. Legally, the payment of such ransom may be construed as encouraging kidnaping.

But Cummings turned aside both embarrassing questions by jotting them down as excellent topics for discussion at his forthcoming crime conference. He then topped this by asking the newsmen to appear there and state their views.

HOPE The only three New Dealers who have money (at least two of them have) secretly purchased a farm journal about a week ago. It will be operated hereafter as a New Deal publication.

Incidentally, Bernarr MacFadden is about to burst out with a national political weekly. It will be on the news stands the first of the year.

Monkeys Fight for Bananas Where the River Sands Are Rich in Gold

By Robert Quillen

When a man has found the thing of greatest worth—the summum bonum of life—he will sacrifice everything else to obtain it.

The problem is to find the one thing worth more than all else.

In the Bible story of creation, the first possession man obtained, and therefore by inference the one he needed most, was a woman. She was not called a "helpmate," but a help meet—i. e., a help suitable.

Ecclesiastes makes the point clearer: "Live joyfully with the wife whom thou lovest all the days of the life . . . he hath given thee . . . for that is thy portion in this life and in thy labor which thou takest under the sun."

The greatest of pleasures is a natural pleasure—one that gratifies a natural appetite. And since the ways of Nature are just, the reward of life that is most desirable should be equally available to all men of high and low degree.

So it is. Only the rich can feed artificial and cultivated appetites, but the poor have equal opportunity to obtain the blessing that is greatest of all.

Indeed, the poor, if they are not too poor, are more fortunate than the rich.

For nothing else cements a comradeship as a common experience does, and this is especially true of hardship, struggle and danger.

Other things being equal, we prefer comrades of our own race, our own section, our own calling. It is community of interest.

The rich, in many instances, have little in common. The husband has one interest, the wife another. Sharing nothing that would make them comrades, they are merely acquaintances who board at the same place.

The poor who plan, sacrifice, endure, hope, play, struggle and win together are comrades in spirit and their comradeship is their greatest joy.

Men who have missed such comradeship may doubt its worth, as the complacent ignorant doubt the worth of learning, but it is merely another case of grapes being sour when out of reach.

If men could see the truth, there would be no sweating after fame and fortune and power until each had found and won the woman whose comradeship would make any kind of life enjoyable.

Professional Models Assail Debs For 'Chiseling' on Their Territory

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—New York's professional models, who pirouette before society's notables, are themselves to go on the picket line—against society itself.

The titian-haired Gertrude Mayer, Fifth avenue model mentor, tapped a trimly-shod foot indignantly tonight as she protested against Park avenue debs and sub-debs whom she accused of taking jobs away from the professionals.

Miss Mayer's complaint against these society girls is twofold:

1. They are taking modeling jobs not only in charity fashion shows, she said, but in the shops as well, cutting into their poorer sisters' means of livelihood.

2. They are not food models, and therefore they are lowering the standards of the business.

"They don't know how to do justice to the garments they are showing," said Miss Mayer. "They don't know how to walk. They have no balance. They don't know what to do with their hands. They don't know how to lift their clothes and show them off properly."

Miss Mayer, who came from Paris and eight years ago founded what she claimed was the first training school for models in the United States, said she planned to call a meeting of professional models next week for a discussion of plans to combat the "debutante menace."

She will propose a personal appeal to society leaders, and if that fails the professional models will be asked to picket the next fashion show.

Miss Mayer estimated that "easily a thousand" jobs have been filled during the last year by society girls, "none of whom seems to realize that modeling has become a specialized field."

"They go into a retail store," she said, "and they say, 'Look here, now I have a big following. I am well connected socially, I belong to various clubs and I can bring you a good clientele.' And the stores hire them."

Only professional models, who have practiced walking long hours with the Manhattan telephone book on their heads, know that there is a different walk for each type of garment, said Miss Mayer.

Asked why society girls turned to modeling, she expressed a belief it was because they suddenly discovered it was "a lucrative business, they like to wear good clothes, and it gives them an opportunity to make new contacts."

MOREHOUSE TEACHER SEEKS PH. D. DEGREE

Walter R. Chivers, professor of sociology at Morehouse College, is at New York University this year working toward his Ph.D. degree in the field of sociology. He received his A.B. degree from Morehouse College in 1919, and his A.M. degree from New York University in 1929. He is a graduate of the New York School of Social Work and has done graduate work at the summer sessions of the University of Chicago and also the University of Wisconsin.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO IRVING COHEN, 43

Irving Cohen, 43, well-known Atlantan, a salesman for the Regent Shoe Corporation, died shortly after midnight at Grady hospital of an acute heart attack. He drove his car to the hospital from the Ansley hotel, where he made his home, and asked for medical aid at 11:45 o'clock and was admitted. He died 25 minutes later, while under treatment.

Mr. Cohen is survived by two children, Jack and Shirley Cohen, 14-year-old twins; three brothers, Berry, Sol and Jake Cohen, and two sisters, Mrs. A. B. Reisman and Mrs. Frank Rosenbluth, of New York. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Sam Greenberg & Co.

ing, of Washington, D. C., is likely to become first vice president.

Law today forecast an intensive campaign to "put bank reserves to work" and predicted the bankers would cast aside their own "selfish interests" to concentrate upon promoting the recovery program by "removing timidity and fear."

"This will be the most important convention we ever held and we've been having them for 60 years," he said. "It will be worth more to the country. We're going to try to be constructive.

"The delegates are all of one accord in their desire to be just as helpful as they can in the movement to get the country back on a sound business basis.

"We all believe we're going to have recovery. Conditions throughout the world are getting better. It will not be a case of any one nation emerging alone; we're coming out of the depression together. Bankers are going steadily ahead and planning for the future on that basis.

"Our banks are in excellent condition. Reserves are large and the supply of credit is abundant. We have plenty of money. The need of the moment is to put it to work."

consideration be given to Mrs. Robinson.

"Speaking for myself, I think that Mrs. Stoll made that statement shortly after her return when she was in a weakened condition," William said. "There is no doubt, however, that all the guilty must be punished."

He said that suggestions had been made that Mrs. Stoll and her husband, Berry V. Stoll, and her mother, Mrs. William Shallcross Speed, slip away to the country for a rest in seclusion.

He added that he did not know whether they had left or not.

Sightseers jammed the roads leading to the Stoll residence in Lime Kiln lane, eager to view the scenes of Kentucky's most vivid crime.

Telephone service to the house was temporarily suspended.

Meanwhile Assistant United States Attorney Claude Hudgins, who presented the government's case to the grand jury yesterday, said that every effort would be made to keep Mrs. Robinson's bond at its present figure, $50,000. "We think that's low enough," he said.

In default of this sum, Mrs. Robinson is confined to the Jefferson county jail. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Althauser, of Nashville, are in town and visit her frequently.

amination showed no change in his condition, and the doctor commented he appeared to be "all right."

Sheriff John H. Curtiss went ahead with plans to cover the base of the 30-foot "bull pen," in which Hauptmann is allowed to walk, with a fine mesh screen. This, he said, would permit Mrs. Hauptmann to approach her husband more closely than she was allowed to yesterday.

She expects to visit Hauptmann again tomorrow, together with his attorney, James M. Fawcett.

The defense counsel, Sheriff Curtiss said, expressed himself pleased with the accommodations provided for Hauptmann, despite the refusal to permit him to read.

Arraignment Saturday.

Arraignment of Hauptmann on the murder charge will not take place before Saturday, in the sheriff's opinion. That and Monday are the regular days for such procedure, he pointed out.

Attorney-General David T. Wilentz and his assistants will confer on the case in Trenton tomorrow, preventing arraignment at that time.

Flemington residents exhibited mild interest in Hauptmann's presence. Some paused to gaze at the courthouse and jail on the way to and from church, but few lingered. Visiting motorists also were few, slackening their speed to glance at the buildings.

Possibility of a change of venue for the trial because of any potential local feeling—Flemington is 10 miles from the scene of the kidnaping—appeared remote.

RULES MAY LIMIT DEBATE ON BONUS

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Debate on bonus payment or any other subject brought before the American Legion convention will be limited to two hours if the convention adopts a report which its rules committee drafted today.

The proposal to limit debate, the time being the same as allowed at previous conventions, was announced as the credentials committee reported 1,189 delegates accredited, with others still to arrive. It was expected there would be 1,200 or more delegates by the time the convention is called to order tomorrow.

Under the rules committee recommendation, each individual speaker would be limited to five minutes on the floor, with only two speakers for any one state department. The floor will be allowed only once on a subject to an individual, except chairmen of committees who will be allowed to speak as often as necessary in discussion of their reports.

These rules, if they are adopted by the convention, can be superseded only by a vote of two-thirds of the accredited delegates.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Some Deductions on Vanderbilt Row

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The professional experience of your correspondent has not yet included a day in court at the trial of the Whitney-Vanderbilt suit over the custody of Mrs. Vanderbilt's little girl, Gloria. However, some of the evidence against Mrs. Vanderbilt has been disclosed in the papers and the implications are mildly alarming.

It is reported, for instance, that a servant of Mrs. Vanderbilt took the witness stand to say that she kept a scandalous book in her residence. Presumably this fact, if it is a fact, was mentioned by way of indicating that Mrs. Vanderbilt is unfit to mother her own child.

If the possession of a dirty book can be said to bear upon the right of a parent to supervise the training of a child, there are thousands of mothers and fathers in this country just now whose possession of their own progeny remains undisturbed only for lack of formal accusation and proof. Your correspondent knows parents who have been reading a recent book called "Appointment in Samara" and would have no trouble at all scaring up a plurality in an average gathering in favor of his opinion that this is a wantonly and unnecessarily filthy book. To keep the judging on a plane of fairness, he would agree to bar from the jury all members of the clergy but would have to insist that the defense agree to exclude all degenerates. The one group would be sure to condemn it and the other to hail it, each according to its own predilections.

All Hands Amazed By This Volume

Of all the persons with whom your correspondent has discussed "Appointment in Samara," not one has failed to marvel at the audacity of the writer and the publishers in putting on paper for general circulation such writing as John O'Hara wrote and Harcourt-Bruce brought out. Nevertheless, "Appointment in Samara" is a best seller of the moment and every household which is host to a copy is subject to the same accusation that was brought against Mrs. Vanderbilt.

This is not to argue that everyone who does read the current dirty book, whether it be "Appointment in Samara" or "Finley Wrenn," an earlier and, if possible, nastier novel of the present year, is a low character and unfit for the moral responsibilities of parenthood. The literary taste of the public is distinctly adventurous and people seem able to read smut without loss of character. They would be pretty weak if they couldn't. Good parents wade through such works and remain about as they were before and the kids get about the same sort of raising that they would have received if Dickens had been their favorite author.

Good Parents Take a Drink

Good parents also get drunk and have been doing so for the last 15 years and the children in sophisticated families have learned to tolerate such conduct and pursue their own way with dignity. The soused father formerly was the exclusive childhood experience of the tenement youngster, but social customs changed when prohibition came and the well-kept children of the stylish suburbs presently learned to identify the old man's foolish skylarking and their mother's high-pitched babble with the cocktail shaker and the orange rinds on the drainboard of the kitchen sink.

To seize all the children from all the parents who have been conspicuously plastered in the home in the last 15 years would be to double the capacity of all the orphan asylums in the country.

For Mrs. Vanderbilt's own sake your correspondent hopes that it cannot be proved that she attended the current edition of the Ziegfeld Follies, which was running lask week, in Chicago, and confessed to enjoyment of the same. A dirty book somehow is less offensive than a filthy stage show, although it would run into considerable wordage to explain just why. The Ziegfeld Follies, with particular reference to two of Miss Fannie Brice's scenes, is the dirtiest show your correspondent has ever seen outside the Streets of Paris concession at the Century of Progress.

Chicago Hails Dirtiest Show

Yet in Chicago, the original home of the League for Decency, which is harassing the moving picture business with boycotts and priggishness, the Ziegfeld Follies was playing to a packed house and enthusiastic acclaim. The filth grew riper as the show progressed but Miss Brice was never more appreciated than in her astonishingly raw exaggeration of the dirtiest scene of "Sailor Beware," which was the dirtiest show in New York last year.

The courts had better take it easy until things take a turn.

To read a filthy book, to get tight or laugh at a filthy show is no evidence of moral turpitude these days. It is a custom of the country.

RITES IN TRIBUTE TO DEAD PRECEDE LEGION'S MEETING

Legion have sent delegates here with definite instructions to vote for immediate payment, which the government has estimated would require an outlay of two billions of dollars.

The universal draft would put men and money under the rule in wartime, with a "freezing" of prices at a pre-war level to prevent excess profits and post-war deflation.

A definite break with the Roosevelt administration on some matters of Legion policy appeared likely, in view of caustic replies which Commander Hayes and Mrs. William H. Biester, national president of the Legion auxiliary, made to the president's address last week in Roanoke, Virginia.

At Portland, Ore., in 1932, the Legion voted 1,167 to 109 for cash bonus payment, but the demand was not pressed because of subsequent financial conditions in the country.

The bonus question was not discussed on the convention floor at Chicago last year after President Roosevelt, in a personal appearance, told the veterans the government could not make the payment at that time. The president was not expected to appear at this convention.

Commander Hayes said there would be no "steam-roller" tactics on any question at this convention, and majority and minority reports on the bonus and other subjects were expected to be presented.

The Legion's annual parade will be held Tuesday along 25 blocks of broad, palm-lined Biscayne boulevard, built at the very edge of Biscayne bay. All downtown Miami streets will be closed to vehicular traffic at dawn Tuesday, and remain closed until the parade is finished. At Chicago last year the parade required 10 hours to pass the reviewing stand.

The Legion's fun organization, the "40 and 8" Society, will hold its annual parade Monday night.

A drizzling rain during the afternoon kept many of the visitors indoors, but other roamed the streets in defiance of the weather.

The convention headquarters hotel was placarded with banners urging the candidacy of Frank N. Belgrano Jr., San Francisco banker, for national commander, and the selection of St. Louis, Mo., for the 1935 convention.

In addition to Belgrano, ex-candidates for commander were Forrest Cooper, of Indianola, Miss.; Daniel J. Doherty, of Woburn, Mass.; Ray Murphy, of Ida Grove, Iowa; and Neary, of Corona, N. Y., and Vilas H. Whaley, of Racine, Wis.

The new commander is to be selected Thursday, the closing day of the convention.

There are two candidates for national president of the Legion auxiliary, Mrs. A. C. Carlson, of Willmar, Minn., and Mrs. Malcolm Douglas, of Seattle, Wash.

REGISTRATION LIST FOR MOTORCADE WILL OPEN TODAY

drive to Jacksonville to see Georgia play the University of Florida on Saturday afternoon.

Lunch at Milledgeville.

The motorcade will start from the state capitol at 8 o'clock on the morning of November 1. Luncheon will be part of the Milledgeville program, where also, the official Savannah delegation will meet the motorcade. The main Savannah party will leave the port city at 3:30 Thursday afternoon, driving north to Statesboro, where they will meet the 'caders from the northern part of the state and escort them to Savannah and the Hotel DeSoto, official headquarters.

It is probable that 1,000 cars will be in line when the motorcade is finally complete. In addition to the 200 allotted to Atlanta, there will be cars from all cities along the highway, as well as large delegations from other cities which, while not actually on the "Four Capitals" route, are served by feeder roads.

Athens, Macon and probably Augusta will send such delegations and there will be many others when the caravan is finally made up.

Don't forget—registration begins this morning promptly at 9 o'clock. And you may register either with Secretary Jack Strouss at the Atlanta Motor Club headquarters on West Peachtree just below Baker, or on the sixth floor of The Constitution building.

CHEST WORKERS TO RALLY TONIGHT ON EVE OF APPEAL

generally are alive to the increased need this year. We must give, not as we have heretofore, but more generously than ever before. We look for a rally tonight that will give impetus to the greatest campaign the Atlanta Community Chest has ever known."

Quota is $400,000.

The individual gifts campaign starting Tuesday will be to fill a quota of $400,000 for the Chest's budget for 1935. The first report luncheon will be held at the Athletic Club at 12:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, after which there will be daily luncheons until the conclusion of the campaign. Progress of the campaign also will be reported by radio. Miss Rhoda Kaufman, secretary of the Family Welfare Society, will be in charge of a three-station program at 9:30 Tuesday morning, and will direct daily broadcasts throughout the campaign, beginning Wednesday. Chairman Turner will report over the radio each evening on the progress of the campaign.

The rally tonight will be the climax of the campaign in the advance gifts and the groups division, in which leaders worked quietly among organizations where their efforts were unusually successful.

Speakers have already been calling attention of the citizens to the splendid record among every one of the Chest agencies, with each of the 36 making definite contributions to relieve need, raise family standards, insure educational opportunities, safeguard health, and make many other social contributions to the welfare of the community.

The campaign this year is headed by Dr. Herman L. Turner as campaign chairman, with Joe Horacek and Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright as vice chairmen. George T. Marchmont, chairman, and W. A. Dobson, vice chairman, will head the men's individual campaign, and Mrs. S. F. Boykin, chairman, and Mrs. Oscar Palmour, vice chairman, will head the women's division. Robert F. Maddox, Milton Bell and Charles Currie headed the advance gifts division, with H. M. Powell in charge of the branch-house division. Mr. Maddox, president, is aided by James L. Wells, finance chairman; T. Guy Woolford, budget chairman, and J. P. Allen, public relations chairman, who are vice presidents.

Religious Problem Is Taken to Hitler

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Germany's thorny religious problem, intensified by the secession of the opposition at synod from Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller's nazi church dictatorship, was tossed into the lap of Chancellor Hitler today.

Karl Koch, who read the synod's declaration of independence yesterday from a church pulpit, today submitted a resolution to the government declaring the synod, claiming 80 per cent of all Protestants in the reich, forever free from Mueller's rule.

Tuesday was expected to mark the turn of events when Hitler, taking the oath of fidelity from Mueller, will deliver a highly important address on the fight in the church.

It was reported from various church circles that Hitler will declare the government's stand based on reports submitted to him from government officials.

N. Y. RELIEF EXPENSE SET AT $400,000,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The cost of public unemployment relief in New York state from November 1, 1931, when the state began its aid to municipalities, to September 1, 1934, was approximately $400,000,000, exclusive of federal CWA expenditures, the report of the state temporary emergency relief administration to the governor and legislature showed today.

BANKS' DEPOSITS RISE IN GEORGIA

Insurance Act Credited With Bringing Increase of $23,000,000.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Deposits in 257 of Georgia's licensed commercial banks increased more than $23,000,000 from December 30, 1933, to June 30, 1934, according to an announcement made here today by Chairman Crowley, of the federal deposit insurance corporation.

The report covers 90 per cent of licensed banks of the state. Commenting on the figures, Chairman Crowley said:

"I believe the confidence engendered by deposit insurance has been an immediate factor in promoting this substantial increase in bank deposits of Georgia."

Among other significent figures shown in the report of the condition of the isured banks of Georgia were loans and investments totaling $25,029,000 and cash and due from banks, including balances wtih the federal reserve bank of Atlanta, amounting to $91,542,000.

Banking houses, furniture and fixtures of the state were shown to be valued at $14,394,000.

Deposits Increase.

Total deposits in these banks as of June 30, 1934, were $295,054,000 as compared with a figure of $271,863,000 on December 30, last year. The total of capital stock and other items of capital account in the banks was shown to be $58,455,000 by tabulation.

More than 2,500 employes, including officers, directors and persons employed on a part-time basis, are engaged in the banking business of the state, it was revealed by figures asked for as a part of the report from which the insurance corporation built up its abstract.

According to banking officials here, the abstract is much more detailed than previous pictures of the nation's banking system. It was compiled on the basis of reports received by the federal reserve board, the office of the comptroller of the currency, and the F. D. I. C.

Detailed Statement.

A more detailed statement of Georgia banks during this period follows:

Total loans and discounts of 54 national bank were $98,297,000; 29 state banks members of the federal reserve, $22,632,000; 177 state banks not members of the federal reserve (including one Morris Plan bank, one bank which failed to report and one report not received owing to voluntary liquidation), $30,203,000, and all banks, $151,132,000.

Total United States government securities for 54 national banks were $54,603,000; 26 state banks members of the federal reserve, $5,341,000; 177 state banks not members of federal reserve (including one Morris Plan bank, one bank which failed to report and one report not received owing to liquidation), $4,036,000; all banks, $33,980,000.

Total of other bonds, stocks and securities owned for 54 national banks were $24,895,000; 26 state banks members of the federal reserve, $4,418,000; 177 state banks not members of the federal reserve (including one Morris Plan bank, one bank which failed to report and one report not received owing to liquidation), $6,366,000.

Total cash in vault and balances with other banks of 54 national banks were $52,344,000; 26 state banks members of the federal reserve, $9,190,000; 177 state banks not members of the federal reserve (including one Morris Plan bank, one bank which failed to report and one report not received owing to voluntary liquidation), $13,098,000, and 257 banks altogether, $74,542,000.

Total assets of 54 national banks were $258,633,000; 26 state banks members of the federal reserve, $49,050,000; 177 state banks not members of the federal reserve (including one Morris Plan bank, one bank which failed to report, and one report not received owing to voluntary liquidation), $60,338,000, and all banks $368,021,000.

Total liabilities of 54 national banks were $258,633,000; 26 state banks members of the federal reserve, $49,050,000; 177 state banks not members of the federal reserve (including one Morris Plan bank, and one bank which failed to report, and one report not received owing to voluntary liquidation), $60,338,000, and all banks $368,021,000.

One bank with total deposits of $1,720,000 failed to report.

No separate figures bearing on the condition of Atlanta banks alone were available.

314 TENNESSEE BANKS HAVE $37,000,000 GAIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—An increase of more than $37,000,000 in deposits of 314 Tennessee banks in the first six months of this year was reported today by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The report, covering 96 per cent of the licensed banks in the state, showed that total deposits in these institutions on June 30, 1934, were $316,017,000, compared with $278,566,000 on December 30, 1933.

The reports of the condition of the insured commercial banks of Tennessee showed loans and investments amounting to $266,221,000 and cash and due from banks, including balances with the federal reserve bank, totaling $96,708,000.

Capital stock and other items of capital account were shown to be $50,378,000. Buildings, furniture and fixtures were valued at $13,023,000.

SHARP GAIN REPORTED IN FLORIDA DEPOSITS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Deposits in 145 of Florida's licensed commercial banks were reported by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation today to have increased more than $30,000,000 from December 30, 1933, to June 30, this year.

The report covered 98 per cent of the licensed banks of the state. Total deposits in these banks as of June 30, were $208,725,000 compared with $178,377,000 in December last year. The total of capital stock and other items of capital account in the bank was listed at $30,722,000.

Pacific Air Service Foreseen by Bullitt

VLADIVOSTOK, U. S. S. R., Oct. 21.—(AP)—William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to Russia, who sailed for Japan yesterday en route to America, said he was confident an air service across the Pacific ocean to the soviet republics would be established soon.

"I am prepared to be the first passenger on such an air line, which would connect two great and friendly nations," Bullitt said.

The ambassador added a United States consulate would be established at Vladivostok within six months.

GREAT ICY PLATEAU DISCOVERED BY BYRD

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Oct. 19.—(Delayed)—(AP)—(Via Mackay Radio.)—Tractor No. 1 with a crew of four was back at Little America today after a pioneer journey eastward to the Edsel Ford range, reporting discovery of an extensive ice-ridden plateau extending far to the south.

Under Chief Aviation Pilot Harold I. June, the party set forth September 27 to penetrate the glaciated wastes of a section of Marie Byrd land, discovered by Admiral Byrd during a flight in 1929 and claimed for the United States.

The newly-discovered plateau rolls between the Rockefeller mountains and King Edward VII land and the Edsel Ford range, rising unbrokenly to the south.

New ground-control points for mapping were fixed by the expedition, and these were expected to shift at least two of the southern peaks of the Edsel Ford range approximately 37 miles west of their previously estimated position.

Admiral Byrd had a long conference with June and others of the expedition and the first major flight of the season probably will be launched into the new sector shortly.

U. S. TO PURCHASE IDLE FARM LANDS

5,000,000 Acres of Submarginal Tracts To Be Bought This Year.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—About 5,000,000 acres of submarginal farm land are destined by the powers-that-be to be back in the public domain before the close of the year.

Farm administration and relief officials, talking guardedly about their plans for buying land, conceded today that they had 40 projects involving the purchase of about 4,000,000 acres in various stages of completion.

They indicated these projects were in addition to the 1,000,000 acres which Harry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator, last week reported already purchased or under contract. Hopkins said the work of moving families from land taken over by the government was well under way.

All submarginal land projects approved by the land-policy section of the AAA for purchase by the surplus relief corporation are separate from ordinary land purchases for national parks, Indian reservations, wild life restoration and forestry, although some of the submarginal tracts will be used for such purposes.

Purchases to date are being made out of the original $25,000,000 fund allotted by President Roosevelt almost a year ago. An additional $50,000,000 was set aside in the $525,000,000 drouth relief appropriation of last May for land purchases, but the legality of using relief money for such land-buying has been questioned in some official circles.

Funds now allocated must be spent before June 15, 1935, the close of the present fiscal year, or revert to the treasury. At the present spending speed, however, indications were that the projects would be completed prior to that date.

Simple Rites Mark Burial of Poincare

NUBECOURT, France, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The body of Raymond Poincare, war-time president of France, rested tonight in the soil of Lorraine, which he loved so well.

It was buried beside the graves of generations of his family.

In contrast to the pomp of the national funeral yesterday, the ceremony in the village church here today was extremely simple. It was attended by country folk, but numerous leaders of France, including former President Alexandre Millerand, former Premier Herriot and Andre Tardieu, were present.

Man Seized Carrying Powder Aboard Ship

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Charged with attempting to smuggle smokeless powder aboard the liner Havana just before she sailed for Spain, Bellarminco Prado was held in $10,000 bail today by Magistrate Jonah J. Goldstein in Toombs court.

Prado was arrested last night by Detective George A. Ferguson, who said he was on Pier 8, East river, with a two-pound can of combustible powder in his possession.

The prisoner said he intended to give the powder to one of the 64 waiters on the ship, officers asserted, but he did not give the waiter's name.

"I would suggest," said the magistrate to Detective Ferguson, "that you communicate with the United States secret service and seek their help in investigating this defendant and the facts surrounding his possession and attempted delivery of the powder.

"You may even find that some connection exists between the fire on the Morro Castle and this defendant and those who are responsible for the purchase of his smokeless powder. . . ."

AAA HOLDS TO PLANS ON CITRUS AGREEMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Notwithstanding firm opposition met by the proposed marketing agreement for the Florida citrus industry, the farm administration appeared confident today its adjustment machinery will regulate shipments of the state's fruit crop now maturing.

Meanwhile, however, aids to Secretary Wallace closely guarded their plans in event growers and shippers declined to accept the pact already tentatively approved by the secretary.

Wallace, at the close of business yesterday, had received no communication from the group claiming to represent more than half the Florida crop, which at Lakeland Thursday charged bad faith by the agriculture chief and rejected the agreement.

To the contrary, a batch of some 35 telegrams had arrived urging that the agreement be made effective immediately. They came from various sections of the state citrus belt.

Until the protesting group formally makes known its position, administration officials would make no comment, except to say it was entirely up to the growers and shippers to decide whether they will sign.

However, it was plainly evident the administration was prepared to challenge a statement by the group at Lakeland that the secretary had failed to abide by promises made to a committee of Florida citrus industry representatives here in September.

DEMOCRATS PLAN RELIEF PUBLICITY

Data on Expenditures May Be Embellished by Spokesmen's Opinions.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Embellishment of the facts about expenditures of federal funds in the states—by the expression of personal opinions—was suggested to democratic candidates campaigning for next month's election in a special notice sent out by democratic national committee headquarters.

The notice, signed by Emil Hurja, assistant to Chairman Farley, was attached to some of the figures on relief funds sent to various candidates.

It was dated September 17, about the time the democratic campaign guidebook, inviting candidates to ask the committee for the information, became ready for distribution.

Only last week the committee made known that it had suspended distribution of the figures because its supply of bulletins had been exhausted.

The republicans vigorously have attacked the recital of the figures by Farley and other democratic leaders in campaign speeches and have charged the democrats were seeking to buy the election. When the G. O. P. learned that the democratic committee suspended the issuance of the figurges, its senatorial-congressional committee issued a statement saying that it must be "ashamed" of using relief fund figures for political purposes.

Referring to statements of expenditures in the various states, which have not been made public as a whole, Hurja wrote to candidates:

"The attached bulletin shows federal appropriations, segregated by departments for your state. It is believed that this information will enable you to answer inquiries made constantly on these subjects.

"You can use this any way you like: In speeches, radio talks, or newspaper interviews, embellishing the facts as set forth with your own views or opinions. . . .

"It requires only an honest and intelligent presentation of the figures available to convince any fair-minded person of the soundness of the recovery program of the Roosevelt administration.

"Your views are appreciated. Write us if there is anything that you think would be particularly helpful to you. If there are any figures that you think would be useful, that you have not had, ask us for them."

The mimeographed notice, however, cautioned the democratic candidates that the difference between "the relief expenditures and the expenditures that are in reality loans" should be "borne in mind."

Negro Women Moved To Balk Mob Violence

CHIPLEY, Fla., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Two negro women held in connection with the slaying of Lola Cannidy, 20-year-old Greenwood girl, were removed from county jail today to Fort Barrancas, at Pensacola, after hundreds of men swarmed the streets all night threatening to destroy the jail unless the prisoners were delivered.

Miss Cannidy's body was found Thursday night by a searching party, half-submerged in a pond near her home. Her head had been beaten in with a blunt instrument.

Claude Neal and the two women, Sallie and Annie Smith, his mother and aunt, were arrested near Marianna after officers said they found a blood-stained hammer and clothing in their home. Neal was taken to Pensacola Friday via Panama City after approximately 30 cars of aroused citizens bore down on one jail after another seeking the man.

WHEN YOU FEEL "ALL IN"—

GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

CRAWFORD BURTON...gentleman rider...twice winner of the Maryland Hunt Cup...dean of the strenuous sport of steeplechase riding...and a Camel smoker. Everyone is subject to strain. Hence the importance to people in every walk of life of what Mr. Burton says below about Camels.

HOUSEWIFE. Mrs. Charles Daly says: "We all know how much energy a woman has to put into housekeeping! My way of renewing energy is to smoke a Camel. Camels pick up my energy when I feel tired. They have a mild, delicate flavor that a woman likes."

SPORTSMAN. Rex Beach, famous big game fisherman and writer, says: "When I have a big fellow safely landed my next move is to light a Camel, and I feel as good as new."

TRAIN DISPATCHER. "I need healthy nerves," says Russell J. Woodman, "for there just can't be any mistakes on this job. Camels never upset my nerves. And they are full of real flavor!"

AIR HOSTESS. Marian McMichael, of American Airlines, says: "When the run is over, my first move is to light a Camel. A Camel quickly relieves any feeling of tiredness."

Have you ever tried this enjoyable way of heightening energy?

Smokers everywhere have discovered for themselves that Camels give them a delightful "energizing effect."

Here's a typical experience. Crawford Burton, the famous American steeplechase rider, is speaking: "Whether I'm tired from riding a hard race, or from the pressure and tension of a crowded business day, I feel refreshed and restored just as soon as I get a chance to smoke a Camel. So I'm a pretty incessant smoker, not only because Camels give me a 'lift' in energy, but because they taste so good! And never yet have Camels upset my nerves." Note these important points: that Camels taste so good. And that they make available your stored-up energy.

You have heard the experience of others. Science tells us that Camel's "energizing effect" has been fully confirmed. Try Camels yourself. You can smoke them constantly. For Camels are made from finer and MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS. They never taste flat...never get on your nerves.

THE LAUGHING GIRL MYSTERY

By Viola Paradise

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Sheridan Dinard, chief aid to Dr. Coe, an Egyptologist who has a private museum in New York, is hurrying up the stairs to the studio apartment of Adelaide Sayre, his fiancee, when he hears a girlish burst of laughter cut off short. He remarks to Oswald, the colored janitor, that the girl must be a blond with lavender eyes and a short upper lip. Later he laughingly says to Adelaide and Lester Wilcox, also connected with the museum, that it is easy for an archaeologist to reconstruct a girl from her laugh. A girl answering this description is found dead from a stab wound in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Coggs, who are at their country place. An Egyptian statuette, taken from Dinard's desk, had been used as a door knocker to hide a newly bored peep-hole in the Coggses' hall door. Inspector Higgins wants to arrest Dinard, but Assistant District Attorney Alby holds him back. A Florentine dagger used by the murderer is missed from the museum, and Marlin, the English caretaker, disappears. Dr. Coe, supposed to be at his country place, appears at the museum in a daze. Adelaide destroys a cerise baggage check which shows up mysteriously on her desk. A trunk with such a check is delivered to a man registered at the Hotel Astrakan as Dennis Swift, who disappears with a packet of letters taken from it. As Alby is questioning witnesses, among them Sam and Sarah Tidewell, unemployed theatrical people, Coggs practically accuses Dinard of being the murderer. Alby has Rankin make handwriting tests. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXI.

Alby said nothing, just continued to look at her.

"Listen, Mr. Alby," she continued. "Somebody stole the wedding license. Sherry just discovered it in the taxi coming down here. He thought some one was playing a joke on him. But now I see it wasn't a joke. It was part of a plot. But wedding license or no, we're going to get married tonight—"

A shrill laugh from Mr. Coggs interrupted her. "So you're in on this, too!" he cried. "And you always seemed a nice young lady!"

Alby watched Coggs through half-shut lids.

"And wouldn't it be convenient," Coggs continued sarcastically, "getting married! A wife don't have to testify against her husband! You two got it all fixed up, haven't you?"

"I think you'd better not marry him today," Alby said slowly.

"I will, I will! You can't stop me!"

"It would be simple to prevent your marriage. But you are too intelligent to make that necessary, Miss Sayre. If you still believe your fiance to be innocent—"

"He is! I'll wait outside if you won't let me wait here. And I'm not going to stay alone in my apartment tonight. He's going to stay with me."

"All right, Miss Sayre. If he does, we'll supply a proper chaperon. Meanwhile both of you go into the next room. Dr. and Mrs. Coe, too. As for you," he turned first to Wilcox and then to the Coggs, "there'll be no need to wait further. Though I'll probably call on all of you for further—shall we say co-operation?"

After the doors in the hall closed behind the Coggses, their voices were audible for some moments. "If you ask me," his wife was saying, "he don't want to marry her at all. The way he looks at her when she's not looking—"

"Oh, shut up, mamma. Why'd he kill the other girl, if he didn't want to marry this one?"

Their voices trailed off. But the trouble in Adelaide's eyes deepened as they went into the outer room.

Alby's interview with the Tidewells was brief. They didn't remember the girl Wilcox had brought. So many people dropped in. "Friends just happen in and they're likely to bring a raft of their friends with them."

Sarah Tidewell's manner was airy. "Oh, yes, we remembered. But we're not going to get them mixed up in a murder case. If we have to tell their names, we'll consult a lawyer first."

"All right. Consult him. Consult him about those rent parties of yours, while you're at it. What's the price of admission?"

Sam Tidwell turned pale. "Say, what do you think we are—"

"Cut it, Sam. He's found out about our parties. Well, what of it? We're a sort of club. Some of our friends who're lucky enough to have jobs remember the time we used to lend them money. They come down, have a cup of tea, if they want it, and a pleasant time."

"You don't sell liquor, or anything like that?"

"Certainly not. Not that we wouldn't like to. But we couldn't afford to run a speak."

"Just how do you operate your joint? Hurry up—don't stall."

Sarah Tidewell looked shrewdly at Alby. "Well, you seem white; I'll tell you the truth. People come and have all the refreshments they want free. Yes, cocktails as well as tea. They can sit around and play cards or talk, but they have a good time and come again."

"What's the price of admission?"

"There isn't any. People put what they want into a glass jar. 'To defray expenses.' Come yourself next Saturday and see. It's a club. No strangers. It's a way we can take help and have some fun without losing our pride.'

"And just how much do you make over and above your fund and your pride each week?"

Sarah replied: "We've made exactly enough to pay the rent and not quite enough to pay for food. We're glad to keep the roof over our head, and to keep the gas company from turning off the gas. We might need it as an exit cue, if our starving act gets monotonous." Her voice trembled. "You do believe me, don't you?" She paused a moment. "You know I'm telling the truth."

"Yes," Alby nodded slowly. "I do believe you. Though you've told me one lie."

She started to deny it, but shrugged her shoulders.

"All right," said Alby. "We'll not make trouble for you. But," he added sternly, "if I need to call you into court to give evidence in this murder trial, I expect the truth, loyalty or no loyalty, do you hear?"

"You'll get it, Mr. Alby."

When the Tidewells left, Alby slumped in his chair. "Well, maybe the trunk would tell some tales. And Rankin ought to be ready with those handwriting tests."

Higgins came in growling. "I suppose you still want me to leave the boy friends lay, huh? Unless Rankin finds some stuff?"

"What's lost by waiting?" was Alby's reply. "Find Marlin first, anyhow."

"I phoned headquarters. All the police cars will have his description by now, and the boys in the stations will be on the lookout. No outgoing steamers sailing tonight. We'll keep 'em covered. Other cities will be on the lookout, too. But of course he may have slunk into the country.

Rankin, the handwriting expert, entered and spread the tablets out on Alby's desk. Harrod and Higgins drew close. "Can't be sure," said Rankin. "Two words, Dennis Swift, aren't much to go by. Besides they're written by some one who was disguising his handwriting. I'd say if Sheridan Dinard didn't sign that register, Dennis Swift was a first-class counterfeiter of disguised handwriting. On the other hand, look at this '4:30 p. m.' That 'p. m.' is almost the same as the initials of Peter Marlin on this." He unfolded Marlin's typed note.

"Would you say the same man signed that note too?"

"Might have. It's hard to be certain of a single signature. And as for intials, well, what's two letters? If Dennis Swift left any other writing, it'd be diferent. Some forgeries, you know, can't be proved."

"Anything in these two," Alby selected Wilcox's and Coe's, "to indicate one of them might have forged Dennis Swift's name to make it look as if Dinard had done it?"

"Nope. This one—Cogg's—he wrote with his right hand, but it has the look of left-hand writing."

"Coggs has a water-tight alibi for last night," Harrod contributed. "So we can leave him out."

"Well, then, all I've got to say is that Dinard probably's your man, though I'd hate to see him fry on this test alone. Funny thing, how often men use their own initials on their pseudonyms. D. S. and S. D. . . . Well, maybe."

"Go home and get some sleep, why don't you?" Alby suggested. "Everybody's covered and nobody's going to be arrested tonight."

Higgins hesitated. "It'd eat me up if anybody else made the collar in this case."

"No collars are likely. By the way, what about the museum?"

"The boys are still hunting Marlin's fingerprints. Funny thing, all they've been able to find so far match up with Dinard's, Wilcox's, the Coes and their servants. He seems to have wiped away every trace. Even the furnace door. If he wasn't in on the murder he sure is guilty of something else. Well, if you promise not to find the murder before tomorrow, guess I'll shove off. Who's to tail Dinard tonight?"

"I'm taking him with me to the hotel, later. Then we'll put Stevens on again. He can do his police matron transformation and chaperon Miss Sayre's apartment for the night. Don't worry, Dinard won't scram. Who's assigned to cover the squeal tonight?"

"Burt and Hackett go on at ten. Any orders you'd like left for them."

Alby considered. "Yes," he concluded. "Burt drives, doesn't he? Well, give him a taxi and tell him to keep cruising and parking in the Coggs' block. I'm going down there later."

As Higgins left Alby turned to Harrod. "These next interviews—get it from the other side of that panel, will you? I imagine they'll talk better tete-a-tete. Come in if I buzz."

Harrod left by one door, and Alby went to the other whihch opened into the waiting room. Sheridan and Adelaide were sitting close together on a bench. Dr. Coe was staring dejectedly at the floor. Mrs. Coe turned anxious eyes from his face to Alby's. She said at once, "Won't you please let my husband go home, Mr. Alby? You can see he's ill."

"I'll not detain either of you long. Come in, Mrs. Coe."

As soon as she got into his office, Alby said, "Mrs. Coe, I want to know the exact relationship between you and Wilcox."

"Me and Wilcox!" she exclaimed, shocked, "Oh, no! There's nothing."

Alby didnt answer. He leaned back and waited.

"Truly," she said, at length.

Still he waited, silently.

"Nothing, only the most casual friendship. Why, can't you see that I love my husband!"

"And yet you sneak off with Wilcox, letting your husband think you were in the country."

"I didn't 'sneak off' with Mr. Wilcox!"

"Wilcox refuses to divulge the name of the lady who went with him to the Tidewells."

"I went with him to the Tidewells. There was no sneaking about it!"

"Would your husband believe it was, shall we say, quite straightforward?"

"Certainly. He wouldn't like it exactly, but he'd know that what I told him was true."

"How do you explain yesterday?"

She hesitated. "All this horrid business makes the most innocent things seen wrong. But the explanation is simple. I'm writing a play. Mr. Wilcox has friends in the theatrical world. I wanted to meet some of them, before they all went off on their next expedition—"

"Who all?"

"My husband and Mr. Wilcox and Sherry Dinard."

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

FOOD FOR THE WORLD.
I—Wheat, Rye and Corn.

Hold in your hand a grain of wheat. It is small—hardly a third of an inch from end to end; but it is mighty in what it stands for.

World leaders in wheat production, by 20-year average.

Wheat gave bread to the people of long ago. It is the greatest food crop of the world today.

From a little grain of wheat grows a plant, a kind of grass; and this plant bears many grains.

Far and wide over the prairie lands of Canada; in many parts of the United States; in India, Russia, Argentina and elsewhere, farmers labor with the sowing, reaping and threshing of wheat. If there were a complete failure of the crop for a single year, we should be hard-pressed for food.

The yearly crop amounts to close to two bushels for every man, woman and child of the earth. People of Europe and North America eat far more wheat than those of other continents. In Asia its place is taken largely by rice.

The United States and Russia lead in the growing of wheat. In 1913 Russia produced more than a thousand million bushels. Her record was just about equalled two years later by the United States.

Taking a 20-year average, the United States stands first in the yield of wheat, with Russia second, India third, Canada fourth and France fifth. During the past 10 years, Canada has made great progress, and is now ahead of India.

In number of bushels per acre, small countries of Europe are in the lead. Farmers of Denmark and Holland get more than 40 bushels of wheat from an acre, as compared with 15 bushels per acre in the United States and Canada.

Russia is far in the lead of all other countries in raising rye, having a crop about the same size as her wheat crop. Germany ranks second and Poland third in the production of rye. This grain is widely used in Europe for making dark bread.

The United States raises more maize, or "Indian corn," than all other countries of the earth combined. The famous "corn belt" includes Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana and Ohio; but almost all the states have an important crop. Nevada is the only state which gives less than 5,000 acres to the growing of corn.

Before the whites came to the New World, they knew nothing of Indian corn; but they found it growing in almost every section of North America, as well as in South America and Central America. Since that time, it has been planted in many countries of Europe.

"The Primary Responsibility for Community Needs Rests Upon the Community Itself"

Here are the president's views on federal relief and the obligations of each local community to care for its needy, as expressed September 27th at the Washington conference on "Human Needs":

"THE RESPONSIBILITY of the individual and of the family for the well being of their neighbors must never cease. Through the centuries, as the first struggling villages developed into communities, cities, counties and states, destitution and want of every description has been cared for in the first instance by community help.

"No thinking or experienced person insists today that the responsibility of the community shall be eliminated by passing on this great and humane task to any central body at the seat of federal government.

"You and I know that it has been with reluctance and only because we have realized the imperative need for additional help that the Federal Government has been compelled to undertake the task of supplementing the more normal methods which have been in use for many generations.

"I repeat what I told you last year: That the primary responsibility for community needs rests upon the community itself. That if every effort has been used by any given community and has proved insufficient, then it is the duty of the state to supplement, with the resources of the state, the additional needs up to the limit of its power. That, finally, it is only when both of these efforts, taken together, prove insufficient that the Federal Government has any duty to add its resources to the common cause."

Forgotten .... but for the Chest

GOVERNMENT UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF DOES NOT PROVIDE FOR "UNEMPLOYABLES"

Atlanta Community Chest agencies care for:

Infants, orphaned and abandoned children, in special institutions (three such agencies are 45 years old) or through placement in private boarding homes.

Children of working mothers, in day nurseries.

The sick and infirm of all ages, through medical, dental and tubercular clinics and hospital care when needed.

The aged, in special homes; the blind, through providing special employment.

The jobless, through a special employment bureau.

The needy family or individual—dependent because of sickness, desertion, non-support, imprisonment, old age, death, physical handicaps, insufficient earnings, and many other social ills.

THE BURDEN UPON ATLANTA'S COMMUNITY CHEST AGENCIES WAS NEVER GREATER.

SUPPORT GENEROUSLY THE APPEAL FOR $400,000 NEEDED TO OPERATE THESE AGENCIES DURING 1935.

WIFE OF SHERIFF KIDNAPED IN TEXAS

Erstwhile Trusty Raids Jail at Mount Vernon Seizing Woman, $140.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct 31.—(AP)—Sheriff C. M. Tittle, of Mount Vernon, in northeast Texas, reported his wife was kidnaped from the Mount Vernon jail last night by an ex-convict.

The sheriff said the abductor forced Mrs. Tittle into a small fast automobile and headed toward south Texas. The asserted kidnaping occurred while the sheriff was downtown and Mrs. Tittle was at the jail alone.

Police here were asked to guard all roads leading into the city in the hope of intercepting the automobile.

Sheriff Tittle said the kidnaper had been a trusty in the Mount Vernon jail but had recently completed serving a sentence for a misdemeanor offense.

The sheriff's wife, officers here said, was ill and remained at home while her husband went to town on business. Several witnesses said she was met in her home by the alleged kidnaper, who took $140 in cash from the jail after forcing her into a small sedan.

Fears for her life were expressed by the sheriff.

Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell Star in Gridiron Picture

Pat O'Brien is again at the Capitol theater—this time in the good company of Dick Powell and Ann Dvorak in a typical football production, "College Coach." On the stage is a road show presentation, "Crazy People," which we are told is a group of nuts who, oddly enough, were formerly actors. This unusual mode of presentation seemed to catch the fancy of the Sunday evening audience.

Pat O'Brien, or Coach Gore, as he is aptly named, is hired by the trustees of a financially unsuccessful college to pay for a new science hall via stadia receipts. The unscrupulous coach buys a good team, wins conference honors and engages in several lucrative deals, one with a cunning trustee, which depend on Gore winning the championship.

Powell is captain of the team and while he only offers one song he is found to be an excellent "straight" actor. Ann Dvorak is cast as O'Brien's wife—a lady who is sadly neglected in the scramble for publicity.

While there is hardly anything original in the yarn, it is rich in dramatic content and is put over with a punch. If you like football this film should be "down your alley."

A fat comic, "Elmer," appears throughout the stage show to the embarrassment of the other performers and to the great merriment of the audience. A dance team offering a parody on "Barnacle Bill the Sailor" was most popular.

The outstanding stars to be seen with "Crazy People" include Roy Gordon, as "keeper of the nuts;" Darby and Rudell, in an aristocratic novelty; The Mathews Trio; Berns and Parks, the "daffy-dil" boys; Ula Dean, personality girl, and many others, including Hal Darby and his Mad Melodians of Music. A special attraction is Rudy Brodius, French bicycle star, who will perform amazing stunts on all types of bikes.

A Thelma Todd-Zasu Pitts comedy, and for an innovation, a newsreel are shown.

—BRUCE MANNING.

Horse To Be King Once More When Circus Comes to Town

Page Ben Hur! Or instead, watch these thrilling Roman horse races with pretty riders trying to keep upright on heaving, speeding backs. They're in the gigantic Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey combined circus, here this week.

Autos, trains, planes stand back! The circus is coming and when the circus comes, the horse is king!

He will be king when the colossal Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus comes to town to give two performances here Wednesday.

And believe the press agent who states that the great show presents the most comprehensive array of super-educated, blue-blooded thoroughbreds ever exhibited together. Perfect specimens of almost every known strain are to be found in the tented stables which shelter the big show's 700 horses.

Scores of high-spirited steeds are driven in fast-fought hippodrome races, including those drawing flying chariots and the fiery racers ridden by ladies in the Roman standing contests.

On the show's gigantic program are 50 highly-trained high school horses, introduced in the biggest menage act ever witnessed. Seventy snow-white beauties are ridden by the bare-back riding stars and five great companies of liberty horses are presented in five rings simultaneously.

Then there are the hundreds of big dapple grays, known as the "baggage stock," which move the great circus from its four long railroad trains to the show grounds.

The greatest show on earth offers a tremendous horse show and the horse-lover who doesn't come to see it will be like the admiral who missed the sinking of his own fleet.

The big show will give performances at 2 and 8 p. m., the doors opening an hour earlier to permit leisurely inspection of the menagerie.

'Cleopatra' Pleases Audiences at Paramount

All the glory that was Egypt, all the grandeur that was Rome is contained in Cecil B. DeMille's masterpiece, "Cleopatra," which opened for a week's run at the Paramount theater Sunday.

With Claudette Colbert, Warren William and Henry Wilcoxon in the principal roles, this picture, depicting the world's greatest love story, should prove one of the most popular screen presentations to be shown in Atlanta in a long time.

The opening scene shows Cleopatra and her brother, co-rulers of Egypt, fighting for control of that once famous empire of the Nile, with the beautiful Cleopatra using Caesar, the mighty Roman, as a foil against her unscrupulous kinsman.

And with Caesar's assassination by Brutus and his henchmen, Marc Antony, newly-named co-ruler of the Roman empire, is designated to bring Cleopatra back to Rome in chains, but when confronted by this famous queen is captivated by her beauty and charms and sails with her to her kingdom on the Nile. Then Antony is charged with being a traitor to his people and war is declared and he and his Egyptian lover are defeated in battle. The manner in which these two defy the world brings the film to a most sensational close with the beautiful Cleopatra ending her life by the bite of a poisonous serpent.

The perfect acting of Claudette Colbert, Warren William and Henry Wilcoxon stands out in a picture providing splendid entertainment.

Ian Keith, C. Aubrey Smith, Gertrude Michael and literally thousands of others lend excellent support to the leads in this film.

A Paramount newsreel and a Paul Terry comedy complete one of the most enjoyable programs this reviewer has had the pleasure of seeing at the Paramount. —SAM COX.

Rirst Run Air Romance Shown at Neighborhoods

"Crimson Romance" is the first-run attraction now playing four of Atlanta's neighborhood houses—the College Park, Madison, Hilan and Buckhead. It was well worth a visit to the most convenient house to home on Sunday, to say nothing of the added advantage of dodging both downtown traffic and that omnipresent parking problem.

The picture is a war aviation story with a new twist. Most of the action takes place behind the German membership where the hero is an American member of a German fighting air squadron. American audiences needn't expect to get their patriotism stepped on, however, as he proves a rather complete dud as a killer when opposed to our erstwhile allies and comrades in arms.

When he switches over to the proper side of the line, however, after America enters the war, he more than makes up for his mayhem lacks.

It is a pleasing story with quite a number of really thrilling air scenes. The conflict and suspense arise over the struggle of a man to decide which is the stronger, his affection for his old friend or his new love for a beautiful girl. See the picture and find out which wins.

Ben Lyon is manly and pleasing as the hero, while there is something mightily appealing about Hardie Albright, the friend. And Eric von Stroheim is always a villain it gives us extreme pleasure to hate.

Sari Maritza is the feminine menace. She is cunning and anyone can understand how any male can become enamored of such a girl. Her accent, while entirely suitable to her present role is, at times, a trifle too thick for easy understanding. And they must have had a splendid supply of hair-curlers with the German ambulance corps.

The picture runs today and tomorrow. Make your date to see it at once. —RALPH T. JONES.

THREE BADLY HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Four Others Slightly Injured When Car Runs Over Pedestrians.

Three persons were seriously hurt and six slightly injured in automobile accidents in Atlanta Sunday.

Mrs. A. Audubon, of 1180 Virginia avenue, was admitted to St. Joseph's hospital in a serious condition suffering from injuries received when the car in which she was riding collided at Cain and Courtland streets with another machine. She and her husband were passengers in a car driven by Clifford Beahan, 21 Harris street, when it collided with one driven by William Memminger, negro, of 197 Piedmont street.

Police who investigated the accident made cases against both drivers. Mrs. Audubon was the only one hurt.

Edward Smith, 26, of Avondale, was admitted to Grady hospital in a serious condition Sunday afternoon. He was suffering from a fractured left leg, fractured left arm, and possible internal injuries. He was injured when the car in which he and a companion, J. M. Hudgins, 26, also of Avondale, were riding, left the road on Chattahoochee avenue near Crest Lawn cemetery.

County Policemen T. J. Davis and L. J. Dickerson, who investigated the accident, made a case of driving while intoxicated against Hudgins and he was released under a $500 bond. Hudgins, however, denied that he was the driver of the machine.

Katherine Stevens 16-year-old niece of Dr. J. R. McDaniel, of 120 Glendale avenue, Decatur, was seriously hurt late Sunday night when the car in which she was riding with her cousin, Rosser McDaniel, 16, crashed into a pole at Memorial drive and Candler road. She was admitted to Grady hospital suffering from a brain injury. Her home is at New Smyrna, Fla., and she was visiting here.

Young McDaniel and James Pennington, 15, of 224 Atlanta avenue, a third occupant of the car, were injured slightly. They were treated for cuts and bruises and dismissed from the Grady clinic.

A high tension wire fell from the pole and across the automobile, narrowly missing the occupants, according to police reports.

Mrs. M. Capoano, 430 Central avenue, and three children accompanying her were injured slightly when they were struck down at Georgia avenue and Crew street early Sunday night by an automobile driven by Jim Brooks, a negro, of 514 Uster street, according to police reports. Mrs. Capoano suffered cuts and bruises, while her son and daughter, Leon, 8, and Pearl, 10, were cut about their heads. Suzan Pinto, 7, of 527 Pryor street, a playmate, also was cut about the head.

All four were treated at Grady hospital and allowed to return home. No case was made against Brooks.

Tuneful Show Offered At Burlesque Theater

"Paris Bound," the current bill at the Atlanta theater this week, is an excellent show from the standpoint of scenic effects, song and dance numbers and bright, clever costuming. The bill keeps improving each week under the new director, Pierre Dale, and is inclining more and more toward beautiful and tuneful effects, rather than toward the old "whoop 'em up" type of amusement.

The sets this week are especially attractive, and the dance routines of cleverly arranged numbers are snappy. Incidentally there are several new faces in the chorus and the costumes are bright and new. The opener, a posing number sung by Leon McDonald, the high hatters number featuring the Bower Sisters, the old-fashioned idea, and the Congo idea, are especially good. In the second act a novelty, the boogie man, featuring Beaulah Bayer, is good.

Of course, several of these numbers, which will make you think you're at some expensive revue, suddenly go truly burlesque and wind up as strip acts, but, after all, the theater is a burlesque house. The Bower sisters do a double strip which pleased the customers on the opening matinee, and Beaulah Bayer in her strips threatened to bring down the house. Mary Jane, the featured strip artist, failed to register so well.

Hal Rathburn, the comedian, is back and as usual gives a good laugh. Dome Williams passes out a few himself, but the honors go to Al Pharr and Vic Hallen. These last two would make a mummy laugh. The humor, true to form, is rough and ready, but you'll laugh if you're not too squeamish about those things.

It's about time someone said something about the music itself. The Atlanta has the only pit orchestra south of Washington and it is under the direction of Dave Love. Love is an excellent musician himself and his orchestra follows his example.

—RILEY McKOY.

Cambridge To Open New Library, Tower

CAMBRIDGE, England, Oct. 21. (AP)—A new university library with a tower like a miniature American skyscraper dominating this quaint old town of ancient spires and narrow streets will be opened officially tomorrow by King George.

Twenty-four stories high, it contains 42 miles of steel-lined bookshelves for a collection including some of the rarest books and oldest manuscripts in England.

Situated on rising ground about a half-mile from the center of Cambridge University, the reddish-brown building strikes a modern note with its long, straight and bold lines which the designer, Sir Giles Scott, adopted after a visit to the United States.

It was erected at a cost of $2,000,000.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

Lotion of Almonds Aged Like Wine Is Perfect for an Oily Skin

By MIGNON.

One of the fine things I have found this season is a lotion to use on oily skins. I went to visit the shop where this lotion is made while I was in New York and, having heard of the fine products produced there, I tried them all in a facial. The young woman who gave it told me that she worked for the manufacturer "way back when" the girls in the shop used to have to blanch the almonds and grind them by hand so that madame could make this exquisite lotion. I asked about it because when she put cotton pads over my eyes after the facial and then used a big atomizer to spray the lotion I Ohed and Ahed until I demanded the entire truth about whatever it was she was using.

It is a tiny bit expensive, but not as costly as a mean, oily looking skin, if you are trying to get places in the world. The almond lotion is aged like wine for five years before it is used. That's her story, and from the consistency I would say she was telling me the exact truth. It is like a wine of almonds. I wouldn't use it all the time because my skin is dry, but I do, after massaging with a very heavy cream, use it now and then just for the sheer pleasure it gives.

An oily skin thoroughly cleansed, massaged lightly with a good cream (if it is not too oily), then sprayed with this lotion, would be a lovely skin in a short time. Even after you do all this I still insist upon a foundation cream. It's old Lady Experience speaking, because I've tried to go without it—to my sorrow. Choose any kind you want, but get one of the good ones.

If you want to know where you can purchase any article mentioned in this column phone Mignon, at The Constitution. Please do not write unless you live outside the city, in which case enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

'PRETTY BOY' FLOYD IS BELIEVED SHOT

said a green automobile with four men and two machine guns had been seen speeding through the city tonight.

Not Yet Questioned.

The police chief said Richetti had not been questioned extensively about the Kansas City massacre, but would be tomorrow or the next day.

"We're trying to find Floyd now," the chief said. "That's the biggest thing we have to do now."

About 15 shots were fired in the gun battle when Fultz and the two citizens approached the gully to question the men. Fultz, wounded in the ankle, said he believed he had shot the man resembling Floyd in the stomach.

As Fultz seized Richetti, one of the men ran down the highway and commandeered an automobile driven by James H. Baum, 65, a florist. When the man alighted from the car near Lisbon and commandeered a second auto, a posse approached and Baum was shot in the hip when a member of the posse mistook him for the fugitive.

RICHETTI IS IDENTIFIED BY JUSTICE DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Justice department officials tonight said that one man implicated in the Kansas City Union station "massacre" was under arrest at Wellsville, Ohio, and that a second, "Pretty Boy" Floyd, wounded, was being sought in near-by woods.

The man being detained, it was added, had been identified by justice department fingerprints as Adam Richetti. Justice officials said, however, that local authorities declined to turn him over to federal agents.

After yesterday's fight with local authorities, it was said, Floyd took to the woods. Today, justice department men joined the search, but late tonight there had been no definite report as to what progress searchers were making.

Officials here would not give any indication as to how seriously they thought Floyd had been wounded.

ARREST COMES ON EVE OF MASSACRE INQUIRY

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The arrest of Adams Richetti, confederate of the Oklahoma outlaw-killer, Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, was reported at Wellsville, Ohio, tonight on the eve of a federal grand jury investigation of a crime of which they are accused, the slaying of five men at the Union station here June 17, 1933.

A third accused killer, Verne C. Miller, former South Dakota sheriff, was slain by gangsters near Detroit in an effort to halt a federal search which menaced them.

Richetti and Floyd were known to have been in Kansas City the night before the slaying. The day previous they were in a garage at Bolivar, Mo., when Sheriff Jack Killingsworth, of Polk county, Missouri, entered. Kidnaping him, they fled in a motor car, releasing him that night in Kansas City.

A government informant has named Richetti, Floyd and Miller as the trio who met here later that night to plot an attempted rescue of Frank Nash, an escaped convict and friend of Miller, who had been captured in Hot Springs, Ark.

Nash, on arriving here by train, was taken to a motor car, parked in the Union Station plaza, in which he was to have made the remainder of the trip to Leavenworth, Kan., penitentiary.

"Put 'em up. Up. Up." someone ordered as Nash was seated. One of the officer's reply was a pistol shot, believed to have wounded Floyd.

"Let 'em have it," a man believed to have been Floyd, said, and the machine gun bullets sprayed the plaza, some of them striking the station where crowds scurried to cover.

Otto Reed, McAlester, Okla., chief of police, R. J. Caffrey, department of justice agent, and two Kansas City police detectives, William J. Grooms and Frank E. Hermanson, were slain. The would-be rescuers also accidentally killed Nash.

Richetti is a native of Oklahoma. He was arrested August 7, 1928, at Hammond, Ind., on a holdup charge and on the following day was turned over to officers at Crown Point, Ind. He was sentenced to serve one to ten years in the Indiana state reformatory, but was paroled, receiving his final discharge September 24, 1931. He was arrested March 9, 1932, as Adam Rachard, at Sulphur, Okla., on a bank robbery charge and was held for safekeeping at the state penitentiary. He was released on bond August 25, 1932. That charge still is pending. The next report on him was at the time of the kidnaping of Sheriff Killingsworth.

The grand jury which will convene here tomorrow will investigate an asserted kinship of crime and politics in connection with the Union Station case.

Jimmie La Capra has informed the government that John Lazia, a powerful North Side politician who was slain by gangsters last July, arranged the meeting of Miller, Richetti and Floyd and that Lazia's associates later aided Richetti and Floyd in escaping from Kansas City.

BUSINESS SURVEY SHOWS EMPLOYER AGAINST NRA PLAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—An analysis of the attitude of New York businessmen toward the government recovery program, as disclosed by a questionnaire of the Merchants' Association of New York, showed today that a majority of those replying felt the program had retarded business activity and tended to discriminate "unduly" in favor of the employe.

The following figures were given out by the association to the question: "Has the government's recovery program helped or retarded business activity in your industry or trade?"

1. Retarded—619.
2. Helped—445.
3. Neither helped nor retarded—201.
4. Doubtful—103.

These were the figures presented for the question: "Do you think the present policy of the government with respect to labor tends to discriminate unduly in favor of employer or employe?"

1. Favors employe—1,040.
2. Favors employer—89.
3. Discriminated in favor of neither—191.
4. Doubtful—27.

ALLEGED MURDERER FLEES JAIL IN OHIO

WARREN, Ohio, Oct. 21.—(AP)—One day before he was scheduled to be tried on a murder charge, E. E. Martin forced his way out of the Trumbull county jail today, brandishing a pistol with which he threatened Turnkey James Jones and several deputies.

He is charged with slaying Charles Campbell, of Tucson, Ariz., after an argument August 28. After his arrest on the slaying charge he was linked by New Jersey officials with a pay roll hold up at Penns Grove, N. J.

YOU FEEL NO YOUNGER THAN YOUR STOMACH

If you ever expect to get your strength and vitality back, sleep sound, wake up refreshed, and eat your meals without suffering from heartburn, gas, sick headaches and acid indigestion, you must wipe the excessive acidity out of your stomach.

Excessive acidity destroys the activity of the vital gastric fluids which MUST be in your stomach to digest the food you eat. Get the acidity out, quickly, and your trouble will be over. Drink some water with a teaspoonful of Placidan in it, several times during the day, and especially before retiring. It wipes out the acidity, liquefies the undigested lumps of food and soothes the irritated stomach. Then the vital gastric fluids (which have been destroyed by the acidity) become active again.

Placidan is the new preparation which has been doing so many wonderful things for people who thought they would never have another well day. At the new, lower price, the big package of Placidan costs very little. You can get it at any drug store. Just be sure you get Placidan. That's very important. It is not laxative. Does not purge the bowels. Contains no opiate.—(adv.)

ITCHING SMARTING CRACKED SKIN BROKEN OUT PEELING SCABBY

For skin troubles—itch, cracking, smarting and scaling—there is nothing like Dr. Porter's Antiseptic Healing Oil. There may be fancier preparations but nothing that will do the work like this famous oil. It not only destroys the parasites that cause many skin troubles but, at the same time, it heals the sore and damaged skin.

The most stubborn cases of itching and scaling skin that defy every other treatment usually yield to Dr. Porter's Antiseptic Healing Oil. Try it on your itching or broken out skin and see how effective it is. Dr. Porter's Antiseptic Healing Oil is made by the makers of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine and sold by all druggists at 30c and 60c with guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

AUTO ACCIDENT FATAL TO LUTHER STEPHENS

Run Over on Marietta Road Last Wednesday, Man, 59, Dies at Grady.

Luther Benson Stephens, 59, of 424 Hood street, died Sunday at Grady hospital from injuries received last Wednesday night when he was struck down by an automobile on the Marietta road near the river.

County police who investigated the accident said that Stephens was hit by a car driven by E. L. Amos, of Smyrna, but that the accident was unavoidable. They made no case against Amos.

Stephens, who was walking along the road, was taken to Grady hospital after the accident and found to be suffering from several broken ribs, internal injuries, and a brain injury.

He is survived by his wife; a son, Chalmers K. Stephens; a sister, Mrs. Martha Jane Miller; two brothers, Eligie Stephens, of Adairsville, and John Stephens, of Birmingham.

Services will be held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Jefferson Methodist church, with the Rev. B. T. Read officiating. Interment in charge of Brandon, Bond & Condon will be in Crown Hill cemetery.

Free Samples at Druggists of Vicks Remarkable Aid in Preventing Many Colds

Local Druggists Are Now Offering a Free Trial of Vick's Va-tro-nol for Nose and Throat—Also Other Vick Aids to Better Colds-Control

Each Package Carries Full Details of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds

LOCAL SUPPLY LIMITED

Each year, increasing thousands of enthusiastic users are broadcasting the good news of Vicks Va-tro-nol. They have proved for themselves its amazing effectiveness in helping them to side-step many annoying colds.

Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and throat—where most colds start. It aids and stimulates the functions provided by Nature—in the nose—to prevent colds, and to throw off colds in their early stages.

Va-tro-nol is easy and convenient to use—any time or place—at home or at work. Just a few drops up each nostril—at the first sign of discomfort in the nose—irritation or dryness, sniffle or sneeze. Used in time, it helps to avoid many a cold entirely.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh) Va-tro-nol penetrates deep into the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears away clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

Va-tro-nol's remarkable effectiveness has been proved in thousands of clinical tests supervised by practicing physicians. Equal effectiveness is shown in its everyday home use—aiding millions to greater freedom from colds.

(Note—For your protection: The remarkable success of Vicks Drops—for nose and throat—has brought scores of would-be imitators. Don't confuse Vicks real medication with mere "oil drops." The trade-mark name "Va-tro-nol" is your protection in getting the original and exclusive Vicks formula. Always ask for Vicks Va-tro-nol. It is available now in two generous sizes—30c and 50c.)

Get Your Trial Samples Now.

Your druggist has a limited supply of de luxe combination sample packages. These contain trial samples not only of Va-tro-nol, but of Vicks Vapo-Rub (famous external treatment for colds) and other Vick aids to better Control of Colds. Also, a modern, practical guide to mothers to help your family to have fewer, shorter and milder colds this winter. All yours for the asking—at the nearest druggist's. Or—if his supply is exhausted—send for your package direct to Vicks, 2013 Milton St., Greensboro, N. C., enclosing 3c in stamps to cover mailing.—(adv.)

Mrs. Alva Maxwell To Sponsor Program

Mrs. Alva Maxwell will sponsor a program to be given at the Good-Will Industries, at 33 Butler street, on Tuesday evening, October 30, at 8 o'clock. Some of the best talent of the city has been secured and the entertainment will be enjoyable and amusing. There will be no admission, but a free-will offering will be taken, the money to be used in equipping the chapel of the institution, where devotional services are held for the workers each morning.

Mrs. Maxwell is chairman of the advisory board of the Good-Will Industries auxiliary, whose membership is composed of the presidents and supply superintendents of the missionary societies. Members of the churches and missionary societies, friends of the Good-Will Industries and the board members of the Wood-Will are especially invited to attend.

Miss Jones Weds William H. McRae.

FORT GAINES, Ga., Oct. 21.—Miss Crystal Evelyn Jones, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. Burdette Jones, of Fort Gaines, was married on Wednesday, October 17, to William Holmes McRae, also of Fort Gaines. In the presence of friends who gathered at the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. Mr. S. C. Olliff, president of Andrew College, performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in wood's-green begora crepe with antelope accessories. Her shoulder bouquet was of sweetheart roses and valley lilies. She entered with her father, who gave her in marriage.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Hazel Jones, who wore a costume of wood's-green crepe trimmed in brown squirrel. Her shoulder bouquet was of roses.

The bride's mother, who before her marriage was Miss Crystal Brooks, of Brooklyn, N. Y., wore a gown of wine-tree bark satin and a shoulder bouquet of talisman roses.

The bridegroom had as his best man his brother, Alex McRae, and Master Albert Stone, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Stone, was ring-bearer.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Virginia McAllister sang "O Promise Me" and "Constancy." She was accompanied by Mrs. A. H. Stone, who also played the wedding march.

Mrs. McRae was graduated with honors in 1932 from Andrew College, Cuthbert, Ga. She served during her senior year as president of the Young Women's Christian Association. She has two sisters, Miss Dixie Jones, of Emory University, and Miss Hazel Jones, of Fort Gaines.

Mr. McRae is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McRae. He attended the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, Ala. He is a member of the Sigma Phi Sigma fraternity. Mr. McRae is a brother of A. Holley McRae, of New Orleans, La.; Ensign Robert H. McRae, of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Raymond Morris and Alex McRae, of Fort Gaines, and Miss Martha McRae, of the University of Georgia.

After a brief tour through Virginia and Carolina, Mr. and Mrs. McRae will be at home in Fort Gaines.

Miss Ewing Honors Mr. Miles at Party.

Miss Martha Ewing was hostess Friday evening at a party at her home on Montclair drive in honor of her cousin, Ewing Miles, who is a member of the S. P. M. fraternity. The guests included members of the fraternity and their dates. A special guest was Miss Jane Jackson, who is spending the week-end with Miss Dorothy Davis.

The young hostess was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Morris Ewing, and Mrs. Homer Davis.

Habersham D. A. R. Holds Meeting.

Featuring the meeting of the Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., last Wednesday afternoon were the lectures by Mrs. Walter Scott Askew and Mrs. J. B. Francis Hereschoff on their travels abroad during the past summer. Mrs. Askew was a witness of the Passion Play and spoke of the beauty and solemnity of this never-to-be-forgotten spectacle. Mr. and Mrs. Askew, while in Oberammergau, were guests of Alois Lang, who portrayed the part of Christ, in this wonderful performance.

Mrs. Hereschoff stressed her visit to Russia and displayed quite a collection of rare and beautiful articles purchased while there. Among these were sacred velvet cloths heavily embroidered in gold, which had been used in their magnificent churches prior to the revolution.

Mrs. C. J. Sheehan, the regent, presided at the business meeting. Miss Juanita Chisholm, chairman of the board, brought several recommendations from the board. Mrs. Lon Duckworth was elected auditor and reports were heard from the kettle drum given on October 16. This was one of the most successful affairs ever held in Habersham hall. Mrs. Lamar Etheridge, the music chairman, introduced Mrs. W. Sloan, a new member, who rendered vocal selections.

Grant Park Class.

An affair of Thursday evening was the annual banquet of the T. E. L. class of Grant Park Baptist Sunday school, with Mrs. G. R. Ivey, president, presiding. Music was furnished by James Kilpatrick, pianist; Miss Wilma Greydon, guitar soloist, and vocal selections by Mrs. J. B. Richardson, accompanied by Miss Doris Millholland. A reading by Miss Margaret Morris, followed an address by Dr. M. A. Cooper, after which the incoming officers were introduced by the teacher, Mrs. E. M. Altman, with Mrs. C. A. Gheesling as president.

Those present were the pastor, Rev. E. M. Altman, and A. C. Hopkins, superintendent of the Sunday school. One hundred and fifty guests were present, including members of the class, their husbands and friends.

A barbecue dinner was served by the social chairman, Mrs. C. T. Owens, and her committees. Gratifying reports were read covering all phases of the year's work.

Miss Rhyne Weds Mr. Lindstrom At Quiet Rites at Procathedral

MRS. ALVIN L. LINDSTROM.

Of interest to a wide circle of friends was the marriage of Miss Claudia Rhyne to Alvin L. Lindstrom, which was quietly solemnized Sunday noon at St. Philip's pro-cathedral. The impressive ceremony was performed by Dean De Ovies in the presence of the family and a few intimate friends.

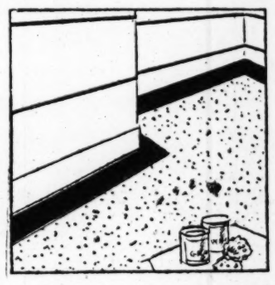

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Wade H. Rhyne, and her only attendant was Miss Fay Hatcher, who was attractively gowned in hunter's green crepe with black accessories. She wore a cluster of valley lilies and talisman roses. The bride was lovely, wearing a gown of rust crepe, a black antelope hat with accessories to match. Bronze orchids completed her custume. The bridegroom's best man was J. G. Latham, of Atlanta.

Mrs. Lindstrom is the only daughter of Mrs. Jessie Dean Rhyne and the late W. S. Rhyne. Mr. Lindstrom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Lindstrom, of Atlanta. Following a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Lindstrom will be at home in Durham, N. C.

Worn Linoleum Becomes Fresh as Paint With Paint

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

"I don't know what to do with this linoleum. We borrowed some money to renovize and modernize our kitchen. The national housing act is great for people like ourselves who have wanted to make repairs but have lacked the money. With the reasonable rate of interest and three years in which to pay it back we are having a number of things done. But even so, the money won't do quite all we wanted it to do. So I am trying to decide what to do with this linoleum which we can't afford to replace." A painter told her just what to do.

"Get bright but rich blue print. Put two coats on the floor. Now mark off a seven-inch band all around the floor next to the wall. Divide this band into one that is six inches wide and one that is one inch wide. Draw a line with chalk.

Paint the six-inch band close to the wall a darker blue than your center part of the floor. That leaves a one-inch band between the dark strip and the lighter center. When the paint is thoroughly dry, paint this one-inch band a brilliant red.

"Now dip a sponge in white paint and stipple the center part. When this is dry apply one coat of linoleum varnish. And see how effective that floor covering really is."

"Then for the window get white organdy and make full plain curtains. Buy cotton cord about as thick as your little finger and sew it on the edge. To finish off the ends near the heading, roll it round and round, sewing the coils down flat to the hanging.

"This cord may be blue or red or white. You might try this same effect in a different material. Use Argentine cloth in blue and sew white cotton cord on for an edging. Set a pot of red geraniums in the window and wrap the cleaning-cans with the oil cloth covers trimmed with flat flower applique."

N. A. P. S. Will Hold Swimming Meet.

N. A. P. S. will hold a swimming meet at the Atlanta Athletic Club on Tuesday, October 23, at 7:30 o'clock and will be a dual meet between the greens (juniors and freshmen) and golds (seniors and sophomores). The swimming cup going to the winning team. There will be competition between the green and gold junior high squads, the victorious squad being presented the junior high swimming banner. As an added attraction there will be exhibition swimming and diving by two of Georgia Tech's outstanding athletes.

High school captains of the green team are Edith Fugitt and Peggy Ray, and the gold captains are Jean Ray and Mary Louise Wartmann. The judges will be Miss Frances Keller, Mrs. Orrin S. Vogel and Miss Virginia Carmichael. Students and friends of the school are invited to be present on this occasion, the admission being 25 cents.

Halloween Fete.

Forrest Avenue P.-T. A. will sponsor a Halloween carnival at the school Friday afternoon, October 26. The grade representatives will be in charge of hot-dog stands, grab-bag, fish pond, candy, drinks, ice cream, etc. All parents and friends are especially invited.

O. E. S. Dance.

Rose Croix Chapter No. 257, O. E. S., is sponsoring a dance at Corowanna lodge on Donnelly avenue, in West End, Thursday evening, October 25, 9 to 12:30 o'clock. Cover charge is 50 cents per couple. Tickets may be obtained at the door or from any member of Rose Croix chapter.

Exhibition at Club.

An interesting part of the program meeting which will be held at the Atlanta Woman's Club this afternoon at 3 o'clock will be an exhibition of work done by Miss Roberta Tanner and Robert Brownlee, high school students who were the winners of the scholarships offered last year by Steffan Thomas, outstanding Atlanta artist, through the Atlanta Woman's Club. These young artists were among 50 applicants for these scholarships and were chosen by Mr. Thomas and the committee both for their talent and their interest in their work.

The exhibition will consist of statuary, charcoal drawings, water colors and life studies.

Pilot Club Meets.

Dean Raimundo de Ovies will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Pilot Club at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Ansley hotel. His subject will be "Workings of the Juvenile Court." Mrs. Mattie Ellis Cooper will sing. The program is in charge of Miss Coral Saanett.

Oglethorpe Faces Test Against Howard Here Saturday

'GATORS BEAT STATE, ASSUME NEW STANDING

Brown, Middekauf and Warren Are New Florida Stars.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Florida's football faithful could not hide wide grins today as they pondered the prospects for the best 'Gator season in years.

Meanwhile, the University of Miami stood out as the best team among the state's smaller schools.

Yesterday's rousing 14-to-0 defeat of Hunk Anderson's North Carolina State Wolfpack gave the 'Gators reason to be optimistic. Not only did it break the jinx State squads seemed to hold over Florida at Tampa, but it showed conclusively the 'Gators' stand against Tulane was no flash in the pan.

The only thing that tended to mar a nice, bright day in the Sunshine State was the showing Florida's future opponents made yesterday. Georgia held the Green Wave to a 1-point victory; Georgia Tech gave Michigan a close fight; Auburn almost pulled the biggest upset of the season by leading Vanderbilt until the final minute of play and Maryland kept the air full of passes again in downing Virginia Poly.

HOWARD WINS.

Mississippi, dropping a decision to Howard, was the only coming foe not to look pretty dangerous.

Out of the fray at Plant field rose three new, bright 'Gator stars. Alton Brown made State's passing attack look pretty ragged as he grabbed three tosses and lugged the ball back several hundred feet. And well he did, because a fallen arch may keep Alternate Captain Welcome Shearer from performing at center for a week or so.

Walter Middlekauff, subbing for Jack Beckwith, handled himself well and Duke Warren drove like a steam engine during the few minutes he played.

All of which was heartening to Florida fans as the reserve material had looked pretty weak.

Billy Chase's heaves didn't connect as readily as they did against Tulane, but it was the fault largely of the receivers. The Lakeland boy still can chunk them right down the alley.

The line had a few bad moments with the pile-driving State offense and may have weakened enough to have allowed a score had the Wolfpack quarter elected to pass when the goal was in sight.

MIAMI IMPRESSIVE.

Miami took the top peg in the small college ranks by walloping Southern's hopefuls, 26 to 6. The victory, added to the Southeastern Louisiana rout, gives the Hurricane an impressive scoring record.

Southern, victory over Bowdon College, of Georgia, in its first comeback effort, showed too much form even in defeat to be counted out altogether.

After dropping two games, Stetson got on the right side of the ledger for the first time this season by sending the Georgia State Teachers home on the short side of a 19-to-0 count.

Horse Guard Wins First Game

The Governor's Horse Guard polo team defeated Fort McPherson, 6 to 4, yesterday afternoon in the first of a three-game series to decide the city championship.

Williamson, playing at No. 1 for the Horse Guard, was the individual star of the game, scoring five goals. Graham, at No. 2, scored the other.

Major Howell, playing at No. 3 for Fort Mac, scored three goals and a Fort Mac pony scored the other one. Strange as it seems, the pony kicked the ball through the goal. Nobody took time to get its name, so a hero goes unsung.

The lineups:

Horse Guard	Pos.	Ft. McPherson
Williamson	No. 1	Sanford
Graham	No. 2	Wing
Christian	No. 3	Howell
Moran	Back	Clarke

Down the Alleys

When the City Duckpin league bowlers "go to bat" at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, four splendid matches will be available to onlookers but two of them will be of more than normal interest.

The Alliance Printing Company and Model Laundry are scheduled as opponents. Three teams are in a tie for first place in the team standings in the City Duckpin league; of these three teams, the two just mentioned occupy two of the berths at the helm. So, with the pressure on to full extent, this match should be a real headliner.

Friendly and Fortune Shoes occupy the other seat at the top of the ladder. They are scheduled with Pinson Tire Company. The Pinson team has won five of the last six games played, setting the maple paths ablaze with their march of progress, as they pulled themselves from a cellar position to just a single game out of the lead.

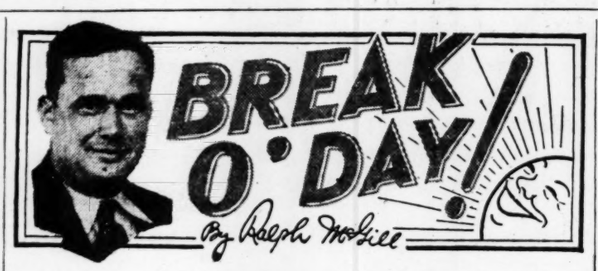

While the two matches mentioned above will have more bearing on the top positions after tonight, perhaps, the other two tilts will provide some splendid bowling exhibitions.

Blick's Bowling Center and Walter A. Guest tie up, and Belle Isle Garage and Ansley Hotel are opponents. Only four games separate the bottom-place team from the leaders. Therefore, no matter what happens tonight, all eight teams are right in the thick of the fight for the title and picking a winner at this time would be like looking for the proverbial "needle in the haystack."

Miss Mary Pearson won the handicap duckpin sweepstakes with a big total of 403 and copped the top cash award. Second place was won by Mrs. Blick with 387 and W. F. (Robby) Robinson was third with 373.

The Bible Class and Sunday School league, the Passenger Club and the Atlanta Journal Duckpin leagues combined with the Dixie Tenpin league and the City Duckpin league, will occupy practically all of the alleys at Blick's tonight.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Nurses and the Trinity Methodist Church have additional reservations and provide plenty of competition among themselves.

The Techs Were Generous--- At Michigan's Insistence!

It was a long way back from Ann Arbor, Mich., to Atlanta. Let me tell you that. And when the score is 9 to 2 against, the ride seems longer and dispositions wear thin and the nerves are very sensitive.

The Michigans beat our Georgia Tech's by a margin of seven points on Saturday afternoon when the Tech's were too slow getting down field under a punt to Ferris Jennings, who is something of a Ferris wheel when he gets going.

The one lapse in alertness cost the Techs the ball game. I am interested in trying to imagine what they will do next week in the Tulane game to give the Tulanes a break.

No team has yet taken the ball and marched against the team from the Flats. Vanderbilt tossed long passes which the defense batted into the hands of the Vanderbilt receivers. This sort of assistance is fatal. Against Duke the defense let the Duke receivers get in behind them and catch passes.

And up at Michigan, with a cold, dismal rain falling, the boys failed to hustle down under one punt and allowed this fast man Jennings to get up some steam and also, and this was most important, to attach himself to an escort which knew how to block, and which did.

The two safeties were merely incidental and Michigan's, for instance, would not have been scored had they not already made their touchdown. Because Tech would not have been trying to pass from behind the goal line with an inexperienced man throwing the ball had Tech not been seven points behind. Bill McKay hesitated just too long and the ball was batted down into the end zone territory and thus became an automatic safety. The Michigan officials applied the old Mosaic law of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth to this game, they demanded an end for an end. I note that reports from Michigan are that the Techs, in their generosity, withheld their right end, Hoot Gibson, because Michigan was not playing her right end, Wills Ward, colored.

As a matter of fact the Michigan athletic officials were in something of a spot and had to have an out and so they requested Tech to withhold the right end. This was their out. I think it meant the ball game. It should teach the Michigan people not to go about making agreements they can't keep without getting onto a spot. At least I hope so.

It becomes apparent that Tech has a good defense and no offense to speak of. And Tech will not have any offense until Tech gets some athletes who can carry that football and throw it and catch it. That is what is the matter with Tech. They have no athletes in there lugging that ball.

THE GEORGIA DEFEAT.

It was midnight Saturday before our party could get confirmations on the final scores. And it was not until Sunday morning that the gory details of Georgia's 7-to-6 defeat were learned.

I would not have liked to be sitting on either the Georgia or Tulane bench beside Mr. Harry Mehre or Mr. Ted Cox when John Bond dropped back to try for the point which would decide between defeat and a tie. Those are the moments that seem to be a chapter out of eternity.

Georgia's luck, across a span of years, had held good in those seven and six games. The dice always came seven for Georgia. Two New York University games were won seven and six. And last year Georgia defeated Georgia Tech seven and six in Atlanta. Never before have the dice come six.

Georgia now faces Alabama and if the Alabama eleven pointed exclusively for Tennessee and forgot about the little meeting on Saturday with Georgia there may be trouble for the Crimson Tide.

Georgia's play without Cy Grant was really unusually good. The Athens eleven is still a good football team, as Tulane will, I imagine, cheerfully and happily admit.

I would not be surprised if Ted Cox did not cut out that portion of the steel goal post which stopped the Georgia kick and wear it around as a watch charm.

AUBURN AND FLORIDA.

Auburn's great game at Nashville was really the highlight of the past Saturday. No one expected Auburn to have a great deal this fall.

And the Tigers haven't won a game as yet from a major team. Yet they are coming along with great speed.

Their feat in leading Vanderbilt 6 to 0 until the final minute of play was most exceptional. And there, too, was a climax which surpassed the one at New Orleans, where Georgia was defeated.

Vanderbilt completed a pass in the last minute of play to tie and converted the point to win.

A victory by one point is still a victory and just as conclusive as far as the records are concerned as a 40-to-0 victory. Kicking is part of football and there should be no talk of abolishing the point after. This year it seems to be preventing tie games, instead of causing them, which is the annual charge against it.

Auburn, however, scored with a running game, something Vanderbilt couldn't do. Officials who have worked in the Auburn games say the Tiger from the Alabama plains is coming faster than any team in Dixie.

Florida played a great game to defeat North Carolina State. The team which Hunk Anderson is coaching wasn't able to match Dutch Stanley's team and its attack.

And just now it is difficult to determine just what Tech will be able to do with these two teams.

ALABAMA'S VICTORY.

Alabama's splendid victory over Tennessee was rather expected. So, for that matter, was Tennessee's rugged resistance. The Vols from Knoxville are developing rapidly. Frank Thomas has a great football team and one which should be able, without any injuries, to go on undefeated.

Dixie Howell, the Alabama halfback, was the difference. That is what a good halfback will mean to a team—the difference between defeat and victory. Alabama's defensive play was also superb. It was a halfback, Monk Simons, who won for Tulane. And it is Tulane whom Tech must face next Saturday in New Orleans. In order to reduce the queries to a minimum, let it be repeated that Tech has not a halfback who even faintly resembles Howell or Simons.

It's good to get back. Those last 1,000 miles were long ones.

GRID LEADERS ARE RECOGNIZED DESPITE CHAOS

Six Teams Lead in East, Minnesota in Midwest, 'Bama in South.

By Herbert W. Barker.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Despite the renewed impetus given to the current bull market on upsets, the football picture slowly was taking definite shape today.

Outstanding challengers for sectional championships had turned up in every section of the country although the issue in none was clearcut. Subject to revision with or without notice, the apparent leaders were:

East—Holy Cross, Army, Navy, Princeton, Dartmouth and Syracuse, all unbeaten and untied.

Midwest—Minnesota generally regarded as the best of the Big Ten outfits with Chicago, Illinois and perhaps Purdue ready to slip in should the Gophers tumble. Nebraska, the Big Six leader but facing dangerous competition from Iowa State and possibly from Kansas State. Michigan State, unbeaten and untied, and Notre Dame, coming along fast now, top the independents.

'BAMA LEADS.

South—Alabama ranked as most dangerous of the Southeastern conference outfits with Tulane, Vanderbilt and Louisiana State a step behind. Duke, apparently the class of the Southern conference again, although North Carolina certainly and Washington and Lee possibly may be dangerous.

Southwest—Rice and Texas, in that order, most formidable threat to Arkansas, uncrowned champion of the conference last year.

Far West—Stanford generally picked to win the Pacific Coast conference championship against the threat of Washington. Santa Clara and St. Marys the independent leaders.

Rocky Mountain—Utah and Utah State seem to rate one-two, or possibly, two-one.

Yesterday's firing, just as spectacularly deadly as had been the case on the first three Saturdays of the season, saw the east lose no fewer than five of its major undefeated teams and the midwest, south and southwest one apiece.

PITT REMOVED.

Minnesota removed Pittsburgh from the national championship contenders' list, uncorking a whirlwind fourth-quarter attack that produced two touchdowns, sank the Panthers, 13-7, and stunned a crowd of 64,000, St. Mary's Gaels, meanwhile, outplayed "Sleepy Jim" Crowley's highly touted Fordham Rams by a wide margin and won, 14-9, before a throng of 60,000 in the Polo Grounds. Colgate was the third eastern leader to surrender in intersectional warfare, bowing, 10-7, to Ohio State after a poor punt had put the Buckeyes in scoring position in the last quarter.

Columbia and Harvard were the other eastern elevens who were set back for the first time. Fred (Buzz) Borries was entirely too much for Columbia's Rose Bowl champions and Navy earned an 18-7 victory that kept Tom Hamilton's Midshipmen in the undefeated class. An aerial barrage laid down by Jim Hobin was mainly responsible for Holy Cross' 26-6 rout of Harvard.

In the south it was Tennessee's Volunteers who bit the dust for the first time, Alabama clearly earning a 13-6 triumph; Texas' perfect record in the Southwest went by the boards as the Longhorns dropped a 9-6 verdict to the exceedingly tough young gentlemen of Centenary. Wisconsin was the midwest casualty, the Badgers succumbing to Purdue as the Boilermakers' two backfield "cripples," Duane Purvis and Jim Carter, ran 80 and 64 yards, respectively, to touchdowns.

PRINCETON LUCKY.

The carnage among the undefeated teams might have been even greater had not the margin of the extra point after touchdown settled three outstanding battles and a field goal another.

Princeton, hailed as perhaps the most powerful of all teams on the Atlantic seaboard, was outplayed most of the way by Washington and Lee but came from behind to score a fourth-quarter touchdown and win, 14-12. Tulane and Vanderbilt, challenging Alabama in the Southeastern conference, both were hard-pressed to win by 7-6 scores from Georgia and Auburn, respectively. Vanderbilt, in fact, waited until the last minute of play to score its 7 points. Stanford, already tied once by one independent, needed an 18-yard field goal by Jim Moscrip in the last period to down San Francisco, 3-0.

Notre Dame, Michigan and Michigan State contrived to give the midwest its most enjoyable day in an intersectional way. Notre Dame played under wraps most of the way in downing Carnegie Tech, 13-0; Ferris Jennings, little quarterback, led Michigan to its first victory of the season, a 9-2 setback of Georgia Tech; while Michigan State's fleet backs ran all over Manhattan College, 39-0. The mid-west's only setbacks came when Detroit failed to get better than a scoreless draw with Villanova; Creighton was trounced by Rice, 47-13, and Ohio Wesleyan bowed to Syracuse, 32-10.

EAST CHEERS.

Army, Dartmouth and Georgetown gave the east something to cheer about in an otherwise disastrous day as the Cadets rolled over Sewanee, 20-0; Dartmouth trimmed Virginia, 27-0, and Georgetown topped William and Mary, 3-0. Rounding out the section's major games, Yale finally got its attack going and swamped Brown by an amazing 37-0 count; Western Maryland bounced Boston College all around the premises, 40-0, and Penn outscored Rutgers, 27-19.

Olson and Almand Meet Here Tonight

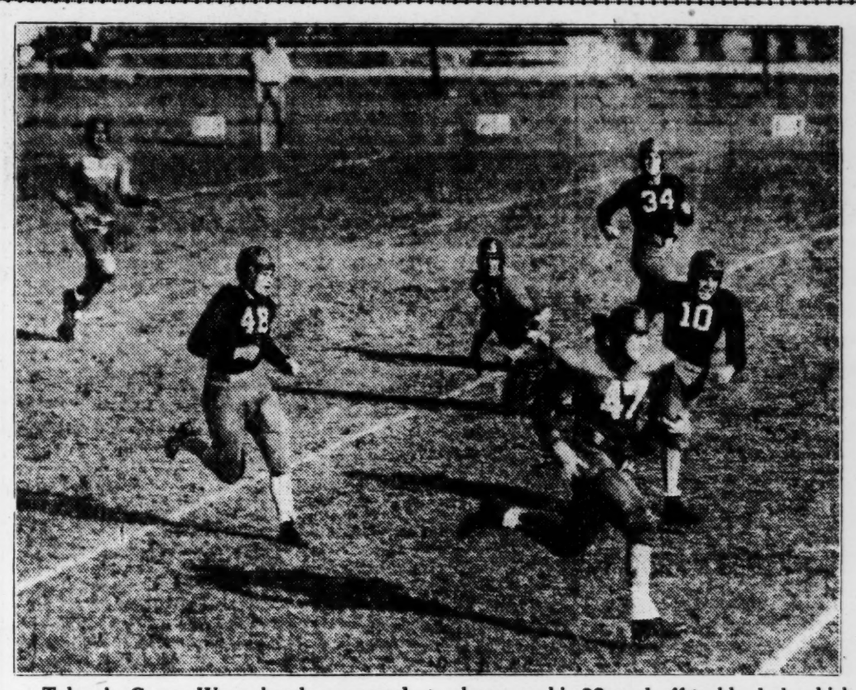

Action aplenty is in store for mat fans in the weekly card at the Avondale arena tonight.

Al Olson, The Terrible Swede, a great favorite wherever he grapples, returns to the ring in the main go against Sun Almand, Almand Park flash, for 90 minutes.

Gentleman John Mauldin meets Bill Falker, Decatur star, in the semi-windup. Red Dugan, of Chattanooga, will grapple Glenn Cowan, Atlanta policeman, in the opening one-hour match.

The card will start promptly at 8:15 p. m.

Monk Simons Away for Tulane's Only Touchdown

Tulane's Green Wave barely managed to submerge the fighting Bulldogs of Georgia, 7 to 6, Saturday afternoon at New Orleans, and keep the season slate clean. Here Monk Simons, Tulane's great halfback, is shown on his 32-yard off-tackle dash which scored his team's only touchdown. The Bulldogs scored in the fourth period but failed to add the extra point which would have given them a tie.

BROWN RETURNS HERE TUESDAY

Orville Brown, the Missouri Mule, is coming back to Atlanta Tuesday night to meet one of the winners of Henry Weber's card last week at the city auditorium.

Brown, the popular Missourian, who was disqualified against Jim Browning here recently, intends to put an end to Buck Weaver's fame here Tuesday night.

Weaver, who weighs something like 230 pounds is a former University of Chicago athlete. He defeated Charlie Strack on the last card.

While all the winners of last week's program will reappear against stronger opposition, the 90-minute feature between Brown and Weaver has caught the fancy of the fans.

Brown is a fiery charger of the ring. He was giving Browning a fit, so to speak, when the referee stepped in. He slapped down the referee and was disqualified.

George Hills, former lumberjack, winner over 250-pound Bob Stewart last week, takes on Vernon Baxter, Carl Davis' younger brother, in the one-hour semi-windup.

Andy Rasher, former Indiana football star, victor over Reilly last week, engages Jack League, Texan, in the opener.

The card, as a whole, offers big fellows throughout and plenty of action.

Tickets are on sale at the Piedmont Hatters at popular prices.

BEARS AHEAD IN PRO LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Bad weather at Detroit and lack of opposition at Cincinnati contrived to send the Chicago Bears back into undisputed possession of first place in the National Professional Football league today.

While the Detroit Lions, undefeated in five games, were held idle by adverse weather, the Bears trounced the hapless Cincinnati Reds, 41-7, to make it six victories without a defeat.

Beattie Feathers and Jack Manders, who used to do their gridiron chores for Tennessee and Minnesota, respectively, each scored two touchdowns as the Bears romped over the Reds, scoring 34 points in the first half. Cincinnati scored its touchdown and kick in the second period, Syl Saumer going over.

Detroit's postponed game with the Brooklyn Dodgers will be played under the lights tomorrow night.

Green Bay's Packers outpointed the Chicago Cardinals, 15-0, in the only other western division engagement of the day. It was one of the roughest games in league history. Volok and Cook, of the Cardinals, suffered fractured ankles, and Hughes, another Cardinal star, was carried off the field with a severe hip injury. Bruder, Laws and Jorgenson, of the Packers, also were forced to retire as a result of injuries. Green Bay scored in the first quarter, Arnold (Flash) Herber passing 29 yards to Clark Hinkle, who dashed 40 yards to score. Another Herber pass, this time to Laws, put the ball in scoring position for the Packers' second touchdown in the last period. Herber passed to Milt Gantenbein for 10 yards more and to Grove for the score. A safety shortly afterward completed Green Bay's scoring.

The New York Giants maintained their place at the top of the eastern division standings with a 17-7 conquest of Pittsburgh as Ken Strong scored a touchdown, kicked a field goal and booted one extra point.

COLLINS MEETS DANIELS HERE

Wild Bill Collins will meet Paul Daniels in the feature match of tonight's wrestling card at the Center Hill arena. This match is a result of a challenge issued by Daniels.

In the semi-final match, Foy Rivers will tackle the Indian terror, Chief Chippewa Charlie.

Jimmy Hope and Wes Brownlee will open the card in a short match at 8:15 o'clock.

The Center arena has been inclosed and a heating system installed for the winter.

SANTA CLARA WINS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—(UP) The University of Santa Clara football team, undefeated this season and tied only by Stanford, maintained its record today by defeating the San Francisco Olympic Club, 13 to 6.

Green Highly Praised For Work Against Wave

Treadaway Also Proves Worth Under Fire; Georgia's Morale Is Bolstered.

By Jimmy Jones.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 21.—Echoes of Georgia's surprisingly good game against Tulane Saturday still reverberated through the south's most enchanting city (as one writer called it) today.

Figured to lose by a margin varying from one to three touchdowns, the Bulldogs from Athens came back so strongly against Ted Cox's undefeated Emerald Legion that they captured most of the statistical honors—first downs and yardage—and came dangerously near tying the game up in the last three minutes when Johnny Bond, who made good six consecutive tries for the point-after in the Stetson game, saw his toe shot for the crossbar veer slightly to the left and strike the goal post.

Some of those who like to cavil over such things did not seem to think that the Bulldogs deserved to come out with a tie against Tulane, but your correspondent, who viewed the proceedings, does not agree on that theory.

The line play on both sides was very near equal and there was very little to choose in the two teams' attack, although the reappearance of the Tulane tendency to fumble hurt the Greenies early in the game. Twice Tulane lost the ball in the first period inside the Georgia 30.

While Georgia's late score was of a highly spectacular order and came from nowhere, so to speak, it was nevertheless a belated reward for a lot of hard plugging that the Bulldog backs had done earlier. It progressed from the Bulldogs' 2-yard line, where a couple of penalties had set them back 98 yards on a pair of well-executed passes tossed by Sophomore Maurice Green, of El Paso, Texas, a former G. M. A. player, by the way.

GREEN SURPRISES.

Green, himself, was a surprise. There were some who doubted the boy's ability, particularly after a near-serious injury to his back in a prep school game in Atlanta two years ago almost terminated his football career before it reached the college stage. And the boy not only cracked the Tulane defense wide open with the two pass plays, but his running, blocking and kicking was good enough to make the Georgia supporters forget Big Buck Chapman when the latter was out of there.

There is another little story about Green. His play in scrimmage last week had been so sluggish and apathetic that Harry Mehre twice excused him from the practice field in favor of Johnny Jones.

Perhaps this little discipline by Harry Mehre was all that was necessary to awaken a lot of latent ability in the magnificently proportioned sophomore. At any rate, Coach Mehre was tickled to death with Green's work Saturday and it provided a lot of solace for loss of the game. Now he has a fullback who shows signs of developing to the extent that he can carry on adequately in case something should happen to Chapman.

ANOTHER STAR.

Another young Bulldog who proved his mettle under fire was Charley Treadaway, Jack Griffith's substitute at quarterback. It was Treadaway who made the nice leaping catch of Green's short pass from the end zone in the twilight of the game which brought the Bulldogs out in the clear and paved the way for the second electrical pass, Green to Henry Wagnon, and the latter's 55-yard sprint behind well-massed interference for the score.

You should hear more of Treadaway and Green in Georgia's future games. Both showed a lot of promise Saturday.

Both touchdowns—Georgia's and Tulane's—offered a study in interference. The Tulane protection of Little Monk Simons on his 32-yard jaunt also was a good piece of work; Robinson, the Tessiers and Bryan helping to get him into the clear and keep him there. This Tulane team of Ted Cox is a good blocking team, which is true of all good football teams.

The closeness of the score, however, and Georgia's minute comeback helped somewhat to deflate the Tulane team which had scored comparatively easy victories over Chattanooga, Auburn and Florida hand-running.

COX PLEASED.

Coach Ted Cox, who expected Georgia to come back and play a good game, was pleased with the deflation. It was close enough to have a salutory effect upon his men for approaching contests with Georgia Tech and Colgate, which may offer something of a test. Outside of these games and that with L. S. U. late in the season, this Tulane team will have fairly easy sailing toward compiling its first perfect record since Silent Bernie Bierman left these parts to take over the moulding of another great machine at Minnesota.

That Georgia was able to give Tulane its closest game to date is undeniably a tribute to a good job of preparatory coaching by Harry Mehre and his assistants after the North Carolina fiasco.

The Georgia coaches, particularly Mehre, were well pleased with their team's general play here Saturday.

Winning Foursome Seven Under Par.

Ten foursomes took part in the weekly "dog-fight" at the East Lake Club Sunday. The winning foursomes turned in a score of 137, seven strokes under par.

Members of the winning foursome included J. W. Welch, Bill Carrier Jr., W. W. Cole and A. V. Gilbert.

In second place at 138 were Dr. L. H. Kelley, Dr. H. W. Ridley, Dr. H. P. McDonald and J. S. Welch. Two foursomes were tied for third place at 141. They included C. A. Williams, Willis Calloway, Jack Thompson and Berrien Moore Sr., F. H. Witting, J. B. McConnell, W. P. Branch and J. J. McConnegaty.

The foursome of Hal Sargent, R. S. Mather, L. E. Mock and Randolph Brooks came in with 142.

Field Goal Wins For Memphis, 9-7

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 21.—(AP) A field goal in the last three minutes of play gave the Memphis Tigers a 9-to-7 victory over the Charlotte team in the American Professional league football game.

The deciding kick of the contest was lifted over the bar by Mike Massad before a crowd of 3,500. It was from the 33-yard line.

PETRELS SEEK FIFTH VICTORY AT HERMANCE

Birmingham Bulldogs Win Over Ole Miss; Have Good Record.

By Jack Troy.

Two by two they've gone marching through—the Petrels on parade. But Saturday at Hermance field Oglethorpe's high-stepping Gold and Black Storm Birds, seeking their fifth victory in six games, face a very rugged Howard eleven that Saturday turned back Mississippi, of the Southeastern conference, 7 to 6.

Oglethorpe won a more decisive victory over Rollins College, of Winter Park, Fla., than the 13-to-6 score shows. For the Petrels were battering the Rollins forwards inches away from a third touchdown when the whistle ended the contest.

Rollins deserved the break, however, because there were two players in the line, Malone and Murphy, right guard and right tackle, respectively, who played most of the afternoon in Oglethorpe's backfield.

SMART LINE.

Then, too, the Rollins line shifted around very smartly, indeed, to cut down the effectiveness of Oglethorpe's spinners, double reverses and the like.

The game taught the Petrels a lesson. And that is not to take any foe lightly. This was the way the Stormy ones apparently felt when they took the field and glanced over at a Rollins bench that showed only a handful of reserves in uniform. They quickly coupled this with the fact that four stars had been ruled ineligible.

Then they went out for the kickoff and quickly started going nowhere fast and, after finally scoring, found themselves unable to keep Rollins from doing the same.

It took all the great driving power and cool-headedness of Captain Frank Mitrick, one of the south's finest fullbacks, to keep the Oglethorpes in the game after that.

EQUAL TO IT.

But Captain Mitrick was equal to the occasion. He was like a safari driver, forcing his men through cannibal country. Except that Captain Mitrick applied no whip. He took the lead with his powerful drives into the line. And on the defense he was power personified in backing up the line.

Again Oglethorpe is the only college team in this section playing at home on Saturday. Both Tech and Georgia go away to meet opponents. And Howard is the toughest foe the Petrels will have met since the Auburn game. The only loss.

The Petrels Saturday again were the only state team to win, Tech, Georgia and Mercer losing. The Gold and Black is riding high, but Coach John Patrick, the fine young alumni leader, hopes it isn't to a fall.

BULLDOGS STRONG.

There is no questioning the strength of the Howard eleven. The Birmingham Bulldogs have it, so to speak, both in an offensive and defensive fashion.

Rollins upset the Petrels' equilibrium by shifting with them on the line and having a back in motion on the offense. The Petrels really never effectively stopped this play.

Then, too, the defense allowed a pass through for a touchdown. Howard is a much stronger passing team than Rollins is. And Howard is considerably more powerful on defense.

Oglethorpe still hasn't found a way to score extra points. True it was that Captain Mitrick rammed the middle for one Saturday, but line plunges, even the kind as offered by Mitrick, are no effective means of adding the points. So the coaches will try, try again to work up a kicker for this department.

PRIMARY DEPARTMENT.

So far they have got no farther than the primary department in placement and drop-kicking. An extra point or two really should be of inestimable value in the Howard game.

The Petrels came out of the Rollins game intact. And so, barring injuries in this week's drill, will have full strength for Howard.

Captain Mitrick was aided offensively Saturday by Clark, Leslie and Sullivan, for the most part. Jack Purvear, smart little quarterback, never had a chance because of an ankle injury. But he played well despite it.

GOOD SHOWING.

The two tackles, Robison and Darracott; Jack McNeely, guard; Ed Massey, center, and Hank Freeman, end, stuck in there and made a good showing in the line.

But the Petrels, as a whole, were not playing together as they have in other games. There was something lacking. But whatever it was, Rollins gave the boys something to remember them by for future games. The Howard game, for instance, is one.

HACKNEY MEETS JORDAN FRIDAY

Honey Boy Hackney, the popular light-heavyweight, who tackles Tarzan Jordan, southern light-heavyweight champion, on Friday night at the city auditorium, is fast becoming one of the most feared wrestlers in his class.

Hackney is a big, rugged wrestler who knows all the tricks of the trade. He is a smart and colorful man and does not waste any time in disposing of his opponents. In his matches here he has won many followers with his pleasing style of wrestling and Friday night he will have many fans "pulling" for him to beat Jordan.

In the feature match of the night, George Romanoff, former middleweight champion, will meet his arch rival, Jack Ross, the Greek Terror, in a return match. Ross defeated Romanoff at the Key arena during the summer in a rough-and-tumble match and injured the latter so badly that he was unable to wrestle for several weeks. This time Romanoff promises to turn the tables on Ross. It should be a great match.

Matchmaker Jason Thompson is highly elated over being able to rematch these two and is looking forward to a packed house.

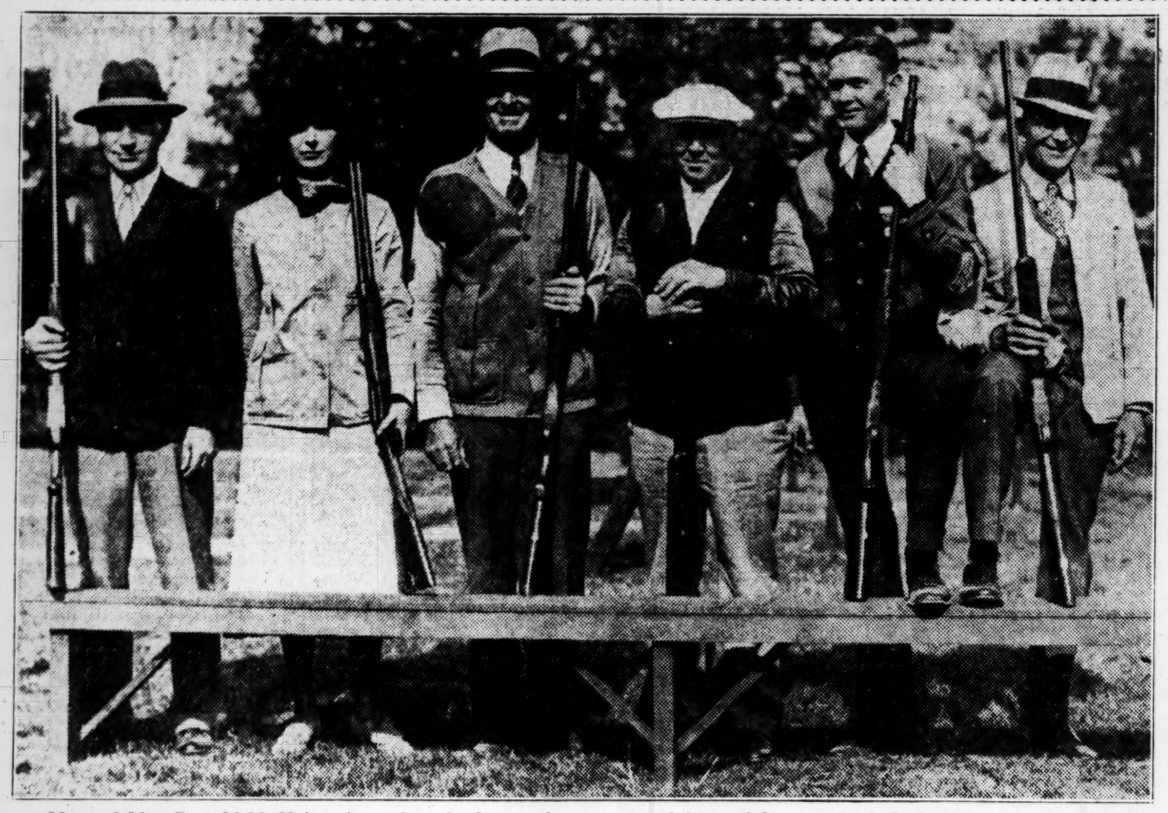

Tickets are on sale at the Five Points Soda Company and reserved seats can be had by calling Dearborn 3932.

INTERCEPTED PASS.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Dick Shinn, lightning heeled Dallas Ram halfback, intercepted a lateral pass on the 5-yard line and raced 95 yards for a touchdown to defeat Tulsa, 7 to 3, in an American Professional Football league game today.

Mr. McClain won the preliminary handicap and Mrs. McClain won the fall festival handicap Saturday. Other shooters, in order, left to right, are Paul Earle, Starr, S. C., all-round champion; Arthur Cuscaden, Tampa, high professional; Jack Tway, fall festival doubles champion, and Ferd Kahler, of New Albany, Ind., another winner. Staff photo by Turner Hiers.

DEFENDING TIDE WALLOPS VOLS

Vandy Barely Makes It in Game With Auburn Team.

By Kenneth Gregory.

Associated Press Sport Writer.

Emerging from the latest gridiron wars with a convincing victory over Tennessee, the powerful Alabama eleven had established itself today as a prime favorite for the Southeastern conference championship.

The Crimson Tide, defending its title won a year ago, exploded hopes of the Volunteers by troncing them 13 to 6, and only by the narrow margin of a point after touchdown were Tulane and Vanderbilt able to keep unmarred their perfect records that placed them in a three-way tie with Alabama for the conference leadership with three victories each.

Exceedingly formidable opposition confronts the leading trio this week, with the Tide facing Georgia at Birmingham, Tulane playing Georgia Tech at New Orleans and Vanderbilt clashing with Louisiana State at Nashville.

THREE LEADERS.

With Tennessee removed from the ranks of the undefeated and untied aggregations in the conference, only the three leaders can boast perfect records. Louisiana State, however, remains undefeated but has suffered two ties and ranks fourths in the Southeastern with one victory.

While Alabama gave a great exhibition to inflict upon Tennessee the seventh defeat handed the Vols since Major Bob Neyland became coach in 1926, Tulane escaped a deadlock with Georgia's rejuvenated Bulldogs when the latter failed to convert an extra point that would have given them a 7-to-7 tie with the Green Wave, and Vanderbilt scored a last-minute touchdown and kicked the extra point to eek out a 7-to-6 win over a surprisingly strong Auburn squad.

The Commodores, outplayed and outfought by the fast developing Alabama Poly team, will get a severe test in their tilt with the Baton Rouge Tigers Saturday. Both Vanderbilt and Louisiana State, conqueror of Arkansas by an impressive 16-to-0 score in an intersectional battle, have been advanced as possible title contenders and the outcome of their tussle will be awaited anxiously.

JACKETS IMPROVE.

Although Georgia Tech was defeated by Michigan, 9 to 2, in an intersectional duel, the Yellow Jackets displayed improvement over their last two appearances, when they were overwhelmed by Vanderbilt and Duke. The Engineers face another difficult assignment with Tulane this week.

In other intersectional frays involving teams from the south, Sewanee was swamped by Army, 20 to 0, but Centenary, of the Southern Intercollegiate Association, scored a last-minute field goal to beat Texas, 9 to 6.

Southeastern teams broke even in week-end competition with the neighboring Southern conference, Florida dealing a 14-to-0 setback to Hunk Anderson's North Carolina State eleven, while Kentucky was whipped by North Carolina, 6 to 0. The interloop schedule for Saturday sends Tennessee against Duke and Florida against Maryland.

Kentucky, after taking on five non-conference enemies, opens its Southeastern slate against Auburn at Lexington, with the inspired Plainsmen conceded a good chance to chalk up a loop victory after three successive losses.

In other games yesterday, Mississippi was upset by Howard, 7 to 6, and Mississippi State romped to an easy 21-to-6 verdict over Southwestern, of Tennessee. Ole Miss tackles Sewanee in an intra-conference contest Saturday, while the Maroons engage Mississippi College Friday night.

LOYOLA LEADS.

With three victories and no defeats, Loyola, of New Orleans, took undisputed lead in the S. I. A. A. standing, followed closely by Union College, Western Kentucky, Furman, Millsaps and Centenary with two wins and no losses.

Loyola conquered Mississippi College, 20 to 7. While Furman triumphed over Mercer, 9 to 3; Union College beat Morehead, 15 to 8, and Western Kentucky overwhelmed Transylvania, 20-0. Birmingham-Southern swamped Millsaps, 28 to 13, in an important Dixie conference engagement.

West End Ham Shoot Won by Gray, Wofford

Latter Shoots Fifty Straight To Win; Professor Duke Teaches Beginners.

By Jack Troy.

Professor I. B. Duke, who once was considered fairly respectable as field captain of the West End Gun Club, now will teach piano in ten easy lessons or give instruction on the Hawaiian guitar, all at a very reasonable figure, it is reliably reported.

It was quite a day, was yesterday, at the West End club. Professor Duke had his class of beginners out shooting skeet; Jack Gray and Joe Wofford won hams, and Benson Freeman Jr. rid mankind of a vicious reptile variously described as the African bushmaster and the American rattlesnake combined.

Some who saw the remains declared it was only a garter snake, but that's merely hearsay. Anyway, Freeman allowed as how he wanted no garter snake holding up his socks, so he did what he termed as a "very humanitarian act." An act of congress also comes in this category, sometimes.

FIFTY STRAIGHT.

The feature race of the day in the ham shoot was in the handicap division. Little Luther McDonald, a fine young sportsman, apparently had the inanimate porker for his very own. But that was before Joe Wofford came breezing in on the wings of dusk with a 50 straight.

So Little Luther congratulated him and hoped for better luck next time. Wofford's score, with handicap, was 55. He beat out young McDonald, who, unlike Old McDonald, has no farm, by one target.

Jack Gray won the scratch ham—that is, the ham in the scratch division—with a fine score of 47x50. Archie Comer, the pilot, and Professor I. B. Duke, the old piano teacher, were tied for runner-up with 45. Other leading scores included Jack Tway, Benson Freeman and C. L. (Snooky) Davis, 44.

TWO STRAIGHTS.

Joe Wofford, so they say, had a hungry look on his face and it was accentuated by a look at Young McDonald's score before he went out to shoot. But he did away with that, he did, with his poly-choke. There were only two straights, and Jack had the other one. Gray's was for 25 targets.

Other handicap scores included Ralph Minehan, 49; Jack Troy, 48; A. G. Smith, 48; E. D. Smith Jr., 47; Ralph Zachry, 46; H. L. White, 46; Dad Hawkins, 45, and W. 2A. Holbrook, 45.

Fifty-bird scores, not registered: George Hatcher, 47; H. D. Blackwell, 42; Dr. W. C. Goodpasture, 41; E. B. Pyron, 39; J. C. Lawson, 38; B. N. Hansberger, 34; S. W. Roper, 33; Mr. Friar, 31; Major E. G. Herlihy, 31; T. C. Mayo, 26; G. H. Hubert, 22, and W. F. Harris, 15. Twenty-five bird scores: L. E. Draper, 17; J. R. Shaw, 15; W. J. Schaffer, 13; G. P. Holton, 12, and Frank Terrell, 11.

BEGINNERS.

Included in Professor Duke's unusually large class of beginners were Miss Margaret Herlihy, 12-year-old daughter of Major Edward G. Herlihy; Miss Frances White, Frank (Pap) Terrell, John R. Shaw, G. P. Holton, Mr. Smallen and W. F. Harris. The club has two fields and beginners are welcome. They will be given the personal attention of Professor Duke, the one-time field captain.

The West End club has entered its best team in the southern state skeet championship at the Capitol Gun Club Friday and Saturday, and also Al Frese Jr., Atlanta junior champion, and Luther McDonald, junior star. Other teams will be entered from the club if members will communicate with Secretary C. L. Davis. The West End plans to win at least one title on the southern skeet event.

Team Standings For Southeastern.

GREEN PRAISED FOR GOOD WORK

Georgia came as close to playing a perfect game of football as one will see turned in by a losing team and the Georgia offense was actually better than that of Tulane, which was supposed to be the last word in offenses, the Bulldogs gaining 259 yards to 251 for the opposition and earning 11 first downs to nine on passing and running plays. Tulane's 10th first down was on the 15-yard penalty for holding which put Georgia back to the 4 just before its touchdown.

GREAT SHOWING.

Georgia's showing against a supposedly superior team, against the handicap of the intense heat which called for excessive time outs, not only should disperse a lot of the gloom attendant to the outcome of the Carolina game but should bolster the team's morale for the game with Alabama at Birmingham next Saturday.

Visiting scouts, including Mack Tharpe and Roy McArthur, who reported on Tulane for Georgia Tech, the Greenies' next opponent here, praised the Georgia team highly and thought its showing on the whole highly commendable.

Johnny Bond did an excellent job of kicking, maintaining a high average of 45 yards against Simons' 38 for Tulane.

In the line, the slightly-built John McKnight played heroic football, well matching the brilliance of Tulane's fine center, Homer Robinson. McKnight and Buck Chapman, who backed the line most of the first half, distinguished themselves by repeatedly smearing the Tulane power plays directed at the tackles and guards.

It was a game of few mistakes and exceedingly hard tackling—the teeth-rattling kind—which may have accounted for the fumbles on both sides. The Georgia line and secondary tackled with a vicious precision that had much to do with repulsing the early Tulane drives which ended in fumbles, one on the Georgia 11 and another on the 25.

BOTTLE UP SIMONS.

The Bulldogs also succeeded in bottling up Monk Simons, Tulane's 195-pound halfback, who ran amuck in the earlier Tulane games, with the lone exception of his 32-yard run on the cutback play for the Greenie touchdown. In the first period, the Tulane quarterback attempted to keep Simons under cover by running Mintz so repeatedly that the impatient and voluble Tulane cheering section began yelling for a change in tactics.

Simons ran with the ball 11 times for a total gain of 91 yards.

Somewhat of a let-down from his performance against Florida.

At that, however, Simons and Stanley Lodriguez, whom scouts seemed to think a better fullback than Loftin, were Tulane's standout backs. Bucky Bryan, a very fine runner and dangerous in an open field, gave Georgia comparatively little trouble. Georgia's pass game, as predicted in advance, gave Tulane the most trouble. Tech's passes should worry the Wave Saturday.

The lines, as stated before, were about equal, Georgia's younger set of forwards playing on a par with Tulane's experienced front wall. Georgia's end play was greatly improved, Turbeyville and Wagnon turning in exceptional games.

The principal Georgia casualty was Butch McCullough's fractured arm, which probably will keep him out of the next three games.

BLUES WIN.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Celebrating their first home stand of the season, the St. Louis Blues defeated the Louisville Bourbons, 18 to 0, today to move into first place in the American Professional Football league standings.

'BAMA PRAISED BY DAN M'GUGIN

Crimson Has Remarkable Squad, Great Back, Vandy Coach Says.

By Dan McGugin,

Head Football Coach, Vanderbilt University.

(Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 21.—Two of the country's great football teams, Alabama and Tennessee, struggled almost to a deadlock—Alabama winning, two touchdowns to one. An analysis of the play shows how easy it would have been for Alabama to have scored a third touchdown, or for Tennessee to have scored a total of three.

Tennessee has a beautifully balanced, hard-fighting, aggressive team. She has a great leader in Moses, quarterback, the kind of man who gets everything possible out of his mates on the offensive. Her passing is dangerous and she mixes her passing and running with exceptional skill and, ordinarily, her punting game is brilliant.

Alabama has a remarkable squad, a great punter, passer and runner in Howell; a clear-headed signal caller in Riley Smith; great driving power in Demyanovich; great ends who, in addition to other duties, can carry the ball; some exceptional forwards, and a number of capable backs. Tennessee gained more at the running game, slightly more in passing, but had two fumbles recovered by Alabama. Her punting game just wouldn't go right, occasionally because Alabama was rushing furiously but mainly because Tennessee punts, instead of rolling on down the field when they were allowed to hit, bounced sharply back toward Tennessee's goal.

TWO GREAT TEAMS.

Here were two great football teams, prepared by two of the country's great coaches—Alabama a little more alert in recovering fumbles and getting the breaks in a punting game. Seizing these breaks, Alabama lost little time in scoring.

These teams were so evenly matched that if they were to play a series of games, as baseball teams, I believe each would win two-fifths of the time, allowing for an occasional tie.

Georgia drew heavily on courage, playing with great determination, but lost to Tulane, 7 to 6. Simons, Tulane's great halfback, late in the second quarter, with his teammate, Bryan, brilliantly blocking, ran 32 yards to score Tulane's touchdown. Georgia kept fighting, though hard-pressed. In the closing minutes of the game with the ball on Georgia's 2-yard line, Green, standing behind his goal line, passed to Treadaway for 19 yards. Green then passed to Wagnon in midfield and he ran on for the touchdown, but the try for point hit one of the uprights and bounced back.

Vanderbilt had a narrow escape, winning against Auburn, 7 to 6, on a pass in the last few minutes of play. To say that the Auburn crowd was gallant, hard-fighting and wonderfully coached by Jack Meagher would be telling only half the truth. It is difficult to pick out stars, because every Auburn man played with that dash and determination worthy of the game's best traditions. Mitchell was a most effective ground-gainer, Fenton, end; Patterson and Rogers, at tackles, and Gilbert, at center, were unusually good.

TECH PLAYS WELL.

Georgia Tech played a very creditable 9-to-2 game against a vastly improved Michigan team. Washington and Lee gave Princeton a terrific scare, losing, 12 to 14. Sewanee, true to tradition, played a gallant game against the Army. The great Duke team coasted along with Davidson, and the very strong Florida outfit won against Hunk Anderson's improving North Carolina State by two touchdowns. A great Louisiana team showed decisive superiority, defeating Arkansas, 16 to 0.

Mississippi State won from Southwestern, but Mississippi lost, 6 to 7, to Howard. The gallant Kentucky team lost by one touchdown to the strong North Carolina team.

Senator Long is bringing the Louisiana team to the Nashville game with Vanderbilt next Saturday with a 160-piece student band and 3,000 students, 1,500 in the uniform of the cadet corps, and his sound trucks. Nashville will hardly be able to hold the great gathering of people eager to see Senator Long and the visitors from Louisiana University.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

The False-Card by Dummy

If the defense could look into the dealer's hand, they could of course defend every contract perfectly. But there are other ways besides peeking whereby the declarer's holdings can be learned. Some declarers play in such a manner that the effect is exactly as if they had exposed their own hands as well as dummy. If a player does not mask his holdings, the extra tricks he picks up and the unmakable contracts he fulfills will be few and far between.

The declarer can mislead his opponents not only by false-carding from his own hand, but also by false-carding from dummy. Despite the fact that the dummy's hand is in full view of both adversaries, its manipulation must carry inferences as to the character of the declarer's own hand, which, of course, is not seen; and for this reason the false-card from the open-hand is often very effective. It is illustrated in the declarer's choice of discards from dummy in the following deal:

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 9 8 6 ♡ 9 6 ◇ A 8 4 ♣ K 10 7 5 2
♠ A K J 7 2 ♡ 4 3 ◇ J 6 5 3 ♣ J 3	N W E S	♠ 10 3 ♡ 10 8 7 2 ◇ Q 7 2 ♣ Q 9 8 6

On rather optimistic bidding, chiefly by the North player, a final contract of four hearts was reached with South as the declarer. West opened the spade king, continued with the ace, and then permitted East to ruff the third round. East now exited with a trump, although a club return would have turned out very well indeed.

South cashed three top trumps and on the third he very carefully discarded a club from dummy. Most players at this point would have discarded a diamond, retaining all the clubs as potential trick-winners; but South saw he had everything to gain and nothing to lose by making his discard unnatural. He knew he must win the rest of the tricks to fulfill the contract, and that the indicated play was to try for a 3-3 split in clubs, using the diamond ace for a subsequent re-entry if the club division was satisfactory. He realized, however, that the fifth club would be useless anyway and that he might as well discard it in order to simulate to the defense the intention of abandoning the club suit completely.

The declarer now cashed the fourth trump, this time of course discarding a diamond from dummy. East was faced with a choice of discards from three diamonds of four clubs, each topped by the queen. He finally let go a club and thus enabled South to fulfill the contract.

East later explained that his partner's spade bid turned out to be weaker than he had expected and that he had visualized South's hand as containing Spades—Q 5 4.

Hearts—A K Q J 5.
Diamonds—K 10 9 x x.
Clubs—

If this picture had been the true one the diamond discard by East would have been the only losing play.

East's reasoning of course was wrong, but there is no doubt but that the declarer's club discard from dummy considerably influenced East's decision.

CROSS STITCH FOR CHAIR SET. PATTERN 5240.

Cross stitch—all in black or the color of the chair or done in varied colors! And what a charming set it will make! You can have a very effective pillow too, by using just the design of the chair back. The crosses are 6 to the inch so the work can be done quickly. This set is something that will meet with instant approval as a gift, so why not make it and store it away till you need it?

In pattern 5240 you will find a transfer pattern of a chair back 12 1-2 by 15 inches and two arm rests 5 1-2 by 12 1-2 inches; instructions for making it or a pillow; material requirements, and illustrations of the stitches needed.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Jeff, July Hound, Wins in Field Trials

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 21.—Jeff, a very handsome July fox hound, from the kennels of Thomas W. Asbury, of this city, and entered by Mrs. Asbury, won the silver cup championship at the Florida State Fox Hunters Association field trials at Quincy, Fla., last week. Jeff was the winner in the derby for younger dogs, outdistancing a large number of entries.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

With all the boldness (or perhaps it is courage) of their new financial independence and new freedom, the young women of this generation have tried to make themselves and the world believe that they can order their own lives, find contentment and even happiness without the men. Every now and again one of them cries out of the emptiness and the loneliness of her experience: "It's no go. There is no substitute for the satisfaction of loving and being loved."

She is eternally right. Every normal young girl reaches womanhood with the desire to be loved by some man. She may not give expression to her wish. She may even deny it volubly to herself and to others. But the fact remains that this is the first claim of her femininity. There are some girls who, due to natural charm, or to favorable circumstances, never have occasion to think about the matter one way or another. They grow up with boy playmates and scarcely realize when the boys cease to be playmates and become beaux. They run through one puppy love affair after another, finally meet the prince charming and get married.

But there is another type that starts out with a handicap, or rather with two handicaps. She lacks the come hither. She must go out and seek and find her beaux. Intuitively she knows that she must conceal her design or she scares the men away. The second handicap is that she realizes she may fail and in that event she wants to provide cover to run to. So she pretends to an indifference that she doesn't feel. If she is excessively sensitive she disclaims her interest and disclaims it so frequently and so volubly that she deceives herself. Then when she is willing to reverse herself and acknowledge the truth, it is sometimes too late. Admirable reticence may have stilled her tongue. Fierce pride may have made her deny the truth, but the truth remains to inspire her, to joy her, to sorrow her or to mock her. When she was born a girl there was born at the same time a latent desire to love and be loved, to be married and have children.

There have never been enough men to go around. This fact is one of the anomalies of nature which the scientist may explain on any ground they choose, but the explanations don't solace the disappointment of those who do not find their mates. In addition, men have lost their jobs, and their salaries and wages reduced to such an extent that many of them have been disqualified for marriage; so the number of women who draw blanks in the marriage lottery is further increased. They are no different, heart-wise, from their sisters, yet they must learn to adjust themselves to a life that is not to their liking. They have to be on the lookout for compensations. They have to make substitutions. They have to find contentment in munching unbuttered bread though they are hungry for cake.

Those who have ambition and ability frequently earn and save enough to maintain homes of their own and some to adopt children and establish a family life. But there is a vast army of those who never earn beyond current necessities and even with economical living never get beyond the rented room and the seat at the boarding house table. The least fortunate can find compensations and make substitutions that enable them to live useful and fruitful lives.

They can look about them at the wretched married women and say: "At least we have escaped that misery." They can listen to the stories of drunkenness, penuriousness, infidelity, gross selfishness on the part of husbands and they can say: "Independence is sweet and I have it." They can cast their eyes about at children who have disappointed their parents, at children who have been loved and adored, yet turned out badly, and they can say to themselves: "It is far better not to have had children than to have endured the heartache and anguish that those parents have endured."

But they must go further, these thwarted women whom romantic love has passed by. They must find objects of affection in sisters and brothers, nieces and nephews, in friends and relatives, for a woman must have somebody to love if her life is not to be empty and impoverished. Work, hobbies, membership in church and clubs, these things are fillers but they won't take the place of close and affectionate relationships to people.

The unmarried woman's lot in this day and time is infinitely better than it was in any former time. Every field of interest and opportunity is open to her, whereas formerly she had no alternative but to live with some relative, regardless of the welcome that was extended to her, regardless of the bitterness of her dependence. She can now earn her living, go about when and where she chooses without asking leave of anyone. Nothing restricts her but her earning ability. Unhappy wives look enviously at her. Men respect her. Nieces and nephews love her. Communities, churches, clubs, business, professions rise up and call her blessed.

Lillian Mae Patterns

DOUBLE-POINTED YOKE PLUS SLIT HEM EQUALS CHIC FROCK.
Pattern 2052.

It doesn't matter which is plaid and which is plain, or whether you use the same or different fabrics in making up this smart two-piece frock with its gay scarf-collar. The well-tailored over-blouse buttons all the way up the front just like a suit coat and the double-pointed yoke continues over the shoulder in the very latest way. The skirt is a perfect example of the reed-like slimness of the fashionable silhouette—slashed at the side according to the dictates of both Paris and comfort. If you prefer, wear the blouse without the collar as in the small illustration. Either way is chic.

Pattern 2052 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 1 3-4 yards 54-inch fabric and 1 3-8 yards contrasting for blouse. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

VULTURES.

In the morning mail a few days ago there was a letter from a young man in Ohio who wanted to get a lot of information about vultures. It seems that he wanted the data to apply on a graduate thesis at Cornell University, where he is studying under Dr. A. A. Allen. By the way, I have an important announcement to make about that gentleman as soon as Berma Jarrard says I may.

Needless to say, the young man wanted to know a great deal more than I could tell him. I told him what I knew and then referred him to the leading Georgia ornithologists, even though the dean of them is now in North Carolina.

I do know, however, that the buzzard is a vastly more important bird than most Georgians have yet realized. He occurs uniformly over the state and is most useful in cleaning up carcasses of animals that have died from any cause. Let that sink in and then consider the scourge now being laid upon the live stock of south Georgia by a seemingly malevolent nature.

Powers of soaring reach their maximum development in this bird, so far as my knowledge of birds in general is concerned. I have never seen the famous condors in flight, but I don't believe all I have heard about them anyway. I never tire of watching the vultures wheeling, circling, sailing, almost out of sight, yet keenly aware of what is happening on the ground below. Should anything the size of a rabbit be located, they drop swiftly to the ground to feed. This plummet-like drop is noted by other birds, which in turn head in that direction. There is soon a flock on hand and the bare bones of the animal are left in mute testimony of the powers of this bird in stripping flesh. I have seen as many as 17 of these birds on one carcass.

My northern friends have referred to this bird as the southern sanitary department. I suspect they did this intentionally to rile me by implication, but I have so far not failed to bring it back to them twice over by biding my time and pointing out certain regrettable conditions in their own cities.

The vultures are not able to grasp and carry away their food as are the true birds of prey, but they make such excellent jobs on the spot that we should not hold their weakened claws against them. You see, the talons were evolved first, but carrion-eating habits led to a degeneration of the bird and, consequently, loss of grasping powers.

Awtry & Lowndes Renders Kindly Personal Service to Bereaved Families

HUMAN ATTITUDE MARKS CONTACTS IN TIME OF DEATH

Funeral Directors Prepared To Render All-Inclusive Service in Preparation for Burial.

Personal service—that kindly spirit which is most needed in time of bereavement—is exemplified in every contact by Awtry & Lowndes, funeral directors, whose human attitude has proven helpful and comforting to thousands of sorrowing relatives at such times.

Few persons, declares J. W. Awtry, president of Awtry & Lowndes, give thought to the day when death shall come, and when their loved ones, within the space of a few hours, must decide upon the myriad details attending preparation for funeral services and burial.

"Much of the burden would be lifted from the shoulders of those bereaved," he asserts, "if the choice of funeral directors were made before death's coming. One should make this selection with just as much care as he exercises in selecting a physician, and with this done he will know a heavy burden will be taken from the family in hours of grief."

Few persons, passing along Atlanta's busy downtown streets, are aware of the quiet beauty and the splendid equipment of the Awtry & Lowndes establishment—only a half minute from Peachtree street, at 21 Cain street, N. W. Atlantans are invited to visit Awtry & Lowndes at any time. For them, a revelation is in store.

A funeral directors' establishment, Mr. Awtry points out, is seldom a place of somber gloom such as it is frequently pictured. Instead—as at Awtry & Lowndes—it is a place of cheerfulness, where every effort is made to dispel grief and to soothe and comfort saddened hearts.

The Awtry & Lowndes chapel, with a seating capacity of 400 persons, is air-conditioned, and the noises of the streets may be shut out without impairing its comfortable temperature. It is equipped with remote control for air cooling, lighting effects and pre-service organ music.

Its altar, outlined by a stained glass window, is flanked on one side by the organ alcove, and on the other by a recess where members of the bereaved family may sit during the funeral service, shielded from the view of the audience. (Other family rooms are provided for the comfort and convenience of the family before and after services.)

It was of a service in this chapel of which one bereaved recently said:

Awtry & Lowndes' service is based upon seven distinct points—efficiency, sympathy, dignity, thoughtfulness, friendliness, kindness and reasonableness—which every person should consider when a loved one is to be laid to rest. And these attributes have made Awtry & Lowndes' service a thing to be desired when death lays its hand upon the door.

Awtry & Lowndes, long established in Atlanta, combines simple dignity with efficiency and moderate cost, and in this manner has won countless friends. They are quick to perceive what is wanted, perhaps to gather the combined wishes of a family as expressed by one, and to meet these views with efficiency and personal contact.

"So quiet and peaceful, so natural and human."

The tribute paid to your loved one in this quiet, roomy chapel will be a sweet recollection in the years to come.

John H. Harland & Company Offers Aid to Office Heads

JOHN H. HARLAND.

An office can be no more efficient than its equipment, declares John H. Harland, president of the John H. Harland Company, lithographers, printers and office supply dealers.

"An office," he asserts, "is very much like the chain which is no stronger than its weakest link. It may be staffed by a fine and efficient group of workers, yet its efficiency may be lessened by the 'tools' with which they must do their work."

The office manager who is interested in maintaining a high standard of efficiency would do well to visit the John H. Harland Company office supply department, which is located at 8 Pryor street, adjacent to the entrance to the Ten Pryor Street building, and to discuss their problems with Mr. Harland or one of his associates. From long experience in dealing with office supplies and equipment, they possess a wealth of knowledge of the ways in which these things may be employed to serve the interests of efficiency.

This retail stationery and office supply department carries at all times a complete stock of modern office appliances and equipment, from pins to filing cabinets, and is in position to insure rapid delivery.

The company maintains a large, especially constructed daylight plant at Highland avenue and Jackson street, housing its printing and lithographing departments.

These department, under the personal direction of John A. Butler, vice president, handle practically all types of lithographing and printing.

The company, however, specializes in the production of high-grade securities and insurance forms. The plant is manned by skilled operators whose fine work have won for the company many satisfied customers.

Besides Mr. Harland and Mr. Butler, the company's official personnel includes P. Rufus Brown, vice president; H. Grady Wilson, secretary, and Charles B. Merritt, treasurer.

ECONOMY IN FUEL IS MADE POSSIBLE BY HORNE COAL CO.

Red Banner and Black Glow Insure Savings, With Highest Quality and Plenty of Heat.

When the best is so easily obtainable and used with proven success, the purchaser of inferior grades of coal practices a false economy which is certain to "hurt" the pocketbook, declares H. L. Horne, president of the increasingly popular Horne Coal Company.

When he speaks of the best, Mr. Horne knows whereof he speaks. He means Red Banner and Black Glow coals, which the company has handled ever since its organization, and which have brought satisfying warmth and winter comfort to countless Atlanta homes.

The Horne Coal Company, which maintains headquarters at 504 Glenn street, S. W., and a branch yard at Wylie street and Flat Shoals avenue, specializes also in Colonial coke and stoker coal—both products of the highest obtainable grade for their respective uses.

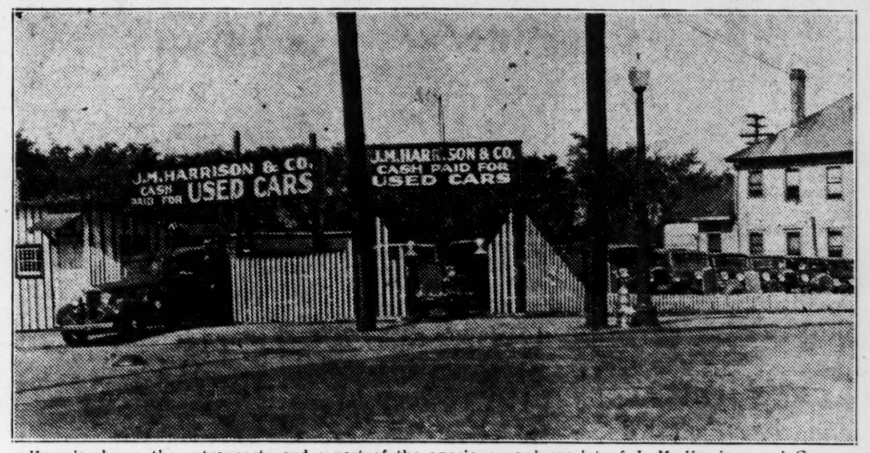

"These better grades of coal," says Mr. Horne, "are in constantly increasing demand, and the wise home or building owner will buy his winter's coal supply early. The longer he delays, the harder it will be to obtain."

Mr. Horne directs a special note of warning to Atlantans who have thus far failed to check up on their coal bins. Too frequently, he asserts, the home owner finds himself in the midst of the autumn's first cold spell without the means of heating his home—a forgotten obligation to his loved ones. When that cold spell arrives, he finds also that coal companies are flooded with orders, which means necessary delays in delivery.

To avert, as nearly as possible, this condition, the Horne Coal Company recently has considerably increased its already large delivery fleet of trucks, and with these facilities is in a position to give immediate delivery on orders of any size to any section of the city.

Thousands of satisfied customers of the Horne Coal Company attest to the splendid service and the high standard of quality maintained by the company in the past, and Mr. Horne attributes his company's success in its field to this satisfied patronage.

J. M. Harrison & Company Reports Increase In Demand for Reconditioned Cars, Trucks

Here is shown the entrance to and a part of the spacious used car lot of J. M. Harrison and Company, at 352 Spring street, where the prospective purchaser of a reconditioned car or truck is invited to inspect a large stock embracing many makes and models. Another J. M. Harrison and Company lot is situated two doors from North avenue, on the east side of West Peachtree street, adjoining the company's huge building at 17 North avenue.

Always an unerring indication of good feeling and confidence in the future on the part of Mr. Average Wage Earner, the sale of used cars is proving a stimulating and gratifying influence on business, according to G. B. Graham, general manager of J. M. Harrison & Co.

While new car sales have dropped off, Mr. Graham states, due to seasonal conditions, the demand for used cars has been greater this year than usual, resulting in unusually high values.

J. M. Harrison & Co., dealer for Dodge and Plymouth cars and Dodge trucks, maintains two spacious used car lots, where it keeps at all times a widely varied stock of reconditioned used cars and trucks, from which any prospective buyer may select the auto to fulfill his needs. One of these lots, shown in the accompanying picture, is situated at 352 Spring street, N. W., and another is located on the east side of West Peachtree street, just around the corner from the company's handsome building at 17 North avenue.

The company, during the present month, has made marked progress in stock reduction in its used car department, Mr. Graham states, having sold approximately 70 cars and reduced its stock by about 30. He confidently predicts used car sales for October will exceed 100, which would give the company its largest number of units sold during any month this year.

Used car sales thus far in 1934, he asserts, have exceeded those of last year in almost every month.

Mr. Graham attributes the decline in new car sales (aside from seasonal conditions) and the increased demand for used cars, in part, to the progress of the national housing act. Home owners, he states, given the opportunity, are spending more money for repairing and reconditioning their homes, sacrificing the idea of buying new cars in many instances and are buying well-reconditioned used cars for family use.

Thousands of Atlantans know by experience the high standards maintained by J. M. Harrison & Co. in reconditioning used cars before sale and know they will get the utmost in service from any car purchased from its used car lots. Every car thus sold first has undergone a thorough overhauling and has been put in first-class condition.

The used car purchaser will find at either of the J. M. Harrison & Co. lots a staff of salesmen thoroughly conversant with their stocks and fully qualified to advise the prospective buyer on the car to suit his needs. These men, courteous and efficient, are under the supervision of Wesley Mills, used car sales manager, and A. E. Murphy, assistant used car manager, both of whom have had long experience in the automobile field.

The person contemplating purchase of a reconditioned car will do well first to inspect the offerings of J. M. Harrison & Co.

SHARP & BOYLSTON PREPARED TO AID FEDERAL FHA PLAN

Management Experience and Technical Knowledge Offered To Determine Owners' Needs.

"Property owners should take advantage of the opportunity offered by the national housing act to improve their property," according to W. A. Sharp, treasurer of Sharp-Boylston Company.

"With the entire federal administration concentrating on better housing conditions, and with the public works administration building some 1,200 to 1,400 residential units in Atlanta, owners of renting property should recondition and modernize their property in order to meet this competition," says Mr. Sharp.

"We are co-operating fully with the national housing administration and the owners of real estate in making this part of the recovery program successful in every way, and profitable to property owners."

"We know," says Mr. Sharp, "that owners of all property in need of repairs do not have to borrow money from the government. We know that most of the property in the hands of insurance companies is not dependent upon government loans for repairs. We know that some owners are ineligible for loans on account of delinquent mortgages and taxes.

"But there are a great many owners of investment properties who are eligible for loans and need assistance to make necessary repairs.

"We are conferring daily with these owners and offering management experience and technical knowledge necessary to determine just what expense would be justified to make the expenditure profitable."

TARZAN AND THE LION MAN No. 31

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The gruff warriors took Obroski and Kwamudi to the open space before the hut of Rungula, and tied them against the boles of two trees, facing each other. Here Obroski was forced to watch the Basutos torture Kwamudi so horribly, so fiendishly that he feared for his reason. And thus he saw Kwamudi die.

It became evident later that the savages did not intend to kill Obroski this night. They were merely furnishing him with a foretaste of his own fate. The blacks led him back to the prison hut and flung him cold and shivering on the filthy floor. His mind sank into numb despair, and finally he slept.

He awoke at noon. The midday warmth sent new life coursing through his veins. A sudden determination seized him. He would not die as the others had died—like sheep led to the slaughter. He conceived a plan, and the longer he considered it, the more anxious he became to put it into effect.

Almost impatiently now, Obroski awaited those who would lead him to torture. When the swift tropical twilight had changed to night, he saw the warriors coming for him. Obroski crawled out of the hut and met them with a smile. But they led him away as they had led away the three blacks before him!

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

"DESERTED" AREAS

One of the greatest mistakes a driver can make is to get the idea that he can safely speed when the streets are apparently deserted. You can approach an intersection and if you know there is little travel on the cross street you are tempted to go through without diminishing your speed. Some day another car will be coming along that cross street and you will be unable to stop in time to avoid a smashup.

A NEW GOLD RUSH
A new gold rush is sweeping the country, not in canyons or gulches, but in old bureau drawers. When President Roosevelt, with a stroke of his pen, increased the price of gold, it started millions of people searching in odd corners, old bureaus, chests and closets for gold, old gold (that is, bits of out-of-date jewelry, dental gold and old watches). Today these are worth more than they have been for two generations.

DAILY SHORT STORY

ALMS OF LOVE

The Gods of Chance Exposed Cartwright Before His Philandering Succeeded.

By GERALDINE SWANSON.

I stopped, as usual, on the way from my office to the I. C. train to drop a coin in Blind Ben's cup. Not that I thought he needed my trifling charity, but more as an offering to the gods of chance. I had done it for years—unfailingly—except when inclement weather drove Blind Ben from his sidewalk seat against the tall office building, or during the coldest winter months, when he disappeared completely.

The clink of the coins in his cup brought vividly to my mind a scene from the night before. If ever a man had need of his gods of luck, I did. My wife, my lovely, gay-hearted Gail, was slipping from me.

The thought of her loving another was like gall and wormwood in my mouth, and in my heart was the bitterness of death.

It began when we moved into our present apartment. Among our new neighbors was a Mr. Cartwright. He looked very familiar, but I could not place him. He was tall, thin, slightly gray, and carried a cane. He lived alone and kept aloof from the other tenants.

His lone, distinguished figure captured my imagination, and my curiosity was piqued by that haunting sense of familiarity. I made a rather determined effort to meet and cultivate the man.

I was quite taken aback at our first meeting to discover that Cartwright's rather striking eyes were distinctly mismated, one warmly brown, the other hazel. Not that they detracted from his pleasant personality, but rather added a charm of strangeness to it.

He made no effort to disguise them, though I saw from the ridge across the bridge of his nose that he must occasionally wear reading glasses.

I could not possibly have forgotten so remarkable a feature as his eyes if I had ever known him. Still the sense of familiarity persisted.

His reserve was difficult to break through, and he displayed an unmistakable reluctance to accept our first overtures. But Gail's childlike friendliness and unconsciousness of rebuff were hard to withstand, and we were soon making a frequent threesome.

We both found Cartwright a thoroughly likable person, charming, well-bred, interesitng, well-read and well-traveled. He never discussed his private affairs, but talked in most entertaining fashion of his winter travels in Florida, California, Europe and the orient.

I was at first amused and later vaguely annoyed at Gail's attitude. Whether because of his seeming aloneness or mismated eyes or cane lightly used and often discarded, Gail frankly mothered him. Perhaps I was subconsciously remembering that pity is akin to love and regetting sharing her so generously with a stranger.

One night, out of a growing unease or irritability, I tactlessly broached the subject of his seeming familiarity. His manner cooled abruptly.

"You could scarcely have known and forgotten a man with eyes like mine," he said, and I felt that he secretly sneered at me. He excused himself soon after and left.

"Damme!" I said later, discussing it with Gail. "He needn't have sneered as if I were trying to claim acquaintance with my betters."

"But how silly," protested Gail. "He's much too fine a gentleman to have meant anything of the sort." Jealousy's ugly head reared itself at her defense of him. Anger smoldered in me, but I swallowed a bitter retort.

Too stubborn to admit my jealousy of Cartwright, we continued to see him, but our easy companionship was over. The more charming he was, the more boorish I felt. The more interestingly he talked, the more bitterly I watched Gail's absorbed attention.

I was rude and churlish with Gail when we were alone. Agonized over the possibility of losing Gail, I drove her farther from me with my surly and unreasonable way. It made a vicious circle.

Last night had seemed to me a climax. The three of us were going to the theater together. Gail and Cartwright had preceded me down the stairs. Near the bottom Gail had dropped her purse, and coins, keys and vanities had scattered over the lobby floor. As I came to the top of the stairs Cartwright had started to collect them.

The blood suddenly pounded in my ears. Seeing him there sitting back on his heels picking up the glittering miscellany from Gail's purse, I knew with absolute certainty that some time in the past or somewhere in the present he was a familiar figure. I knew . . . but not where.

He rose to his feet and, taking Gail's hand, he poured the clinking stream of coins into it. Gail, glancing up, saw me watching, and under her camellialike skin a slow flood of crimson rose from throat to chin to cheek to brow.

I must have been standing beside Blind Ben, lost in bitter memories, for some time. I had been blocking the view of him and cutting off the stream of his charity. I was roused by an impatient movement beside my knees as Blind Ben brusquely moved to be better seen.

At the same time a messenger boy came tearing around the corner on roller skates and ran pell mell into Blind Ben, knocking him over and sending his coins rolling and skipping along the sidewalk. While indignant and sympathetic pedestrians picked him up and dusted him off and collected his coins, I retrieved his dark glasses from the curb.

And then and there the gods of chance repaid. They gave me back my sanity, my faith in Gail and my confidence in my ability to hold her love.

I stooped to replace Blind Ben's glasses and found myself gazing into a pair of eyes, instantly guarded, then filled with mingled regret, apology and wry humor. A pair of eyes, one warmly brown, one hazel.

STOVE PLANTS AT ROME SHIP COMPLETED UNITS

ROME, Ga., Oct. 21.—Shipment of stoves continued throughout Saturday at two Rome stove foundries as manufacturers sought to utilize all available time allowed under military orders to complete removal of stock from the plants, which have been closed by strikes for two months.

The period covered by military orders, left by Colonel L. C. Pope, when national guard troops were removed from four foundries here two weeks ago, ends at midnight tonight. Two of the plants will be unable entirely to clear their warehouses, the management reported.

Colonel Pope's orders provided that pickets were not to interfere with shipments of finished products during the two weeks and that the foundries were not to manufacture or mount stoves or remove patterns from the plants. The troops were sent here early this month when pickets interfered with shipping at the foundries.

Unless some action is taken by the national labor board at Washington, the four plants where strikes are in force may remain closed indefinitely, the manufacturers indicate.

New Streamline Train Plans Record Assault

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Bent on reaching New York city by 10 o'clock or earlier Thursday morning, the Union Pacific's new Pullman-equipped streamline train will streak out of Los Angeles at 10 p. m. tomorrow on a transcontinental test trip designed to clip 18 or more hours from the normal rail travel time.

The primary purpose of the test trip, rail officials said, is to demonstrate that the train can speed to Chicago on a 40-hour schedule. While the schedule calls for a 20-hour run from Chicago to New York, this leg of the journey has not received so much emphasis.

Carolinian, Bride Die When Plane Crashes

MORGANTON, N. C., Oct. 21.—(AP) John Frederick Kistler, prominent and wealthy young businessman of Morganton, and his bride were killed late today when Kistler's plane crashed at the Morganton airport.

The plane fell from an altitude of 250 feet and buried its nose in a plowed field at the east end of the flying field. Mrs. Kistler was killed instantly, and her husband dying an hour and a half later at Grace hospital here.

MRS. AMANDA ROACH IS DEAD AT CLAXTON

CLAXTON, Ga., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Amanda Deloach Roach, 93, died at her home here Sunday morning. Mrs. Roach was the widow of the late Dr. J. W. Roach. One daughter, Mrs. C. E. Entrekin, of Atlanta, and 11 other children survive. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

I. J. PHILLIPS DIES AT HARTWELL HOME

HARTWELL, Ga., Oct. 21.—I. J. Phillips, former mayor of Hartwell, who formerly operated the Hartwell Grocery Company and had large farming interests, died this morning after a long illness. He was a director of the Hartwell mills and member of the Baptist church. His first wife, Miss Margaret Rike, of South Carolina, preceded him to the grave several years ago. He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Minnie Herndon, of Elberton; five daughters, Miss Grace Phillips, of Greenville, S. C.; Mrs. Mason Smith, of Hickory Grove, S. C.; Mrs. R. P. Clinkscales, of Iva, S. C.; Miss Margie Phillips, of Nutley, N. J.; and Miss Bonte Phillips, of New York city; two sons, Hoyt, of Rising Fawn, Ga., and I. J. Jr., of Connecticut, and one brother, Riley Phillips, of Fountain Inn, S. C. Funeral services will be conducted Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from the residence, conducted by his pastor, Rev. Rufus Hodges. Interment will be in the Hartwell cemetery.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO W. F. JONES, 55

W. F. Jones, 55, of Atlanta, southern sales superintendent of the Wrought Iron Range Company, dropped dead on the postoffice steps at Anniston, Ala., Sunday morning following a heart attack. Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Corinth Methodist church, near Hogansville, Ga., his former home. Dr. Graham will officiate.

He is survived by his wife; a son, W. T. Jones, of Atlanta; a daughter, Miss Clyde Jones, also of Atlanta; two sisters, Mrs. A. W. Powell, of Newnan, and Mrs. Thomas Sims, of Memphis.

Mr. Jones was connected with the stove company for the last 15 years, during which time he had been a resident of Atlanta.

DUNCAN BICKLEY BURIED AT MEIGS

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Oct. 21.—Funeral services were held from the Methodist church in Meigs this morning at 11:30 o'clock for Duncan Bickley, president of the Bank of Meigs, former mayor and alderman of Meigs and for the past 18 years a member of the board of county commissioners of Thomasville, of which he was chairman for several years.

The final rites were conducted by his pastor, Rev. William Swoll Sawyer, of Meigs, and Presiding Elder N. H. Williams, of Thomasville, and were attended by scores of friends from throughout this section. Members of the board of commissioners of Thomas county acted as honorary pallbearers. Interment was in the Meigs cemetery.

Flock 'Kidnaps' Priest To Prevent Transfer

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 21.—(AP) The Rev. O. G. Krusing, held a virtual prisoner by parishioners to prevent his reported transfer, today conducted the regular Sunday services before a congregation that packed Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic church.

The priest was escorted to and from the church by a delegation of his flock. He did not mention the transfer report or the congregation's objections. There was no demonstration and the members left the church immediately after the services.

A small group of his parishioners took possession of the parsonage last Thursday night when it was reported the church would be put under the direction of the Jesuits instead of the Augustinian fathers. Such a change was taken to mean a shift in pastors.

The congregation, mostly Italians, demands that Father Krusing remain, pointing out that he has done great good here and has gained the love and support of all members of the church.

Subsoil's Moisture To Aid Crops of 1935

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The 1935 crop season is showing promise of getting away to a running start.

Deep in the subsoil, where plants draw their life, the water deficiency was eased materially in October, as normal rainfall—the first in several sections is many months—fell over a wide area.

Meteorological experts of the states hardest hit by the record spring and summer aridity of this year were not prepared fully to say yet that subsoil deficiency of moisture had been fully made up.

But they agreed that probability of a repetition of the poor start the past growing season received because of fall and winter dryness had been lessened greatly.

Georgia Rail Hearing To Be Resumed Today

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission will resume its hearing tomorrow on the attack of railroads on Georgia's low intrastate passenger rates instituted by the state public service commission.

Jud P. Wilhoit, chairman of the Georgia commission, was expected here to defend the rates which are among the lowest in the nation.

The hearing was opened in Atlanta some time ago and adjourned to Washington. The I. C. C. said the railroads perhaps will have some additional testimony and then Wilhoit and others defending the tariffs will present their case.
